Mrs. Curtiss Welcomes Husband After Long Aeroplane Flight

Back from Clouds Safe and Uninjured

CURTISS' AIRSHIP IN THE AIR, JUST AFTER STARTING FROM PUGHKEEPSIE, AFTER STOPPING FOR GASOLINE, ON THE WAY FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK CITY, 137 MILES.

New York, June 5.—The camera caught Glenn Curtiss kissing his wife just after his nerve-wrenching flight of 150 miles over the Hudson river from Albany to New York city. There were tears in the little woman's eyes as her husband threw his arms around her. Only a few moments before he had been but a tiny speck in the sky, beheld by hundreds of thousands.

The wives of the aeronauts suffer more than do their husbands, and the ancient verse, "Men must work and women must weep," applies to the men of the air as well as to men of the sea.

Mrs. Curtiss saw her husband start his flight at 7 o'clock in the morning. From the window of a special train she followed him with her eyes, every inch of the way. She saw him soar almost out of sight; she saw his darling twistings and turnings about the palisades; of the million eyes that watched him, as he swept down the Hudson; on a level with the high buildings, there was none with a gaze so intense as hers.

Through the city she dashed in an auto and over the ferry to Governor's Island, where he had alighted.

With a cry of joy she ran to him, and he kissed her a dozen times and whispered something that no one heard but she.

Quaintness characterizes the bonnets and caps for tiny babies and their older sisters. For the very little ones the close-fitting cap is of course the prettiest of all. Delightful little caps they are too, after fond mothers embroider, hemstitch, and featherstitch them. Some of the prettiest are made entirely of narrow valenciennes insertion and lace, set together by hand and trimmed with little bows and rosettes, and long ties of narrow pink, blue or white soft silk ribbon. Others are made of fluff with wide border around the face, or plain lawn with embroidered ruff turned back flat over the cap.

Even after the early baby stage is past these round bonnets are worn, but there is much variety for the older baby of two or three. Adorable little sunbonnets are seen made of the daintiest of sprigged materials. Coal-scuttle shapes are made of plique, duck or heavy linen, with soft frills of lace inside the brim, to soften the severe lines of the heavier materials.

As she grows older, the little woman is promoted to tiny lingerie and Panama hats. Both of these may be trimmed with little clusters of artificial flowers or ribbon, but the Panamas and straws in bowl crown with brim turned up or down, are more often trimmed with a sash of gay Roman striped ribbon. Gauze braids and tussans are made up with chiffon and roses for very best wear.

THIS DUKE IS NOT LOOKING FOR WIFE

Duc de Montpensir, Brother of Portugal's Dowager Queen, Comes to America Only to Hunt-- Criticises American Idea of Marriage and Divorce Laws--Has Had Many Exciting Adventures.

New York, June 4.—"Looking for an American wife? Ah, non, non—I will not look for any wife for ten years at least. You see, I am only twenty-six and no man should marry, I believe, until he is more than thirty-five, and has seen and known much of the world; as for women, they should marry in their teens and early twenties, and know nothing of the world."

The Duc de Montpensir, brother of the Queen of Portugal, cousin of the King of Spain and grandson of Louis Philippe of France, thus delivered himself as he puffed at a cigarette in his suite at the Hotel Knickerbocker.

He is one of the most distinguished looking foreigners who has visited our shores. He is more than six feet in height. Cultivated, fond of art, and having travelled in the widest parts of the globe, he tells tales of adventure that ill accord with his drawing-room bearing and salon manner.

"Here," he said, as he doubled his right arm, "there is steely strength, and I am a skilled huntsman. I love the chase better than all else. I am a traveller; I am a sportsman."

His Views of Life's Work.

"Have you no occupation?" he was asked.

"Not as Americans view work," he replied. "Of course I read much and study. I also write incidents of my travels, but I am gathering strength and storing up experience for my life, which will not begin to be lived until my marriage. We men of France," he continued, "marry for all time. We go along until we feel that it is time for us to settle down, and then we make a business of wife hunting. We look for a wife that will meet our requirements as a house may suit our tastes and needs. We might admire a Swiss chalet; we might be impressed with the beauty of a Japanese home, but neither would be to our taste as a permanent residence.

"The same with women. We might see an amusing creature here; we might fancy a well-dressed girl or a clever one there, but when we Frenchmen marry we think of the girl that is to be with us always; the woman who is to perpetuate our line, and so looking, we choose carefully and think of the obligation as a serious, profound one.

Detests Divorce Laws.

"Americans are youthful, and in memories; they are governed more or less by passing whims, and many an American marriage is taken up on the same principle. But young men and women are not so responsible as your abominable divorce laws. Marriage is too much of a duty of citizenship to be treated in a purely romantic fashion. Romance is well, beautiful, charming, but in the building of homes it should be only a part of the scheme of things. I have a great many theories on the choosing of life partners that I cannot talk about, but which perhaps some day I shall carry out in my own case."

The Duke has large black eyes, with heavy lashes, that give him the look of a dreamer and artist. He, indeed, would be a "catch," from the standpoint of looks, for a title-hunting American heiress. But he is not seeking heiresses; he is looking, he laughingly remarked, "for bigger game." In fact, he visits us for our wild Rockies and mountains, where he hopes to carry away many trophies.

Has Had Hairbreadth Escapes.

