UBC Senate Opens Meetings

VANCOUVER (CUP) — The senate of the University of British Columbia opened its meetings to visitors Wednesday, but space restrictions will limit the audience to 30.

The open meetings are the climax of a year-long fight which started when UBC first elected student senators, who later threatened to quit if the meetings weren't opened.

Before accepting the decision by a 35-24 vote, the senate defeated motions to bar newsmen and non-students from their meetings.

Al Birnie, editor of the student newspaper, the Ubssey, said the move represents no advance as meetings were effectively open when student senators reported on them to their constituency.

"This move in no way increases student participation or control over the functioning of the university, the major question students are concerned with today," he said.

UBC joins Simon Fraser University as the only two universities in Canada with open senate meetings. McGill University is reportedly preparing to open its meetings. In all cases, senates frequently retreat to incamera sessions for important matters.

Someday
I'll be an actress

or a writer

or a musician

or an international spy

Before you take Broadway by storm, you'll have to learn to be an actress. That's common sense. It also stands to reason that becoming a mature and graceful woman will be easier if you learn certain things now, like proper posture, speech and manners. There are some other things, too, that'll make femininity easier. Like Tampax tampons. The sanitary protection that was developed by a doctor to be worn internally. Tampax tampons are made of pure surgical cotton. The silken-smooth container-applicator assures hygienic insertion and easy disposal. Your hands need never touch the tampon. And there'll be no more pins, pads and belts to limit what you can wear. Try Tampax tampons. They're one of the little things that just might make it easier to become a famous woman.

Students Tent On Principal's Lawn

KINGSTON (CUP) -- Twenty Queen's students spent last weekend in a tent city pitched on the University principal's lawn. The sleep-out was planned as an attempt to dramatize the housing shortage in Kingston.

Some 50 or 60 people spent Friday and Saturday nights discussing the housing problem, rent control and the university.

Michael Carley, spokesman for the Student Emergency Housing Committee, claimed success: "It drew attention to a very serious housing crisis not only in the academic community but also in Kingston. As well, it provoked a very lively debate in the media and forced the university to take steps it might not have taken."

Principal John J. Deutsch, away for the weekend, had earlier termed the camp-in "ridiculous" and said he would remain unswayed by "stunts".

The committee wants the university to provide more student housing in order to prevent landlord victimization of low income tenants. The Queen's Journal, student newspaper at Queen's, has uncovered cases of landlords evicting low income families to provide space for higher renting student accommodation.

Americans Educated

WINDSOR (CUP) -- University of Windsor students took advantage of their strategically placed campus last week to do an education job on the millions of Americans who pass it annually.

During frosh week, students painted the slogan "American fascists" on the wall facing the Ambassador Bridge entrance, one of the largest ports of entry into Canada from the U.S.

So far there have been no indications the Americans are taking the slogan to heart. Windsor authorities have had no complaints.
