

Although he has been compelled by his subject to deal with the difficult and perilous subject of the prophetic dates, it can, we believe, be justly said, that he has never lost sight of the words of our Saviour, with regard to His personal advent, that "of that day and hour knoweth no man." And while it is true that his argument if accepted, must constrain one to the belief the end draweth near, it is to be remembered that our Lord Himself said that so much knowledge as this would be attainable, as the time of His coming should approach. "When ye see these things coming to pass, know ye that He is nigh, even at the doors."

We heartily commend 'LIGHT FOR THE LAST DAYS,' especially in connection with the former work of Mr. Guinness, to the careful study of students of the Prophecies. If we mistake not, both preterists and futurists will find it a task of uncommon difficulty to disprove Mr. Guinness' argument for that old historical system of interpretation, which until the present day has been so generally adopted by Protestant expounders of the prophecies.

THE CHURCH GUARDIAN :—

This work compares in a more full and accurate manner than has previously been attempted—in the light of astronomic and archæologic discovery—the predictions of Bible Prophecy with the great facts of the history of the last twenty-five centuries. It demonstrates the point now reached in the Divine programme of universal history, and considers the character of the coming kingdom, as well as the order of events which will, according to Scripture, introduce it. The authors argue strongly for the pre-millennial theory, and claim that it was not until the 17th century that the doctrine that the second advent of Christ would precede the millennium was broached. The book will be found most attractive, instructive and interesting, even to those who may not be able to accept fully the conclusions arrived at. Certainly there are many "signs of the times" which seem to indicate that we are living in the last days of this dispensation: and the more this is realized the more deeply absorbing does the question discussed in this work become.

TORONTO GLOBE :—

"A bulky volume of some 700 pages and discusses a wide range of kindred subjects in connection with the not distant close of the present dispensation, and Christ's Second Advent. Written carefully and breathes throughout a devout and reverent spirit; the authors have evidently studied the whole subject with the greatest care and the deepest interest. They wrestle vigorously with the knottiest questions, and have a solution more or less plausible for the most formidable difficulties."
