FOXES WORTH SOME $100,000

Sixty-Six Brought Here From The West Today—Not One Lost in Trans-Continent Trip

That the stringency in the money market is not affecting the interest in foxes was shown by a consignment which came into St. John on the Atlantic express this morning. Piled high on the Dominion Express Company's trucks the wire covered boxes attracted a great deal of attention. The little animals with their large startled eyes could be seen blinking off in a corner, apparently confused by the crowds of people after being used to the silences of the Northland.

The shipment is the largest and most valuable which ever came to St. John. It is consigned to the Fundy Fox Company which have their headquarters in the city at Riverside. There were sixty-six foxes in all, each one of them valuable but of the lot the twelve black foxes, which appeared to be the most vigorous of all, were by far the most costly. The whole shipment would be worth not less than one hundred thousand dollars.

The one to whom the credit is due for bringing the consignment so successfully to St. John is Gordon Colwell, a young man of this city, who was sent out by the Fundy Fox Company about March 1 last to secure them stock and has since been all over the west and northwest. Mr. Colwell said that he had gathered the shipment together gradually; some of the animals he had been able to get in the British Columbia but the majority had come from the Yukon and Alaska. A large number had been obtained from the Indians who brought them from the far north in sacks as many as 700 miles. The journey east had taken the last fourteen days and nights without a break but one fox had been lost. This loss was more noteworthy as the weather was very hot through the middle west and a great quantity of ice had to be used to keep the valuable charges cool. Between Winnipeg and Fort William alone a ton of ice was consumed.

The whole shipment of sixty-six foxes will be sent out to the company's farm at Riverside where there are already one hundred animals in quarters.

GREEKS SIGN A NEW PITCHER

Will Report in Bangor—Riley To Third Base — Joe Tarbell is Robbed of $9

The Marathons have had to undergo a re-arrangement of positions because of the unfortunate mishap to Charles O'Brien, the third baseman, in Saturday's game, when a ball thrown by Dave Morey to catch O'Brien's first base, struck him in the side, breaking two, if not more ribs.

When the team left this morning it was intended to put Riley at third and Woodbury in left field, and another pitcher, again a Harrington, has been secured and is to report in Bangor on Wednesday. This is not "Joe" Harrington, who had been engaged by the Greeks, but did not report. As a result of his course, he was reported to Secretary Farrell and word comes that he has been put under suspension.

Joe Tarbell, the Marathons' sturdy Indian pitcher, is minus his pocketbook containing $9 and some little things. It was taken from his trousers' pocket in Saturday afternoon's game was in progress. He had prepared to put his clothes in his locker.

When O'Brien was struck on Saturday it was such a once that he was badly hurt. He was carried unconscious off the field. No doctor could be had and aid was given by two nurses, one of whom, with Catcher Bien, accompanied the injured player in a coach to the Lansdowne Hotel. His condition seemed serious for a time, but he regained consciousness about a quarter to eleven on Saturday night. Dr. A. P. Emery is attending him. He will be out of the game for some weeks, if not all season. The popular player's misfortune is regretted by all and this is shown by the many inquiries made for him.

The Greeks will play the speedy St. Croix team on the Marathon grounds here at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

FREDERICTON LETS
BOB GANLEY GO

He has been suspended indefinitely for breach of discipline in St. John and will leave for his home in Lowell this evening."

While Ganley has been a source of strength to his team and in connection with the course of the Fredericton management will be upheld here.

DICKSON WAS HIS OWN LAWYER IN POLICE COURT

Case of Attack on City Comptroller Taken up This Morning

The first hearing in the prosecution of Robert Dickson on charge of assaulting the city comptroller, Adam MacIntyre, was held in the police court this morning. Dickson, who said he did not want my lawyer but could handle his own defence. Again and again Dickson had to be told to sit down while Mr. MacIntyre was giving his evidence and on one occasion he took Magistrate Ritchie to task for some alleged trouble he had had with him before.

Testimony was given by Mr. MacIntyre and Edward Chase both of whom described how the attack took place. Mr. MacIntyre also told of the transaction over which it was said Dickson had been brooding for years and in connection with which he fancied he had been unjustly treated by Mr. MacIntyre.

Dickson undertook to cross examine Mr. MacIntyre and seemed very much disappointed at the answers. He made numerous objections and denials and wished to testify at every point himself but was told each time that he would get a chance at the next hearing. The case was adjourned until other witnesses could be present.

THE POLICE COURT

"And what were you drinking?" asked Magistrate Ritchie of a pale-faced youth named Carl Peterson, who was arrested last night on charges of being drunk and carrying a loaded revolver.

"Holland gin, Your Honor."

"Well, you'd better change your medicine and try Scotch portidge for a while. It will help to fill out your face and won't bring you to the police court," was the magistrate's advice. Peterson was fined $8 or two months.

A Union Alley quarrel was aired in court this morning when a West Indian negro, Darnell Beckelis was before the magistrate charged with using abusive and insulting language to James Graves, who keeps a boarding house there. From the evidence it appeared that Graves did not want Beckelis at his house and told him to leave in short order. Beckelis resented this and voiced his opinions so forcibly that Graves had him run in. He was fined $8 or two months in jail.

Harry Lockhart, who was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Andrew Garnett on June 30, was fined $20 or two months in jail, but as Garnett did not wish to press the suit, the fine was allowed to stand.

One prisoner was fined $8 or two months, and two were remanded, on drunkenness charges.
