Mrs. (Dr.) Eaton and daughter, of Montreal, are visiting in town, guests of the former's sister, Mrs. J. D. Chambers. They will probably remain in Wolfville two or three months.

Capt. M. D. Cogswell arrived at his old home in Port Williams last week to spend a few weeks' vacation. Capt. Cogswell has for a number of years been in command of the Bankentine Persia. The vessel was recently sold at Mobile, and Capt. Cogswell is now enjoying a well-earned rest before assuming another command.

Her you felt quite sure that her mother had selected her clothes. That is not just the way the girls at the Empire lunch room, No. 5, expressed it. Kitty Benham, who had always queued it over the force of black frocked, white aproned waitresses, patted her marbled locks placidly and remarked:

'Well, his nibs sure picked a lemon in that.'

'That,' otherwise Sally Loftus, sat in the cashier's booth near the entrance arranging small change in neat piles. Her head, crowned by brown locks, parted demurely and almost severely in the middle, was bent above her work, but her quiet glance traveled to the group of gossiping girls. 'Incidentally they took in other things. At one table the ice had melted in the butter dish and water trickled over the mahogany surface. On another table the glass sugar bowl was nearly empty. A salt napkin and butter plate had been left at a third table.'

The girl who looked as if her grandmother bought her clothes fingered the round buttons on her queer cashmere blouse, and then her well-manicured nails tapped gently against the old-fashioned brooch at her throat. Inside the chaise circle of gold-reposed braided strands of hair the exact shade of the girl's. Her glance finally rested on the sloping shoulders of the young man who stood by the big plate-glass window, where a white aproned youth poured a stream of white dough on hot griddles.

The young man, who was Ralph Putnam, son of the owner of the Empire circuit of lunch rooms, started back to the cashier, and as he passed the new cashier he flung her a glance that was almost appealing. She met him with an oddly reassuring and fully understanding. He brightened perceptibly, but as he passed the group of girls near the coffee counter the light died out of his eyes once more.

Kitty Benham smiled up at him familiarly.

'Where'd you get that Christmas tree ornament, Ralph? There's one thing sure. You needn't worry about any of the boys copping her out. She's had her fortune read 'old maid' by every clairvoyant in town or miss my guess.'

'Her father went to school with mine. She comes of very good family,' he said apologetically.

'Gee, but it's fine to have a pal!' was Kitty's contemptuous reply.

Ralph wandered into the kitchen. More than ever he hated the lunch room and everything connected with it. And in truth he was not entirely to blame. His father had sent him from private school to college, where he had taken the classical courses, and then his somewhat unreasonable parent could not understand why his bookish son could not walk, diploma in hand, into an Empire lunch room and manage it as well as the other young men in the same position of responsibility who had served their apprenticeship, even to cooking griddle cakes in the window. Ralph had trouble auditing his accounts, settling quarrels in the kitchen and preserving some semblance of discipline among the pert waitresses.

All this—and more—Sally Loftus learned before the breakfast rush set in. It was a soggy day, and gradually disorient seemed to permeate the room. A tired looking telegrapher in bedraggled skirts was arguing with a waitress because her toast was burned. The waitress replied tartly that some toils expected a lot for so cents. Ralph stood helplessly at the table, afraid to take a hand in the argument, but when the waitress finally dounced to the coffee counter he stepped in awkwardly and told the patron he would bring her some fresh toast. After he had done this he paused wearily at Sally's elbow. She crossed her hands demurely on the marble ledge and said quietly:

'I was so glad to see you reprimand that waitress. She was very impudent, and we ought to make every customer feel that she wants to breakfast here regularly.' Don't you think so?

Ralph started. He had not called down the saucy waitress. He had merely tried to undo the mischief she had wrought. Now he wished he had scolded her before the customer.

'We have a lot of regulars,' he said in the same apologetic tone he

Anemia—poor blood is the cause of most of the misery which is the lot of the poor.

A Rheumatic Wreck. AFTER HOSPITAL TREATMENT FAILED DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS CURED HIM.

I suffered the greatest agony from rheumatism. Leading physicians prescribed many medicines, but with unsatisfactory results. I was compelled to go to an hospital, but even the treatment there failed. Then I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and to-day I am a well man.

These words were spoken by Gifford L. Forbes when interviewed at his home in Port Maitland, N. S. Mr. Forbes is a fisherman and had always been very healthy, until some three years ago while fishing off Newfoundland he was seized with a very severe attack of rheumatism. In his own words he says: 'I was fishing on the Grand Banks in the spring of 1903 when I was stricken with rheumatism. I could not work or sleep, and the pain was almost unbearable. My case became so serious that I had to be landed and for weeks I lay in a Cape Breton hospital as helpless as a cripple. The hospital doctors prescribed different remedies, but they did not cure me. I then left the hospital and was taken home with rheumatism apparently completely fastened upon me. Day and night I suffered. Nothing I did for the trouble seemed to help me and I became despondent and down-hearted. Then a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was skeptical, but my friend persuaded me to try them, with the result that you see to-day. I am fully cured and have not since had even a twinge of that dreaded affliction. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I urge all rheumatic sufferers to try them.'

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mr. Forbes because they struck straight at the root and cause of his crippling rheumatism. They don't act on the mere symptoms like ordinary medicine. They don't act on the bowels. They do only one thing, but they do it well, they actually make new blood. In that way they root out all common blood diseases like anemia, headaches and backaches, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, and the restless ailments of girls and women who suffer unspeakably when the richness and regularity of their blood becomes disturbed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Age of Farm Horses. Observations in a number of localities widely scattered showed that the horses now at work on farms average pretty well along in years. This statement is based on observation and the inquiries which are received in regard to horses. And, further, it is a fair conclusion from the state of the horse market in the past few years. Owners have been under constant temptation to sell their young horses because prices have been good and the old ones would often serve a little longer. There is no surplus of good farm work horses—not fancy, but useful—right now, nor is there likely to be an overflow of the young stock in the future. Money looks good to all of us, and while young horses sell as they do now there will be a tendency to let them go unless absolute necessity requires them to be kept.

Just Where the Danger Lies. In many catarrh snuffs, cocaine is the largely used ingredient; in consequence the drug habit may be formed. To be really cured of catarrh, it is so quickly, safely and pleasantly, doctors say Catarrhose is superior to any other remedy. It heals sore places, stops discharge, prevents hawking, spitting and bad breath—does this by first destroying the cause of the disease. Catarrhose is no experiment, it is a tried and proven cure that is guaranteed for bronchitis, throat, nose and lung catarrh. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00 at all dealers.

Why Burn Your Toes? Stop using Acid Corn Salves, use Putnam's Painless Extractor; it costs a little more, but it's far the best. Use only 'Putnam's'—25c. at all dealers.

People who really knew nothing about it used to say that elephants never lie down to sleep. This is not true at all. They have been known to stand for twelve months without lying down to sleep; this is regarded as want of confidence in their keepers, and of longing to regain their liberty. For when they are perfectly at ease, and reconciled to their fate, they will lie down on their sides and sleep peacefully.
