ome of the trial is now taken by defence in the McMillan arson was expected that the case d be given to the jury yesterday on, but owing to the time taken by the Crown in presenting rebutence, the prisoner's counsel did mence his address to the jury til after luncheon, and the Crown rney, following, spoke until the t adjourned at 5.30. Judge Mc-gall deferred his charge until this ng, and the verdict will probably be reached before the noon re-

McMillan's Testimony Concluded

Yesterday morning the cross-examination of the prisoner was continued by Mr. Dewart. He contradicted Detective Slemin's statement that he had admitted stopping at the corner of Bay and Melinda-streets on the night of the fire. He told of writing to Mr. Patterson, a local lawyer, asking him to inform the police where he was.

Paul Szeleski was called upon to tell what he knew of Rosenthal. He did not give his compatriot a very good character, and Mrs. Armstrong, the next witness, was even more positive as to the demerits of the Crown's chief witness. He occupied one of her houses and she would not believe him if he swere on a stack of Bibles.

Here the defence rested its case.

For over two hours Mr. St. John addressed the jury on hehalf of the prisoner. In reviewing the evidence of Rosenthal he characterized that personage as a spy and a scoundrel. He was severe on the "sweatbox" system of obtaining evidence, and asked the jury to discredit not only the testimony of "that miserable, cowardly wretch," the Jew, but everything coming through the detectives.

Mr. Dewart's address was not of suc! length as that for the defence, but no point that could tell against the prisoner was neglected, and with exhertation to act without allowing any feeling of sympathy to interfere with their understanding of the evidence, the Crown Attorney closed the prosecution of the case.

The following is Mr. Barrett's resolution:

"I do impeach Thomas F. Bayard, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, of high crimes and misdemeanors, on the following ground:

"Whereas, the following report of a speech delivered before the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution by Hon Thomas F. Bayard, Ambassador of the United States of America to the Court of Great Britain, is published in The London News under date of Nov. 8, 1895: The opening address of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution was delivered by Mr. Bayard, Ambassador of the United States of America to the Court of Great Britain, is published in The London News under date of Nov. 8, 1895: The opening address of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution was delivered by Mr. Bayard, Ambassador of the United States of America, who selected the subject: "Individual Freedom, the Germ of National Progress and Permanence.' In his own country he said he had witnessed the insatiable growth of that form of state socialism styled protection, which he believed had done more to foster class legislation and create inequality of fortune, to corupt public life, to banish men of independent minds and character from the public councils, to lower the tone of national representation, blunt public conscience, create false standards in the popular mind, to familiarize it with reliance upon state aid and guardianship in private affairs, divorce ethics from politic and a funny comedy turn. "It has unhesitatingly allied itself with every policy which tended to commercial isolation, dangerously depleted the treasury and sapped the popular conscience by schemes of corrupting conscience by schemes of corrupting favor and largesse to special classes, whose support was thereby attracted. "Thus it had done much to throw legislation into the political market where jobbers and choppers took the place of statesmen.

where jobbers and choppers took the place of statesmen.

"It was incorrect to speak of protection as a national policy, for that it could never be, because it never could be other than the fostering of special interests at the expense of the rest and overthrow the great principles of equality before the law, and that resultant sense of justice and equity in the administration of sovereign powers, which was the source of domestic trarquility and human contentment.

"The enfeeblement of individual energies and the impairment of many self-reliances were necessarily involved and the belief in the mysterious powers of the state and a reliance upon them took the place of individual exertion, fostered the growth of state socialism, and personal liberty ceased to be the great end of the Government," and Oucumbers and melons are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that the least indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, grip ng, etc. These persons are not aware that they can indulge to their heart's content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's behalf of the criminal. The fate of Shortis will be d cided probably at the first Cabinet meeting on Friday.

Oucumbers and melons are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that they can induce to their heart's content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief, and is a sure cure for all summer complaints.
