MISCELLANEOUS.

Mamma (to Walter who has just returned from his first experience with a fishing rod).—What, back so soon?
Walter.—Yes'm, I thought I'd come home. The worms were so nervous I couldn't get 'em on the hook.

Minard's Liniment cures Burns, etc.

Outside the dining room door. Page-boy discovered eating last piece of pate de foie gras.
Master (more in sorrow than in anger).—James! James! I won't have that.
James (bolting the last morsel).—I'm afraid you can't, sir. It's all gone.

A Family Medicine.

Mrs. D. Williams, Gooderham, P. O., Ont., writes:—"I have used Hagar's Yellow Oil for burns, and it has healed, sprains and bruises, and it has always given satisfaction. It is a splendid family medicine, it can be put to so many different uses." Price 25c.

"That man who has been bringing those poems here for several days is a finished writer, is he not?" asked the assistant editor.
"Well, he is now," replied the wild-eyed editor-in-chief, coming into the room, rolling down his sleeves, and taking up his shears once again.
"Keep the head cool and the bowels open" is sensible advice to follow during the warm weather. If the bowels do not move regularly once a day use Luxa-Liver Pills. They are easy to take, and do not gripe, weaken or sicken. Price 25c.

"It appears that the Moorish pretender is fighting for the purpose of winning the throne of Morocco from the present Sultan's brother, a prince with but one eye named Mulai Mohammed."
"Would it inconvenience you too much to mention the name of his other eye?"

Toothache 2 Days.
Mrs. Fred. Needen, Eel River Crossing, N. B., says: "I had toothache for two days and could get nothing to stop it until I got Low's Toothache Gum, which quickly cured me." Price 10c.

He was mad when he gazed on her hat,
The dainty creation she wore:
He said he'd never seen such a flat Sort of tea-tray arrangement before.
He swore that the thing made him ill
And doubled him up in a knot:
But, ye gods! when she showed him the bill
He fainted away on the spot.

The Kind-Hearted Venetians.

A writer in a Protestant exchange describing a visit to Venice tells of arriving there with her party in the midst of a cold and chilling rain-storm which was most disagreeable and discomfiting. The treatment accorded to her and her friends by some residents of Venice shows that the city were Cardinal Sarto—our present Pope—presided as patriarch contains nature even as kindly as his; and the stories told of his courtesy to all, and his loving kindness to the poor and wretched of Venice and the surrounding country are many and beautiful. But here is how the traveller writes of her friendly Venetians:—

"One incident of our experience in the storm is especially worthy of notice, for it is a beautiful instance of genuine disinterested kindness in the midst of the world's selfishness. As we stood in the pitiless rain and furious wind, in pools of water on the cold streets, waiting for some relief, and wondering how we were to be rescued, we at length found some shelter in a neighboring doorway. Soon a woman came down from the room above, her face beaming with sweet sisterly kindness, and invited us all up to her small sitting room. There were about twelve of us. And she and her sister did all they could for us on account of the present rain and cold. They brought us little hand stoves in the shape of baskets made of carbonware and filled with glowing coals and with these we got some feeling restored to our drenched and benumbed hands and feet. In trying to get my luggage put under a turpaulin, which was almost wrenched by the wind out of the hands of the men who were trying to tie over the luggage on the pier, my hand was hurt and bleeding freely. Our kind benefactress, as soon as she saw it, brought a bandage and bound it up. And they brought us hot coffee, and seemed to consider it a happy privilege to relieve and comfort us. And when we were leaving this hospitable shelter they utterly refused to accept any compensation for what they had done for us. They said it was per carita, forswear charity or love. We thanked them again and again; and with the most beautifully sincere smiles they assured us it was all per carita. It was the house of the Vicar of the Church and Convent of Zucelle, and these were the women who cared for his humble dwelling. The rector, an elderly gentleman with a very refined and benignant face, came in while we were there, and welcomed us most kindly. Surely such kindness will not fail of its reward—I was a stranger and ye took me in." A day or two afterwards some of us went over to see them and to thank them again, talking with us a pretty flower vase which we gave to the two sisters as a memento of the recipients of their beautiful kindness. "So we have had some experiences of Venice which do not ordinarily fall to the lot of travelers."

SUNDAY.
Select one soul for whose conversion you wish to pray in a most special manner, and then pray daily that the Most Precious Blood of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ may fall upon and save that one soul.

My God! with that surpassing love
Thou livest all on earth!
How good the least good is to Thee,
How much each soul is worth!
MONDAY.
By good example, by great gentleness and kindness, attract that one soul to Christ. Lose no favorable opportunity, by conversation, Catholic reading, acts of charity and self-sacrifice, to gain that one soul for whom Jesus died on the cross.

O Faith! thou workest miracles
Upon the hearts of men,
Choosing thy home in those same hearts
We know no other when.

TUESDAY.
Do not lose hope if you do not at once succeed. Remember that patience is a missionary virtue as well as zeal. "S" is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the earth, and should sleep, and rise, night and day, and the seed should spring, and grow up whilst he knoweth not." (St. Mark iv. 26.)

O gift of gifts! O grace of faith!
My God! how can it be
That Thou, Who hast discerning love,
Shouldst give that love to me?
There was a place, there was a time,
Whether by night or day,
Thy spirit came and left that gift,
And went upon His way.

WEDNESDAY.
Pray fervently that God the Holy Ghost, the Spirit of Truth and Love

Who desires that all nations and peoples should be brought into one faith, will enlighten our understanding and strengthen our will, that we may work zealously work and pray for the conversion of our beloved country.
How can they live, how will they die,
How bear the cross of grief,
Who have not got the light of faith,
The courage of belief?
The crowd of cares, the weightiest cross,
Seem trifles less than light,
Earth looks so little and so low
When faith shines full and bright.

