The Eye.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash."
The eye is a delicate and ingenious organ, by which man is enabled to see. The normal man has two eyes which are placed just beneath his lofty brow and this number enables him to see enough to keep him mad most of the time.

The eye is composed of a large number of parts, including the iris, the retina and the optic nerve. The eye is not detachable and is more exclusive than our best American society, resenting the intrusion even of foreign bodies. The optic nerve connects the eye with the brain, thus enabling tourists not only to see new countries, but to remember them briefly. A good many eyes, mostly owned and operated by chorus ladies, have entirely too much nerve, however.

There are many colors of eyes, including brown, black and blue and

BANISH BILE!

A bilious condition of the system is the result of inaction of the liver, often causing severe headache through the eyes and temples, culminating sometimes in nausea and vomiting, which is frequently followed by a bilious diarrhea.
Abbey's Effervescent Salt, when taken as directed, stimulates the peptic glands of the stomach and increases the contraction of its muscles from above downward. This action is communicated to the intestines and increases the flow of the intestinal juice, thus stimulating the ducts of the liver to pour out the bile, when it can be carried downward by the laxative action of the Salt, instead of remaining to clog up the liver and flow back into the stomach.

Thus, if a person who is subject to Biliousness and Bilious Headache will use Abbey's Effervescent Salt, the natural action of the Stomach, liver and intestine will be kept up and no bile can accumulate in the system.

sometimes, in case of trouble, red, green and yellow. The color of the eye hasn't anything to do with its capacity to see, although sometimes when an eye is red enough, it can see snakes in Ireland and pink elephants in St. Louis. But some colors of eyes are a good deal easier to look at than others.

Eyes are used in a vast variety of ways of which the most popular are reading sight-seeing and husband-getting. The eye is supposed to be used for seeing only, but many young women have trained their eyes to talk in the most eloquent and persuasive fashion.

Eyes are so useful that men who have no eyes are considered about unfortunate. They must make their living by weaving baskets, tuning pianos or by acting as chiefs of police in a wide open town. This latter job is a very fine one for a blind man, as a chief of police who can go through an administration without seeing any signs of gambling can frequently make large sums of money.

Blind men are happier than deaf men anyway. This is partly because they do not have to look at car signs, billboards, other people's automobiles and women's hats.

Eyes are very delicate and get out of repair easily. They must then be helped out with glasses—the kind that hook over the ears and the kind that straddle the nose. The latter are much more stylish and fall off every fifteen minutes at the rate of $9.75 per fall.
Man is well protected with eyes in front, but rely on automobile horns behind. Man's eyes are so placed that he cannot see his own face, which accounts for the many startling varieties of whiskers which are worn.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Will you please tell me how to reply to an invitation to a wedding and reception?" inquired Harry.
"A written reply is not necessary as your presence is an acceptance. If you cannot attend you should send your cards to the parents of the bride said his father.

In Memoriam

MR. JAMES CLANCE.

