

Tragedy of the West Coast.

The Evening Telegram, Saturday, Sept. 28th, 1920.

The unexpected that usually comes and no person could have guessed that the once prosperous West Coast of Newfoundland would be in the condition it is to-day. The people and its shores have been so long and so heavily engaged in the fishery, which would be a disaster, to ruin trade, bring about a complete collapse of the fishery, and arrange things so that the people of the coast would be able to get on their feet again. Those who read this paper know and realize that this is a tragedy, but it is a tragedy that is being played out before our eyes. The people of the coast are being driven to the wall, and the tragedy is being played out before our eyes. The people of the coast are being driven to the wall, and the tragedy is being played out before our eyes.

Have you tried MRS. STEWART'S Graham Bread? People Who Never Laugh.

The Veddas, the aboriginal inhabitants of Ceylon, are the only people in the world who never laugh, and in consequence they are thin and bony. A fat man among the Veddas would be an extraordinary sight for sad eyes. A traveller who has studied the early races in Ceylon gives some interesting particulars about this curious tribe.

For nearly 2000 years, according to the best chronicles, these people, now almost extinct, have preserved the same characteristics, and no one, so far as history reveals, has ever seen a smile on the face of one of them or heard a laugh while in their section of Ceylon.

The Veddas are divided into three distinct groups: the Rock Veddas, who dwell almost entirely among the mountains; the Jungle Veddas, who live in the lowlands; and the Sea Veddas, who live on the coast. The Rock Veddas are the most primitive, and the Sea Veddas are the most advanced.

Why these people do not smile is a mystery. They alone of all the people on the earth know nothing of the sensation of laughter.

It studying the amelioration of the sufferings which the future will undoubtedly bring. The inhabitants of the numerous small settlements upon which the times press heavily are not greatly interested at the moment as to who was elected or who defeated. They are more concerned with what is going to happen now that winter is near with regard to their supplies and outfits, usually taken from the merchants at this period. The cheap sneers and pointless jokes of those who profess to love them and to hold them in high regard, because they helped them to power, will not carry any great measure of confidence in the future to these people. Nor will frothy professions of how much good is being done for the country bring comfort to the heart of the father of a family who does not know whether to go for a barrel of flour. When there is no one giving credit and no one catching fish, because it is unsalable in some places, then there is indeed tragedy—a tragedy not to be treated either lightly or flippantly because of its menace.

COMING—LARRY SEMON in "A PAIR OF KINGS."

To the Point.

By WILL U. B. WISE.
One result amongst the many caused by the Fish Regulations, is as Sir M. P. Cashin stated, that 100 people to-day are on the verge of starvation in Fortune Bay, and subsisting merely on herring and a dose from the Relieving Officer. How then can any sane man North, South, East or West, tolerate in power the perpetrators of this frightful state of affairs.

Scores of men and women, young and old, who held good positions in St. John's have lost them because of the depression brought about by a wrong interference with the marketing of our staple produce and the carnival of borrowing and squandering millions of dollars. The same may happen to scores of other employees along Water Street, should Coakerism rule again.

Aptly indeed the Squires-Coaker outfit has been termed the "SCOUTLERS." But they will never get a chance to do any more of their scuttling when an honest Government will replace them after the spring election.

Tradesmen of St. John's remember it was Coakerism that destroyed the industries of the city. Vote it down then in this contest, and elect instead a stable government that will bring back the happy working days of old.

The three years of Coaker domination will go down in history as the most lugubrious in the Colony's existence. The days of the meal and molasses will stand out as an era de l'uxe compared to it.

Another term of Coaker misrule, and "twit" be over the hills and to the poor house sure for everybody who will be left in the country."

The Squires-Coaker party is in the hole already, whilst the Bennett party holds a complete hand of the leading trump.

Three years of Coakerism has put the country on the blink; another three years dose of it may kill it altogether.

She Suffered for Twenty-Five Years.

THEN MRS. ARBOUR USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Quebec Lady who Suffered from Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Dropsy Restored to Good Health by Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

White Head Perce, Que., March 12 (Special).—"For twenty-five years I have suffered from various forms of kidney disease which includes Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Dropsy. I had pains in my back and was always tired and nervous. At times I found it difficult to collect my thoughts and I had sharp pains on the top of my head."

"I took fifteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they have done me a lot of good. I am now enjoying good health."

Madame Francois Arbour, who lives here, makes the above statement. All over Canada, Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as suffering women's best friend. They act directly on the kidneys, making them strong and healthy. Diseased kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of all the ills women are heir to. Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

Weak, nervous, run-down women should ask their neighbors about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Independent Artists

SHOW 5,000 PICTURES.

PARIS.—The high cost of living has not discouraged young artists says Paul Signac, president of the Society of Independent Artists, whose thirty-fourth annual exposition opened recently. Here are represented 1,610 artists who exhibit nearly 5,000 works in the huge galleries of the Grand Palais. Of them all, only one was unable to pay the fee of fifty francs for his picture. No prizes are offered to exhibitors, nor is there any jury to pass on pictures. All comers may hang their creations. The spirit of fairness goes to the extent of arranging the pictures without respect to light. They are hung in the alphabetical order of

SIDE TALKS.

WHAT JOB MEAST.

"Would that I had written a book." I always used to wonder what Job meant when he said that.

He couldn't presumably be a very had in mind the author's disappointment when the royalty with which he had planned to buy a $10,000 car didn't materialize him large enough quantities to permit him to invest in any vehicle more costly than a baby carriage.

Nor could he have gloated over the thought of what the critics would do to it. At least I don't think they had critics in those days.

Why then did he choose that particular misfortune to happen to his enemy?

So He Could Laugh.

I think I know now. He wanted his enemy to write a book on some subject on which he, the enemy was an authority so that when he heard it quoted he might laugh at the queer and any account. "Got that out of a book didn't you?" as it is to get anything out of a book instead of by practical experience was the height of idiosyncrasy.

A man I know has recently taken up tennis. As a preliminary, he bought a book on the subject by a man who has every reason to know what he is writing about, having been playing tennis for many years and having acted as coach to many successful players.

But when he tries to put into practice the teachings of this book, when he quotes it in explanation of what he is trying to do, all his friends laugh heartily at him that you can't learn to play tennis out of a book.

His Book Tennis.

When someone beats him as often happens, since he is more interested at present in starting right than in winning, they joke him about his book tennis, and consider their point that you can't learn anything about an outdoor sport from a book proved.

Now the funny part about the whole thing is this. If any one of those other men should meet the man who wrote that book or a man of similar standing in the sport, and he should tell them things about the game they would be deeply impressed and would probably go about quoting him the rest of their lives.

It has always been the custom to make fun of books on practical matters. What could be more absurd if the book is written by an authority in his line?

Why Not Now?

True, theory without practice is no good. And it's equally true that practice without theory may eventually get you somewhere. But why eventually? Why not now? Why insist on making all the mistakes yourself?

Why not let someone else make them for you and tell you how to avoid them? If there are certain best ways to take care of hens, or play tennis, or cook vegetables, or play bridge, or raise cabbages why not let those who have spent years finding out these ways tell you about them at the beginning instead of spending years finding out about them for yourself?

I don't care what sport or what line of work you are taking up, there are books on the subject written by people who have had years of experience. And I can imagine no better proof of a sane, intelligent outlook on life than a willingness to listen to what these people have to say.
