Chairman,—

I will now pass on to the order of business of "Reading of papers and discussion thereof." The paper to-night is entitled "Notes on Foundry Practice," and has been prepared by Mr. E. B. Gilmore, but unfortunately Mr. Gilmore is out of town, and Mr. Robertson has kindly consented to read this paper. Mr. Robertson, I understand, is an authority on this subject, and thoroughly understands what this paper is about, I have therefore much pleasure in introducing Mr. Robertson.

Mr. Robertson,—

I am very pleased to be here to-night, but I am afraid that
