

Taking the guess work out of international business

When Sage Energy, a manufacturer of natural gas compressors and generators, decided to expand its market beyond Western Canada, it knew it couldn't afford any missteps.

"For a company our size, a couple of shots in the dark could put us out several million dollars."