NOTES.

Candidates can now cease calling each other pretty (?) names until next year.

Of course the defeated candidates are the ones that should have been elected.

Detroit, what's the matter with your drawing card?

'Tis said that there will be a good crop of new societies this year judging by the number of defeated candidates

Before and After.
 Specimen of conversation heard lately.
 Time, before the convention.

Friend (to candidate) "Do you think there is any chance of you getting that office?"

Candidate "Well I should say so I can't help getting it."

After the convention.

Friend "Hello did you get that office?"

Candidate, "Well-er no the other fellow got ahead of me. I think I'll start a new society and get even with him."
