COLOGNE CATHEDRAL.

Cologne Cathedral is completed at last. Nothing remains to be done but to remove the staging and scaffolding and dericks, and to put the beautiful terrace in order. And for this $123,000 will be required. There is something wonderfully impressive in the structure, by far the finest architectural work in Europe and the richest specimen of the gothic order in the world. It was begun 613 years ago, in 1270, when Germany was little more than half civilized, and the Normans ruled England, holding the Saxons in subjection in a lot but a trifle better than serfdom. Who designed this beautiful edifice is not now certainly known. It took over fifty years to finish the choir, which was consecrated in 1322. Work was continued on it till down into the troublesome times of the Reformation when it was suspended, the great iron crane standing to show that the faith which begun would surely complete the edifice. And the return of order brought the spirit needed for the task. Work was resumed. The unrivalled beauty of the place compelled the admiration of Protestants, and made the building an object of pride. The King of Prussia took hold of the enterprise as a national monument, and 1842 laid the foundation of the transepts. The nave, aisle and transepts were opened in 1848. The magnificent south portal was finished in 1859, and the north portal soon after, and the central iron spire was raised in 1860. The towers, as now completed, rise upward of 500 feet. Over $2,000,000 have been spent in the work since 1864. Such a building's history is a stone. Eighteen generations of artisans have worked upon it. Thousands of men have chiselled and wrought their whole lives into it, of whom not one in a hundred had a conception of the finished structure. They builded better than they knew, in a literal sense. And at last it stands, a thing of marvellous beauty and grandeur rooted in the faith and pious devotion of the ages, as though it had grown out of the hearts of an unconquerable people.—Can. Pres.
