WHITE LABEL ALE

OVER 30 YEARS OF PURITY

The strongest recommendation that can possibly be given to any product is the continual use of it. For over thirty years WHITE LABEL ALE has stood the criticism of an exacting public, and to-day, after the experience time has wrought, the cleanliness and sanitary condition under which it is brewed and bottled, still make it the favorite Ale all over Canada.

The crown authorities do not anticipate any further difficulty in the case from the non-attendance of witnesses. Should Miss Kinrade refuse to attend the crown would apply for an order of attachment at Osgoode Hall.

J. P. Bickell & Co. say at the close: Wheat—Higher cables and unseasonable weather gave strong market early, but fear of heavy deliveries on May contracts caused sharp reaction at close. Market will probably prove irregular until the effect of deliveries is known. Cash situation is still a strong one, and we continue to advise purchases on all declines.

Wheat—The market seems to be of a more legitimate character than when the Fazio influence surrounded the market, and it is conceded that the legitimate demand is very bullish, and that eventually higher prices will be witnessed, and we consider July and September wheat a

A Split For $30,000.
A. A. Laurie of Toronto and F. A. Knapp of Prescott are suing the Polson Iron Works, Limited, for $30,000 damages, for negligence in the custody of the plaintiffs' chattels.

The action arises from the collision between the Knapp roller boat and the Turbine, as a result of which the Turbine Steamship Company got judgment for damages. Laurie and Knapp now hold the Polson Iron Works responsible for the roller boat drifting from the Polson slip.

Apple trees need room to develop, which it would be needless to allow forest trees, in fact the system of planting for fruit is just the reverse of that adopted when timber is the object. To grow timber it is desirable to force an upright growth. Close planting makes a tall, straight, self-trimmed tree, because the lower limbs, being shaded, die and drop off. But for fruit a spreading top is needed, with plenty of air and sunshine. The most successful practice puts the trees about 33 feet apart each way.

At the Cornell experiment station the strongest, most vigorous hens that could be selected were put in one pen and the weakest, least vigorous in another. These two pens were fed in exactly the same way, and the eggs from them used for hatching. When the chicks were of market age those from the pen of strong, vigorous hens were worth twenty-five cents more apiece than those from the poorer lot of hens. This emphasizes the fact that one cannot be too careful in selecting the breeding stock.

WIFE OF THE BANKRUPT OFFERS TO GIVE UP HOME

Mrs. Ennis Willing to Surrender All the Property That Had Been Placed in Her Name.

Mrs. Thomas A. Ennis, wife of the senior member of the bankrupt stock and grain brokers, Ennis & Stoppani, was questioned by Lindsay Russell, receiver for the collapsed firm, as to the whereabouts of assets, says The N. Y. American.

She declared she knew nothing of any money or property belonging to the bankrupts, but was willing, if the creditors would accept a compromise and not prosecute her husband, to surrender her magnificent home in Park Place, Brooklyn, all the costly furniture and works of art therein, together with her three horses and carriages and every cent she possessed in the world.

"The house and the furniture are in my name," she said. "They were given to me, with the horses, some years ago by my husband. He has not given me anything for more than two years. I will willingly give up everything, however, if the creditors will accept a settlement."

Mrs. Stoppani, wife of the junior member of the firm, has not yet been before the receiver.

In respect to the McCarren settlement it leaked out that the Senator and the youthful receiver had played a game of bluff, in which the receiver had won by the narrowest of margins in the last five minutes of the game.

The Senator's original offer to settle was largely a "feet out," to use his vernacular. He did not believe the cards he had placed with Ennis & Stoppani had been executed. If the receiver did not have the stocks, then no settlement need be made.

"Of course you will deliver the stocks," he asked.

"Most assuredly," replied the receiver, "the slightest idea how the cards could be played. He had no money to buy them, and if he had he would not have dared to have done so for fear McCarren at the last moment might have raised some quibble and refused to take them. On the other hand, if McCarren or his brokers got wind of the situation they might try to put up the price in the market. As for the mortgage to borrow 'them' from a friend."

Then he was in this position: If McCarren settled, he would have to deliver the borrowed stocks and buy others to replace them, in the market before McCarren's brokers learned of it. The cheque which the Bachs drew in settlement of the $450,000 account of McCarren was not delivered to the receiver until 11:20 a.m. on Saturday. The exchange closed at noon. He could do nothing until the draft had been certified. A boy sent to the Bank of Commerce did not understand the work and returned at 11:40 a.m. without any certification. Another boy was dispatched. He got back about 11:55 a.m. The cheque was then turned over to the receiver, who rushed to the phone, and the broker who had been waiting for more than an hour at the other end managed to execute the order for the five thousand shares one second before the bell rang.
