AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility ON THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY. Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Soil is not fit for a hog. Don't send bob veal to market. Attention is a bad companion. The skillful farmer is called for. Pledge is worthless expenditure. Poor machinery is like poor help. Among the roses, grow the daisies. A poor system is better than none. A few carrots are good for digestion. A slack workman is a source of waste. Irrigation is a bad companion. Hay says are good things; try them. The bark of young trees needs shade. A slack workman is a source of waste. Boys are prone to copy the hired man. There is no money in "scrub" stallions. Economical feeding involves full rations. Big sums look out in small expenditures. Machinery represents accumulated labor. There is a liberal education in a garden. A scented animal never recovers the loss. We as a nation are not economically fed. The best is usually the most economical. Old summer seeds are said to yield best. Boys let the birds and birds' nests alone. Slaves' fits thus far the lot of the majority. Keep your feeding places clean and sweet. The many work too much, the few too little. Give the girls as well as the boys a chance. See that your animals have a variety of food. Comfort for the cow means cash for her owner. By constantly changing all good luck is dogged. A few rows of shade trees is a good investment. When you borrow money you borrow trouble. It's a poverty-stricken soul that loves only himself. Grow more oats; that will make them cheaper for you. The question is not more cows, but better cows. We grow too much heat and fat-producing food. There is nothing better than a man. Try to be one. There is no one medicine that will cure all diseases. Silk worms are so more lovely than other worms. The human ration is not always well balanced. We are a generation of fat, starch and sugar eaters. Set your plants first and water them after. The price is not always a guide to intrinsic value. Waste of trifles eats like interest money in hard times. In our eating, the appetite instead of our judgment leads. The sequel that is to bring up the rear is slowly coming. The wife chairman of the ways and means committee. The farmer's fall for want of advice; he gets all kinds. The best-fodder worker ought to be the most efficient one. A high selling price does not lessen the value of the milk. The best-known way for tobacco is in destroying insects. Don't borrow trouble; you'll have enough of your own. The best place to look for butter fat is on the top of the milk. Every farmer should be an investigator and experimenter. We have too many people trying to live by their wits. Make the farm a home—the pleasantest place in all the world. Children are born with tobacco juice and whisky in their veins. Some declare we have too many mischief teachers of agriculture. It is thought one-sixth of the land ought to be devoted to timber. There is no progress in the good-enough-for-the-present system. The needs of the soil should guide in the application of fertilizers. To be a successful farmer, you must keep up with the procession. When his stock is not improving, the farmer is falling behind. Fast trotters are popular, but Steady Pull can't be dispensed with. If a paper is made what it should be, farmers will soon "speak up." Canada's blades on old and worn out soils are said to not bear seed. Partisanish blinds the reason and makes the victim an easy prey. There is a good deal of repetition in the bulletins of the different states. Cost should represent the amount of labor there is in the article. Who is afraid of the blades of grass? They make instead of shed blood.

PARAGRAPHS

On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad. ANECDOTES, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS. Clipped and condensed for the Readers of The Globe.

The directors of the Banque Nationale de Montreal have decided to open a branch at Chatham on the 10th instant. Inland revenue receipts at Toronto for June amounted to $96,880, against $107,720 for the same time last year. The total for the fiscal year, ending June 30, were $1,715,818 against $1,042,583 for the previous year. At Winnipeg the political fight is going merrily on, becoming warmer every day. The leaders of the two parties are stamping the country from end to end. Indications point to a hot contest on the 23rd, election day. Mr. Oldboy: "And I want you to understand, once for all, I won't have the house filled with your 'dominant proteges.' What use on earth have you for that pet monkey in the next room?" Young Wife: "I really must have something to amuse me while you're so much away dear!" Apropos of the Belting Sea matter, it may be stated that the Government has arranged with the authorities the details of arbitration. The question being one in which Canada is chiefly interested, the Federal authorities have agreed to bear half the expenses incurred by the British Government. A French 'study of quality,' having obtained an audience with Pope Pius the Ninth, thanked him effusively for having granted him the honor of an audience. The Pope inquired how this had been done. "I procured a stocking belonging to your Holiness and put it on the foot," said the lady, "and it has been completely cured!" "Madam," replied the Pope, "fortune has been kind to you. You need only put on one of my stockings and your foot is healed, while I put on both my stockings every morning and I can hardly walk."

