

of Empedocles, 307 ; of the followers of Heraclitus, 307, 310, 317 ; on the contradiction in mathematical knowledge, 309-310 ; his idéa or εἶδος, 336.

PROTAGORAS, his theory of Knowledge, 304-320.

ST. SIMON and Comte, 23.

SIDGWICK, A., as exponent of Scepticism, 329-336.

SPENCER, HERBERT, his definition of 'life,' 103-104 ; on the Relativity of Knowledge, 151-190 ; his Psychology, 190-194 ; his Dualism, 431 ; his distinction from Lotze, 444.

STOICS, ethical theory of the, 202-206 ; their conception of evil inferior to Kant's, 289-290.

TYNDALL on Evolution, 130, 176-183 ; his Dualism, 159.