THE CHICAGO STRIKE.

The Men Offer to Submit to Arbitration Ent the Company Refuse.

Chicago, July 5.—At a meeting last might the strikers and their allies passed a resolution accepting the mayor's plan for settling the difference with the street car company by arbitration and appointed a committee to wait on the mayor to-day to ascertain whether the plan was satisfactory to the other side. President Jones of the West Division Street Car company, after consultation with his fellow officials, refuses eommittee to wait on the mayor to day to ascertain whether the plan was satisfactory to the other side. President Jones of the West Division Street Car company, after consultation with his fellow officials, refuses to make use of the mayor's plan to settle the differences with the strikers by arbitration.

The report that a man was clubbed to death by the police on Friday is untrue. No serious trouble occurred yesterday.

The strikers had learned of the company's refusal to arbitrate and seemed generally, as they discussed the matter during the day, to anticipate struggles in the future to which that of Friday night would be insignificant by comparison. There was no talk of backing down.

A SIX-YEAR-OLD MURDERER.

Brother to Make it Realistic.
WILSON, N.C., July 4.—Willie Sams a six-year-old son of a farmer living near here, yesterday murdered his infant brother, of whom he had been given charge. Some time ago he was taken to a child's funeral and manifested great interest in its burial, which he did not seem to understand. He has frequently prattled about it and asked many questions as to how the child was got into the coffin and when it would come out. To-day he took his little brother to the cemetery, which wasnear his father's home, and after scooping out a grave in the sand by a small brook, he placed the little infant in a box, which he had previously carried there, nailed down had previously carried there, nailed down the top and buried it, going through the the top and buried it, going through the form of delivering a prayer and singing a hymn. After he had filled the tiny grave, he stamped on it and slowly went back on returning found him dead in the bat he stamped on it and slowly went back home and told his mother of his deed, of home and told his mother of his deed, of which he seemed very proud. He said it to fits, and the supposition is that while was just like Mrs. Arthur's little baby's funeral." The terrified mother hastened to the spot, the grave was reopened and the infant found dead, with its right arm order an inquest.

The World had a short interview with Sir Henry Tyler last night. He was smoking a fragrant cigar and dictating letters. The party traveled to Winnipeg by way of Chicago. Leaving the prairie capital Thursday, June 25, they reached the end of the Canadian Pacific track, a distance of 1500, the following Saturday. They rode fifteen miles on horseback to the summit of the Selkirk pass, where they were awed and delighted with the grandeur of the mountain scenery.

Arthur Trefusis Heneage Williams was the son of John Tucker Williams, a commander in the royal navy, who sat for Durham in the Canadian assembly from 1840 to 1848. The colonel was born at Penryn park, Port Hope, 1837, and educated at Upper Canada college and Edinburgh university. He has sat for east Durham in several parliaments and was member at the time of death.

For several years Mr. Williams has been lieutenant-colonel commanding the 46th or Midland battalion. When the rebellion broke out, Col. Williams, who was at Ottawa attending parliament, at once volunteered his services and that so f his regiment. The government accepted the offer and soen the Midlands were on the way north. The Metropolitan's New Paster. sermon at the Metropolitan church yester day forenoon, said that the Christian day forenoon, said that the Christian church is not above the danger of drifting away from the Christian religion; that the preaching of to-day is rapidly degenerating, as a discourse on any topic whatever, so long as it be commenced by a scriptural quotation, and so long as it be artistically complete was by courtesy called a sermon. There was only one subject which Christian ministers had tacitly agreed not to discuss publicly, and that was party politics. He believed that the more closely they adhered to their original object the more beneficial would be their ministry.

THE TORONTO BASEBALLISTS BEAT-

Cracking Good Match Attended by Up-wards of Three Thousand People—The Canadian League Record to Date.

Although the Torontos were beaten everybody is agreed that the baseball match on the Jarvis street grounds Saturday was a capital exhibition of the game. Fully three thousand five hundred people were present, including an exceptionally large number of ladies, showing that the game is growing in favor in a quarter that will best maintain its popularity. And right here it can be mentioned that for the future every Wednesday will be ladies day, that is the dear creatures in pink and white will be admitted free to mid. week matches. This is a wise move on the part of the management, and will help greatly to increase both the repute and the popularity of baseball. The first lady's day will be next Wednesday, when the Torontos meet—and, it is to be hoped, will beat—the Hamilton Primroses for the third

Sir Henry reached Winnipeg on his return trip Dominion day. At different stations he saw detachments of troops, thought they were a very fine set of fellows, and admired them for the deeds they had performed. The building at Regina where Riel is imprisoned was pointed out to him, but her railway magnate did not care about, paying his respects to the rebelleder, sithough he visited the military hospital at Moose Jaw, and had a kindly word for the wounded volunteers. The distinguished travelers left Winnipeg Wedneedsy liset, returning by way of Port Arthur. They came down the lakes on the Alberta, which Sir Henry was pleased to describe as a very fine steamer, and arrived here at non-yesterday.

