scale, but prices still rather favor buyers. Beef has been dealt in largely, and some heavy parcels have been cleared at a reduction in price of 2s. 6d. per tierce. The market is not steady.

Pork is also in more request at our quota-

There is a fair retail demand for Bacon, which is met freely on the part of holders. Hams are still dull, without much doing, and shoulders have declined slightly in value.

Lard sells freely at rather better prices, the sales this week reaching 500 to 600 tons.

There is a steady consumptive demand for Cheese, which with the prospect of reduced imports, has imparted a firm tone to the market, and caused an advance of 1s, per Butter-Choice qualities are more sought after, but secondary and inferior sorts are still neglected.

In the corn market, both wheat and flour are quiet, but unaltered in value; prices remain steady.

Petroleum-The market is very quiet, but holders continue firm, in anticipation of a better demand springing up.

VIRTUE AND VICE.—Virtue is the humble violet nestled away under its broad green leaves, over whose head the storms of adversity may pass in safety: vice, the gaudy poisonous flower, one moment flaunting in fancied security, the next, crushed to the earth by some gust of passion, to be trampled upon and neglected, even by those who admire its dangerous beauty. Virtue is the brightest-vice the blackest thread in the web

In Perthshire it is a custom for servants to call any cow or calf that their musters may chance to purchase, either by the name of the town from which it came, or by the name of the town from which it came, or by the name and surname of its previous owner. The following is a good illustration of this practice. A fine specimen of the British furner once lived not far from the lively village of St. Martin's. This worthy old gentleman bought a calf from an elderly periodbox named Storer, but before he reach. neighbor named Storer, but before he reached home with his purchase the shades of evening had closed around him, and his family and domestic servants had retired to rest. Disdaining to disturb either family or servants, he proceeded to the byre, and bound the calf with his own hands. On entering the house, he informed his eder son of what he had done, and observed that he would see it in the morning. On the following morning the son went to the byre to see the calf, but was surprised to find that it was dead. He immediately went to his father, and with a sorrowful face informed him that Jamie Storer was dead. Oh, 1 ever mind, said the sire; 'Jamie was an oddish sort of a man; you couldna look for onything else. In fact, I aye thocht he wad gang awa like the snuffing o' a candle. Never mind, never mind.'—'Ay, but father,' exclaimed the son, it's Jamie Storer, the calf that's dead!'—'Jamie Storer the calf!' shouted the venerable size. 'that alters the care. able sire; that alters the case. Bring me my slippers! An order which was speedily obeyed. In company they reached the byre, only to find the sad tale verified. Poor Jamie had been rather slack bound, and in his struggles to fice himself he was choked. The old man left the byre, mut-tering to himself, 'Ah, weel! ah, weel! it's but warld's gear. It's maybe better the way it is. Auld Jamie is a nice kind o' a

A runaway couple having been married at Gretna Green, Vulcan demanded five guineas for his services 'How is this?' said the bridegroom; 'the gentleman you last married assured me he only gave you a guinea.' 'True,' said the Smith, 'but he was an Irishman, and I have married him six times. He is a customer, you know; but you I may never see again.'

his household.

A Sensible Question .- A farmer required a number of respers. Several presented themselves, and all were hired except one. The poor man thus omitted said, 'Master, won't you hire me?'
'No,' said the farmer- 'Why not?'—
'Because you are too little.' 'Too little?' exclaimed Paddy; 'does your honor rape your corn at the top?' What could the farmer do but roar with laughter, and send the little man to work in the field?
