ALASKA WHEAT.

Recently a despatch from a news agency in Minneapolis announced that a man by the name of Adams in Idaho had brought to the farmers of America the greatest boon of the age, in a great yielding new wheat, called Alaska wheat.

Upon receipt of the news and realizing what a big thing was being circulated, The World wrote the agency asking for particulars.

The answer came in due course and was to the effect that 30 samples could be sent or other information given, as the originator claimed that his wheat was so good that he needed no advertisement nor agency.

This was strange logic after the issue of their newspaper stuff that was being mailed broadcast over the land.

A short note appeared in the farming pages that week saying that the wheat was a fake grain. But when a big story, with cuts of the wheat, appeared in The Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia, doubts were entertained as to the extent of the fake.

Information came from the department of agriculture at Washington to the effect that most of the allegations concerning Alaska wheat are canards, purely fanciful statements that should have no weight whatever.

According to the U.S. Government Alaska wheat is not a "new" wheat. It has been known for many years, both in the United States and in Europe.

For 15 years the U.S. Government has been experimenting with it and growing it at its experimental stations. It has been raised in France for many years, as well as in other countries.

The U.S. department of agriculture says that the reports about the enormous yields are unfounded; that it does not yield any more than ordinary wheat and that the quality is so poor for breadmaking that the farmer would be foolish to raise it where he can raise other wheat.

The chances are that some smooth gentleman has been trying to hoodwink the papers over their only ordinary variety of a poor wheat.

ALFALFA AGAIN. Mr. R. H. Harding of Horndale is a grower of alfalfa. He has ten acres this year and the third crop is showing great promise.

That was a good article you had in Friday's Farming Pages about the treatment of the sow thistle, said W. H. Guthrie of Whitby Township, a young and successful farmer of that township.

Talking about the control of this pest, the speaker said that it was argued by some farmers that it was useless to try to combat the evil.

"This is utter nonsense," said he, "for the pest, altho a bad one, can be kept under control and the plan outlined in The World is a first-class one."

Ever since man received his sentence of work at the fall from Eden, success must be won by persistent labor and struggle against adverse conditions. The sow thistle has invaded Ontario. It is a decided menace to farming operations.

Tenants who suffer it to exist, do so at their own loss. Landlords who make no provision in the lease for proper cultivation and fertilization of their acres, do their neighbors a decided injury.

One poor farmer makes many others toil harder. Bad weeds are spread by water, wind, birds and other means.

Of course the land is very hard now, but the farmer who has a badly infested field will do well to plan wisely for its cleaning next year. Cleaner farming will pay. Enough poor yields this year will be recorded on Ontario farms where the enthusiasm of high endeavor in agriculture is lacking.

SCOTCH FARMERS HERE STUDY FARM CONDITIONS

Representative Body Reach Toronto—Will Attend Exhibition and Then Leave for Winnipeg.

Members of the Scottish agricultural commission, who arrived in Canada recently, reach Toronto this morning and will be entertained by the Canadian National Exhibition to-day.

The commission, composed of practical farmers and others interested in agricultural education and development, are following in Canada similar observations and enquiries which the commissioners followed in Denmark in 1904 and in Ireland in 1906.

The main objects of study will be land settlement, constitution and operation of the ministry of agriculture, agricultural education and research, experimental farms, mixed farming, live stock, wheat farming, dairying, ranching, fruit and vegetable farming, co-operation, transportation, cold storage systems and the markets.

Who Are Here. The personnel of the commission is as follows: William Barber, M.A., J. P., of Peterhead, Morayshire; James William Bruce, B.Sc., of Edinburgh and East of Scotland College of Agriculture; John McHutchison Dobbie, J.P., tenant farmer of Campend, Speiketh, Midlothian; James Dunlop, cattle breeder and exporter, of Halkirk, Kirkcaldy; George Ager Ferguson, J.P., well known farmer and Clydesdale breeder, of Surradale, Elgin; Ian A. Forsyth, tenant farmer of Ballintra, Delny, Rossshire; Dr. R. Shirra Gibb, M.B., C.M., large tenant farmer, of Wood, Lanarkshire; Berwickshire; R. B.