James Clance, an old and respected citizen, passed away to the great beyond at Holyrood on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock. The deceased who was born at Ryerhead, Hr. Grace, 86 years ago, had enjoyed good health up to Twelfth Day, when he was stricken down with sickness. Despite the constant and untiring attention of kind friends he never rallied from the severe stroke. Rev. Father Finn administered the last sacrament and visited and consoled him in his serious illness. Mr. Clance belongs to an age and chapter of Newfoundland history fast fading away. In the good old days when men were their own masters he served as quarter-master and master-watch with that famous and successful seal-killer, the late Capt. Daniel Greene; and when the tally-board was an index of a man's work with the hauling rope and the punt, he was a top-notch. Later, he served in positions of trust and responsibility with the late Capt. Smart, N. Hanrahan, T. Fitzgerald, D. O'Neill, J. Keefe and T. Green—men who have carved their names in Newfoundland history as famous cod and seal killers, and contributed largely to the building up of those industries. Later he engaged as a mariner and for many years his home was on the deep, and still later we find him and his three sons carrying on a successful planting business at Dead Island, Labrador. His three sons, Thomas, Patrick and Michael emigrated to the U. S. A. some years ago. Thomas and Michael are engaged as fishing skippers out of Boston, and Patrick is serving in the U. S. A. navy. His wife has predeceased him thirty years and he decided to spend the last years of his life with his daughter, the wife of Mr. R. Dwyer, J.P., School Teacher, with whom he has lived for almost nine years. His funeral, which was well attended, took place on Monday morning from his late residence to the Church of Holy Cross where High Mass and Office was sung for the repose of his soul by the Right Rev. Monsignor Veitch, P.P., celebrant, Rev. W. P. Finn, P.P., deacon, and Rev. R. M. Sheen, P.P., subdeacon, and thence to the central cemetery where the remains were interred in the family plot. Undertaker N. J. Murphy came from the city by Saturday evening's train and brought with him a handsome casket in which to enclose the remains. He had charge of the funeral arrangements and carried them out in a praiseworthy manner. Rev. M. P. Dwyer, P.P., of Bonavista, a grandson of the deceased was absent at Sweet Bay when his message reached Bonavista, and so was unavoidably absent from the funeral. To the three sons, daughter and sisters of the deceased, we offer our sincere sympathy. Requiescat in Pace.

Tom Jenkins.

He doesn't do nothin' but fight in a trench.
No special heroics are his: The deeds that he's doin' are plain as his looks.
And he's got no glorified phiz.
But he is a digger that no one can touch.
A sniper that no one can beat; And when the Boches rush us, as sometimes they do, His hulk is the last to retreat.
With mind ever radiant he's doin' his "bit."
His blue eyes forever aglow; He serves the rum issue with livelier wit.
Than anything heard at a show.
His presence is sunshine, his song and his fun
Dispel all our worry and care.
Yes, when you hear laughter ring out on the night
You know that Tom Jenkins is there.
He sings and the dug-out grows misty, his strain
Takes hold on your heart as he sings.
You slip into dreamin'—then presto, he'll change!
And mirth on his hearers he springs.
'Tis good to be near him, his soul is a font.
Of hope that inspires, that cheers; A spirit of safety reigns at the post
When Jenkins amongst us appears.
Officialdom never may know him, perhaps.
He may never win a V. C.
But down in the trenches he stands for the class
Whose presence assures victory!

Wedding Bells.

There took place at Caplin Cove, Random, on January 8th, a marriage in which Victor Churchill, of Seward's Mill, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Miss Emily J. Whalen, of Caplin Cove, daughter of Mr. Simon Whalen. The bride was accompanied to the Church by John Churchill, brother of the groom. She wore a suit of cream voile and a bridal veil; they had a bouquet of flowers and ribbon sash, red, white and blue. After returning from the church they held an enjoyable tea at her father's residence and invited all her friends to attend. Two days later they returned to their future home, Seward's Mill, and there they held their wedding and had an enjoyable time. We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Churchill on entering in of their newly wedded life and wish them much success in the future.

If Your Throat is Husky, Catarrh May be Starting.

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach and does little but harm digestion. It's altogether different with Catarrhoxone—it cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrhoxone, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrhoxone. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the inhaler, it lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes, 25c. and 50c., sold everywhere.

Your Boys and Girls.

One family I know has solved the problem of a playroom for the children by using a part of the large living room and yet making it seem like a separate room. At right angles to one of the long walls bookshelves have been built, shutting off a corner of the room and making it a sort of alcove.
Back to back to the cases for the children's books and for their toys. There are low chairs, and in a good light by the window, a broad low table around which the little ones gather with their painting, sewing, reading, and games.

It is understood that when mother or father are entertaining callers, the games shall not be too noisy or too disturbing. If the children are wanted in the grown-up portion of the room, they are easily summoned.