THURSDAY.
What a privilege to help our fellow-countrymen to believe the doctrines which our Lord taught to His apostles, and to accept the means of salvation which through their successors He administers unto men's souls!
Ah, grace! into unlikeliest hearts
It is thy boast to come,
The glory of thy light to find
In darkest spots a home.

FRIDAY.
One soul is worth the blood of the Redeemer. God loves all that exists, and in the immense family of His creatures His heart makes no exclusion.
For the love of God is broader
Than the measure of man's mind,
And the heart of the Eternal
Is most wonderfully kind.

SATURDAY.
Pray that all mankind may be one. God loves non-believers and families, homes and nations, and races and peoples. Pray, then, that all may belong to that one fold, of which Christ is the one Shepherd, and may go onward by the one Way of Truth of life everlasting.
Oh happy, happy that I am!
If thou canst be, O Faith!
The treasure that thou art in life,
What wilt thou be in death?

Reckless Rumors Denied.
Father Maturin Declares That He Has Found in the Catholic Church all He Desired.
The following letters appear in The New York Sun:—
To the Editor of The Sun:—Several years ago one of the best known of the Ritualistic clergymen, the Rev. Basil W. Maturin, one of the "Cowley Fathers," who had been rector of St. Clement's Church, Philadelphia, became a Catholic. Of late some industrious person has been busy spreading rumors that he was dissatisfied in the Catholic Church, and statements to that effect have appeared in the diocesan paper of a High Church Western diocese. As I had known Father Maturin very well when we were both Anglicans, I brought the matter to his attention and have received from him the following letter, which I am sure will be read with great interest by his many friends in America.

Jesse Albert Lyoke.
Ventnor, Isle of Wight, Aug. 11,
Dear Mr. Locke—You ask me if there is any truth in the rumors which you say are very persistent in America that I am inclined to return to the Church of England. I am sure such rumors cannot have their origin from any of my American friends who have known me or heard from me since I became a Catholic, and how any persons can take it upon themselves to say such things merely because they imagine them or wish them to be true, I cannot imagine. If they say them in order to influence others from doing as I have done I think their conduct can only be characterized by using a very ugly word. However as you ask me, I will have to answer you: There is absolutely not one fragment of truth in such statements. I could not imagine any conceivable circumstances inducing me even to consider for a moment such a step. In fact I have found in the Catholic Church all that I desire, and the question has for the last six years ceased to be a "question" with me any more. I am perfectly happy and at peace in the Roman Catholic Church. From the day I made up my mind and went to Banamont to be received, the English Church melted before my eyes, and the church has never taken substantial form again. As Newman said, "I went by, and lo it was gone; I sought it and its place could nowhere be found."

B. W. Maturin,
St. Mary's Church, London, July 25.

A writer in the Rivus Historique for July-August who has had access to Spanish diplomatic correspondence, clearly reveals that the late Pope Leo XIII. made earnest endeavors to prevent the war between the United States and Spain. "His

Christain and righteous state-manship is conspicuous in this effort," says the Boston Herald, "and it will be one of his exaltations in history." In a telegram from the Spanish minister to the Vatican to the minister of foreign affairs at Madrid, Cardinal Rampolla speaking in behalf of the Pope, says, among other things: "The President [of the United States] is desirous of adjusting the difficulty but he is dragged along by Congress." That statement is quite correct," comments the Herald. "President McKinley was dragged into that war against his better judgment by Congress, by hot-headed jingoes, of whom Theodore Roosevelt was one of the most unscrupulous and commercial interests which expected to make money out of a war. All the truth about this affair will come out in good time, and there is no reason for Americans to expect it will redound to the honor of their government." President McKinley was "dragged" into it as he was "dragged into other actions he might more creditably have refused to have part in."

Items of Catholic Interest.
It was understood to have been the intention of the late Cardinal Vaughan, says the "London Chronicle" to invite Cardinal Gibbons to preach at the dedication of the new Westminster Cathedral. The American Cardinal must pass pretty close to London on his way back to Baltimore, the Cathedral authorities would be well advised in expediting the preparation of the interior sufficiently to permit of his delivering an address. As he is now verging on the seventies, he is not likely to cross the Atlantic very often in the future, and the present may be the last opportunity that Londoners will have of listening to the American Cardinal.

According to a press cablegram from Rome, Pius X. has adopted Leo XIII's pet, a white dove, which the late Holy Father used to feed at a certain hour every morning. The Pope allows it in his room, where it perches on his writing desk, and like Leo, he daily saves some bread crumbs for its food.

Without atoning any undue importance to the eulogies which the death of Leo XIII. has elicited, says the "London Catholic Times," it may we think, be confidently asserted that his policy has smoothed the way to the open acceptance of the Catholic Church by the whole world as the unexcelled standard for humanity.

The French Government has suppressed the salaries of four priests for the crime of preaching to their flock in the Breton tongue—the only tongue they can understand:

Rev. Dr. Casartelli, a Catholic priest, has been appointed professor of Eastern languages at Owens College, Manchester, a strictly Protestant institution.

The New York Freeman's Journal says: "If the little, bigoted, unscrupulous anti-Catholic sheet published somewhere near New York cannot understand why we have of late paid no attention to its sayings, the story told of the Rev. Lyman Beecher, father of Henry Ward Beecher, may serve as a headlight to the understanding. Some one asked the old man if he was going to reply to an attack from a certain one of his opponents. He answered: 'I will not.' I was once lingering along a country road reading a book. A little animal ran out of a bush pile. I threw the book at it. The animal escaped; the book was unapproachable. I left it there and hastened away, resolving that I would never again throw a book at a skunk."
