

the two Sicilies, the Duke of Parma, &c. the Duke of Modena all united in the Interest of France. What a formidable Alliance is here formed on the Side of Italy? Nor can the French Alliance ever be departed from by the King of Prussia, who must always look on France as his Anchor, as his best Security for the Conquests made on the House of Austria, and guaranty'd to him by the present Treaty. Has not France in a manner subjected the Low-Countries to her Arms for Ages to come by the Demolition of the strong Towns on the Frontier? Has not she opened her way into Germany by the Demolition of Fribourg a Town of the last Importance? Nor is the Demolition of Demont for opening a way into Italy to be forgotten. The Cessions as well as Restitutions to be made to the Allies of France, are to be accompanied with all the Ammunition and Artillery. And the Duke of Modena is intitled to Satisfaction in ready Money for the Moveables and Effects, of what Nature soever, carried off or converted into any other Form during the War. But the Towns of Mons, Aeth, Oudenarde and Menin are to be given up to the Allies of Great Britain with-
