Council. Several delegates voiced the opinion that to give apandoned meta-ers aid would mean further abandonment of mothers, to which the report was given that it would be an insult At the regular meeting of Ward Six to the working men and the intelligence of their wives. "If you want to come to the root of the abandonment of mothers, it is due to economic necessity. A man is forced to go away from home to get better wages," opined another, while a third delegate said that to retain the word "abandoned" would recoil on the children.

One delegate wanted the act to read "women," instead of "mothers," but was ruled out of order, altho he managed to put up a good argument for the case of the unmarried mothers. Ultimately the meeting expressed itself in favor of the term "abandoned" being retained.

Toronto Carpet Co. Case Another subject which came in for considerable discussion was that connected with the Toronto Carpet Co. nected with the Toronto Carpet Co. in bringing out women employes from the old country, who, it was said, were brought out for the purpose of flooding the labor market and reducing wages. One delegate said these people had been brought out by misreperesentation. Whether the trades council should take the matter to the courts or whether the matter to the courts or whether the legislative committee investigate the facts and report was fully discussed, the latter course being adopted.

One delegate contended that em-

Guelph, March 18 .- (Special.) -At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Provincial Winter Fair, the unexpected resignation of Mr. W. W. Wade, the efficient and popular secretary and manager of the big Guelph show, was received. No previous intimation had been given by Mr. Wade that he intended to relinquish his office, and the resignation came as somewhat of a shock to the directors. in handing in his resignation, Mr. Wade decimed to give any reasons, simply stating that he was thru with the show business. The directors made an unsuccessful attempt to induce him to reconsider his decision, and it was only after every effort had been made along these lines that they reluctantly accepted. After accepting the resignation yesterday, the directors appointed Mr. J. E. Rettie to succeed Mr. Wade. Mr. Rettie was a former assistant secretary of the fair, and is also a graduate of the 1912 class of the O.A.C. When war broke out, Mr. Rettie enlisted and served overseas with the British Flying Corns in Meson with the British Flying Corps in Mesowith the British Flying Corps in Mesopotamia.
