WANT AD TIPS

Want Ad Plans For Neighbors

In the Brethven family, both husband and wife work downtown during the day. One thing they might do, when running a Want Ad., would be to stipulate "Bay, 1392, after 6:30 p.m." They have, instead, a second excellent plan-one that should interest good neighbors everywhere.

Across the street from the Brethven home lives a good neighbor, Mrs. Corbett. Mrs. Corbett is a home body-she is always in. So, when Mrs. Brethven has some canaries to sell (she is a canary breeder), or turns to the Want Ad section for other assistance, she gets up an ad. in collaboration with Mrs. Corbett. The phone number given is not Mrs. Brethven's, but her neighbor's. The Want Ad. describes and prices Mrs. Brethven's canaries, or whatever she happens to be selling. Then, always, it contains something else-something Mrs.

Mrs. Corbett is a talented needlewoman. If she has anything to dispose of in needlework, it is listed. On one occasion she advertised and sold a kitchen range which, since purchase of a new one, was not needed. Another time, she obtained a tenant for a vacant room.

Mrs. Brethven pays for the Want Ad., and Mrs. Corbett gladly handles inquiries which develop while Mrs. Brethven is away at work. Mrs. Corbett has a key to the Brethven home, and takes inquirers right in. Such little plans as this are practical in almost every neighborhood. A good neighbor likes to help another out, as Mrs. Corbett delights to. And it is part of good friendship to list something of the neighbor's in the Want Ad., paying

"If I have inserted a Want Ad., and can't be at home ar afternoon when people may call," writes in Mrs. Janet Caldwell, "I always put up a note above the doorbell, directing the visitor to speak to Mrs. Black next door. Mrs. Black helps me out by handling inquiries which come when I am away.'

This is an excellent plan, too. (All Rights Reserved.)