JINGLES OF HUMOR

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading. Literary Man—(to literary man)—I don't see why you are not more of a success. Literary Man—(Lafines). Friend—Why, I am sure you are industrious enough. Literary Man—Oh, yes, I am industrious enough, but the people are not. They are too lazy to read what I write. You understand? Miss Browning (of Boston)—Mr. Merrill, do you believe that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet? Mr. Merrill (of Chicago)—It would to me. Miss B. (incomely)—Why? Mr. B. (miserably)—Because I, have had fever. The minister was dining with the family and he said to Bobby, with an amused smile: "In afraid, Bobby, that you haven't the patience of Job." "No, sir," responded Bobby, who was hungry. "You Job was't always helped last. A little girl in New York was in the habit of going to the Episcopal church, and one day she came home and asked her mother if the prophets were hung on Christmas trees, for she heard the minister say: "On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." Mr. Gotsam—Here, sir, is some whisky which I have had in my cellar for twenty years. Cal. Kainstick—Well, well! How did it get lost? On the way home he inquired: "Mamma, does God make snakes?" "Why, yes, Eddie, I suppose he does," was the hesitating answer. Eddie, after a moment's thought: "Well, if he got a sniff of one once, I'd bet he'd never make another. Stumpy Orator—I don't think I take with the masses. Admiring Friend—Nonsense! You are winning golden opinions. Orator—Yes, it looks like it, when I speak night after night, and never receive the least applause. Friend—That's what I said. Silence is golden. "Yes," said the young doctor, proudly, "though I do have to stand like Pauline on a monument waiting for customers, I always manage finally to stand the monument on the patients. Clerk—Will one flannel shirt be enough, sir? Customer—Yes. I only expect to be gone a month.

The First Forged Bank Note. Sixty-four years after the establishment of the Bank of England, the first forged note was presented for payment, and to Richard William Vaughan, a Stafford linen-draper, belongs the paltry celebrity of having led the van in this new phase of crime in the year 1728. The records of his life do not show want, beggary, or starvation except him but a simple desire to see greater than he was. By one of the artists employed (and there were several engaged on different parts of the note) the discovery was made. The original had placed a number of these forged notes in the hands of a lady to whom he was attached, as a proof of his wealth. There is no telling how much longer bank notes might have been free from imitation had this man not shown with what ease they could be counterfeited. From this period forged notes became common. Vaughan was executed, and many another lost his neck for the same crime, before capital punishment for forging was abolished. Forty Thousand Dollars for an Opinion. It is not generally known that Edison received in one instance a fee of $10,000 for his opinion as an electrical expert. He was employed by the company organized to bore the Niagara power tunnel to examine the ground, study the conditions and plans, and give an opinion as to the feasibility and practicability of the work. He received the fee named. Other experts from various parts of the world were also consulted, and three were concentrated upon the plans as amount of expert knowledge such as has rarely been invoked for any one undertaking. The Duke Shaved the Barber. The eccentric Duke of Wharton found one day, after being shaved that he had no money to pay the barber. "It's no matter, your Grace," said the man. "That I hate to be in debt," rejoined the Duke; "therefore sit down in that chair, and I'll shave you, and then I shall be even." The barber yielded, and his Grace performed the operation in a creditable manner for a non-professional. "There, friend," he exclaimed, on finishing his task, "I am out of debt." Then he ran off laughing boisterously. Where Women Reign supreme. In the valley of the Barca in Abyssinia there is, according to a recently returned traveller, a community where the women without holding meetings or agitations of any kind, have emancipated themselves. All the women work hard while the men are idle, but by way of compensation the house and all that it contains belongs to the wife. At the least unkind word she turns the husband out at night, in storm or rain, and he can't come back until he makes amends by the gift of a cow. The wife considers it a duty to abuse the husband, and if she were weak enough to show any love for him in life or grief at his death she would be scorned by her tribe. The wife, without any reason may strike her husband and go, taking with her one-third of the joint possessions. The husband, unless he be travelling, may not live out of his tent, but the wife may go to her parents for a year and annual for the time her own marriage.