The party will be off at 6 o'clock this morning for New York via the West Shore railway. Sir Henry could not say whether he would return to Canada or not before railway. Sir Henry could not say whether he would return to Canada or not before sailing for London.

Sheffler retired at first and Spence eame home on a bagger by Stemmyer. McKinley hit three fouls and then quit on strikes. The Londons braced themselves for slugging. Pelouze, thanks to a magnificent piece of work by Macklin, the ball being sent in by McKinley too low, went out at first. Quinn got his base on balls, stole second and third and came home on a passed ball. Hunter yielded: home on a passed ball. Hunter yielded up the club on a foul. Campau hit to the right fence. O'Kourke, who appeared in no hurry to field it, probably thinking it was a foul, thought to cut the runner off at third, but throwing out of McKinley's reach, Campau scored the second run for the visitors. Knight hit to Reid and the disastrous innings was over. From this up to the end of the seventh innings the play was mostly noticeable for the quick order in which the batemen retired, no additions to the talley seventh innings the play was mostly noticeable for the quick order in which the batsmen retired, no additions to the talley being made, and for a magnificent catch in centre field by Sheffler, who, falling at full length, caught the ball, a skyer from Pelouze, a few inches from the ground, while resting on his elbow, his arm being badly scraped in the attempt. It was a remarkably clever performance and was deservedly applauded. In the Londons' eighth inmings Campau got his base on balls, stole second and third and made the flight home on a wild pitch. The Torontos' ninth yielded one run, as already narrated, and our Forest City friends had secured the victory by 3 runs to 2. Mention should not be omitted of a rather bad mistake of Macklin in the eighth innings. He got to first on a hit, stole second and running for third, inatead of slipping in, as he should have done, overran the bag and was put out.

Are Cathelics Intelerant?

Editor World: Replying to An Ingrate, in your issue of June 30, I should say there can only be one answer to the above question, and that is a most emphatic Yes. An Ingrate cites a case in 1790 where the Recollet friars actually allowed a Presbyterian congregation to worship in their chapel at Montrest. Well, I would advise an Ingrate to treasure up all such scarce deeds of toleration as this that he may come across, for like angels visits they will be few and far between. Readers of his tory well know that imstead of lending their places of worship to other sects the Romanists were killing their fellow-beings in hundreds and thousands, because these popple disputed the authority of the pope and refused to attend the Roman Catholic chapel or profess that religion. But why ob ack to the last century? Come right

Editor World: Allow me to correct your statement in to-day's edition with reference to the first bill drawn from the Traders bank. Rice Lewis & Son's clerk still has in his possession the first bill issued by this bank, series C. No. 00001, drawn by himself, as stated in an earlier issue of your paper.

SALT LAKE, Utah, July 4 .- There was great excitement here to-day on account of the Mormons persisting in keeping their the Mormons persisting in keeping their flags on the public buildings at half-mast, avowing that the fourth of July was a day of mourning to "this people," whose best men were in the penitentiary by virtue of federal officials' perversion of all the principles of law and liberty. All who are immediately responsible for this piece of business disclaim anything about it, but it has leaked out that an order to thus insult the nation at large and the government of nation at large and the government of Utah came directly from the head of the church. All appeals and demands either to take the flags down or to run them up to the masthead were fruitless, the Mormon officials threatening to shoot anybody that

An Escaped Prisoner's Hospitable Invita Mark Checkley, pugilist, rat catcher and lion tamer, is again to the front, this time in the serious role of a would-be murderer Checkley, who has recently been working land lately bequeathed to his wife. While there he assaulted John Hale, the halfwitted son of an Etobicoke farmer, striking him a savage blow on the head with an axe. The blow laid Hale at the point of death and his recovery is questionable. Checkley. At an early hour Saturday morning Nightwatchman Keating of the Dominion bolt works at the Humber discovered a fire in the annealing room. Unable to stiffe the flames himself he rode to Parkdale, and called up Mr. Stevens, foreman of the works, and others. In the meantime the annealing room, which is located outside of the main building, was burned down, and the fire had communicated to a portion of the main roof, which is supposed to be fire-proof, being made of corrugated iron. However the fire found its way through the roof, and began its work in the timbers which support the naturedly. "How is it, Smith," said he, "that you turn up every place I go? Come and have a drink." Checkley was speedily hustled back to Parkdale and thence to