"Maybe I'll leave myself behind," he said, "for I have had some pretty narrow escapes in my expeditions. Once I was nearly killed by a drove of elephants, one of which I had shot and fatally wounded. They made a rush at me after I had fired my last shot and had it not been for an English hunter near by I would have fallen under the onrush. In China, too, I was attacked after I had shot a wild buffalo. The great brute, infuriated by a fatal wound, turned on me, and I ran, having no time to fire, and I could hear him scarcely a yard behind me. My wits saved me. I swerved suddenly from the path and fell on my side, while the brute rushed on and fell twenty yards ahead, dead from the wounds. I must be saved for some special purpose," he continued, "for aside from adventures in the jungle and forests, I have been

BLACK OPAL SOCIAL CRAZE

Rare Stone Which Has Proved Boon to Australian Miners in Great Demand Among Elite.

The Black Opal, though comparatively a new species, has proven a wonderful boon to the miners of Australia, whence it comes. It is a known fact that while the mines are working day and night trying to supply London, Paris and New York, where the social leaders have discovered that the stone is not alone lucky, but in good form. As a result of the social craze for the new gem, the large jewelers of New York have been unable to secure enough good specimens to keep pace with the demand, and near by every consignment is sold long before it reaches America.

Opals is found in an amorphous state and never crystallizes; in fact from the condition of the deposits where the mineral is found, the indications are that the substance was once a fluid. This beautiful mineral varies from 5 to 6, in hardness, has the specific gravity of 2 to 2.3, is glassy in lustre and translucent from a slight to a very high degree.

Up to 1880 the Czernowitz mines of Hungary were practically the only source from which the gem market received its supply of opals. Honduras fire opals and Mexican varieties were occasionally to be had, but these stones were irregular in quality and are not cherished by the social queens.

DANISH LINER ASHORE.

Christiansand, Norway, June 4.—The Danish liner United States, bound from Copenhagen to New York, ran ashore at six o'clock this morning in Christiansand Fjord. A steamer has gone to take off the passengers.

In five automobile accidents where others were injured and have come out unhurt.

The Duke was a first lieutenant in the Spanish army, and served during the recent trouble with the Arabs. That he has a comfortable fortune is evidenced by the fact that he travels in the most expensive fashion and into the most inaccessible parts of the globe. He inherited the title and wealth of his grandfather, and is, therefore, much richer than his brother, the Duc d'Orleans.

SOCIETY IN THE KITCHEN

Newport Social Leaders Win Renown by Inventing Dishes for Educated Palates—Cooking New Fad.

Newport, R. I., June 4.—Newport society leaders who have won social fame in the parlor and on the piazza this season are seeking glories in the kitchen.

A new fad has seized the fashionable resort and the women now strive for superiority in the invention of some new dish or pastry concoction.

If the young men of the colony are hungry for old-fashioned Washington pie they invade the beautiful villa of Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, new Boreman, of New Orleans, who is recognized as the one woman of the colony who has succeeded in bringing back to life this recipe. In fact Mrs. Whitehouse's success with the dish and the popularity of her home was one of the main factors in bringing the new fad into being.

Mrs. Whitehouse is a famous beauty, having won her husband when she was queen of the New Orleans Mardi Gras. But the beauty of taste in her pie is bringing her as much fame as her personal charms, and her many guests keep her busy providing the new luxury.

Cheese Dreams Winners.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, once Grace Carley, sought one rainy day to give her beautiful children a treat and has become expert in preparing "cheese dreams." The feature of this new dish is that the dreamers are the direct opposite of those produced by Welsh rarebit.

Then not content with the "cheese dreams," Mrs. Harriman makes a new variety of ginger ice cream which her many friends say is far more delicious than anything which the famous Newport caterers have produced.

Mrs. Philip Lydig, who was the beautiful Rita d'Acosta, has gained the lead so far in the race for culinary prominence by providing some of the finest almond salads which the educated palates of the society folk have ever enjoyed. Many of the women have beseeched her in vain to give them the recipe for this dainty dish, but she only smiles. Many have tried to imitate it, but so far without success.

It was Mrs. Lydig who scored such a hit late last season by her invention of branched peachnuts, the centres filled with toasted muchrooms and chopped almonds.

Social Leaders Won Over.

Society has not forgotten this famous dessert, and Mrs. Lydig will no doubt be forced to serve it many times during the coming summer season.

Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, whose husband has taken the Pinard Cottage No. 5 for the season, made some tempting raisin fudge for her little boy recently. Some of her many friends made an informal call just as Mrs. Widener was cutting the cake from the tins. They insisted upon a taste of the fudge and as a result Mrs. Widener is now looked upon as the fudge authority in the Newport colony. Many other society women, anxious not to be outdone, have taken themselves to their kitchens and spend much time each day experimenting with new dishes with which to surprise their week-end guests of the early season.

BATHURST.

Mr. and Mrs. Colin Nevill will shortly leave to reside in Dalhousie.

Mrs. J. Ferguson went to Caracquet last week called by the death of her nephew, Mr. L. Young.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Helen R. Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bishop to Mr. James B. H. Storey which will take place at St. George's church on June 15 at nine-thirty in the evening.

Dr. C. J. Veniot returned from Laval University, Montreal, on Monday. Dr. Veniot is being warmly congratulated on the high honors with which he passed his recent medical examinations.

Very general sorrow is felt by the many friends of Mr. R. H. Lee Young at his sudden death which occurred at his home in Caracquet last week. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Annie Ferguson of Bathurst Village and five children for whom much sympathy is expressed.
