FOOLING THE SENSES.

The Latest Spiritualistic Device That Deceives Scientists. Spiritualists are much agitated over a numbug that has recently been produced by an ingenuous Yankee in London, says the Pittsburg Commercial. The alleged phenomenon is known as the "haunted swing." It consists of a swing that does not swing. It is built like a parlor, containing all the furnishments that would be found in a nicely appointed drawing-room. There are mirrors and pictures on the walls, finely upholstered furniture, bric-a-brac and all of the little fancy knick-knacks that go to make up a beautiful room. The floor is entirely stationary, being as solid as a rock. The room, with its walls and ceilings swings about the floor upon an axis and all of the furnishments, being solidly in place, swing with it. It goes tumbling with a quiet, symmetrical motion that so deceives a person sitting upon that solid floor that he imagines the walls are stationary and the floor is in motion. The illusion is perfect. Scientific gentlemen who have investigated the phenomenon, while knowing full well the nature of the apparatus, have testified to their dizzy condition after witnessing it. Mme. Jane Warde, the noted English spiritualistic medium, has an apparatus of this kind in her apartments, which she shows to the easy believers with the exas its use as a table bevplanation that the propelling power comes from the mysterious beyond. ('loronto Star, Independent.) Principal Grant has given an emphatic denial of the charge that his support of Sir Oliver Mowat was influenced by a Provincial Government grant of $7,000 a year to the mining school at Kingston, and if his critics desire more than the learned educator's word of honor, surely they should be convinced by his clear statements that the mining school has no connection, not even affiliation, with Queen's University, of which he is the head. It was a despicable charge to make against a man of high principle, whose life is free from even the suspicion of a stain.

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilia is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat them is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.
