FRENCH AND BRITISH PREMIERS CRITICIZED.

GENEVA, Dec. 13. Separate action by Premier of France and Great Britain on matters before the Assembly of the League of Nations were made the subject of sharp comment by the committee on administration of new states. Newton Rowell, of the Canadian delegation, Lord Robert Cecil, South Africa, and Dr. Hansen of Norway, agree in criticizing the action of these governments in announcing policies regarding such questions as the admission of Armenia through other channels than their representatives at the Assembly meeting here, who are charged with such problems. Rene Viviani of France, who is said to be most particularly annoyed by the declaration of the French and British Premier that Armenia shall not be admitted to the League, was not present today. Comment continues to be made of the predominating features of the meeting, the opinion being expressed that if the powers desire to continue to treat such questions in the old form of diplomatic action they are not ready for the League.

PROTEST AGAINST BIG SALARIES

LONDON, Dec. 13. It is understood that the Budget Committee of the League of Nations has decided to refer the question of salaries to a committee to report at the next Assembly. This action was taken in consequence upon the British dominions having vigorously protested against the salaries of Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General of the League, and his associates, which the dominions contend are out of proportion.

Mrs. A. Crawford Tells How Cuticura Healed Little Girl

"My little girl's trouble started with small pimples on the back of her head and they spread down her back. The pimples were hard and red and they itched and burned terribly. She scratched and irritated them and they later developed into sore eruptions. Her hair fell out and became thin and dry, and scales fell off on her clothing."

"I used a free sample of Cuticura and the pimples commenced to dry up. I thought more and when I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Alonso Crawford, 83 Park St., Bangor, Maine, Jan. 22, 1920.

U. S. NAVAL PROGRAMME.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. Approval of another three year naval building programme involving construction of eighty-eight vessels if the United States does not enter the League of Nations or similar world organization is given by Secretary Daniels in his annual report to-day to President Wilson. The three year programme recommended by the General Board to be under way by 1924 includes the construction of three battleships, one battle cruiser, thirty light cruisers, eight gunboats, eighteen destroyers, twelve mine laying submarines, six cruiser submarines, four airplane carriers, three destroyer tenders, and three submarine tenders. "If the United States takes its stand with other countries in an organization to prevent war and promote peace," Daniels says, "our present navy with the addition of some special types will be adequate for our defence and prevention of aggression."

WILL DRAW NO RESPONSE FROM SINN FEIN.

DUBLIN, Dec. 13. It is not regarded here that any response will be forthcoming from Sinn Fein to the offer embodied in Premier Lloyd George's speech in the House of Commons last Friday in which he stated that safe conduct would be given Sinn Fein members of Parliament for discussions of Irish questions with the Government. So far as can be learned from Sinn Fein circles, his speech is not regarded there as containing any terms which can be considered. Sinn Fein members of Parliament, it is declared, will not take advantage of the safe conduct offer as they consider it an attempt to induce them to sacrifice their leaders. It is suggested that the Irish Republican Parliament might meet again as it has been doing occasionally to answer the Premier's speech, but even this is considered unlikely as the disposition is to ignore what he said.

"Sally in Our Alley."

When men who are now old--way up in, let us say, the seventies or eighties--were little boys, they heard their grandfathers talk about the songs that used to please them better in their youth than the songs which their grandfathers had, in turn, heard their grandfathers talk about as the tune of their younger days, says a writer in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. A pretty old song, that, you will say. Aye, old; at least 150 years old, but good to this day; for who does not feel his heart glow when he hears a rollicking baritone "make the welkin ring" with:

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY.
Of all the girls that are so smart,
There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

There's ne'er a lady in the land
That's half so sweet as Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.
When she is by, I leave my work,
I love her so sincerely,
My master comes like any Turk,
And bawls me most severely.
But let him bang, long as he will,
I'll bear it all for Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Of all the days are in the week,
I dearly love but one day,
And that's the day that comes between
A Saturday and Monday.

For then I'm dressed all in my best,
To walk around with Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

When Christmas comes about again,
Oh, then I shall have money;
I'll board it up, and box and all,
I'll give it to my honey.

Oh, would it were ten thousand pounds
I'd give it all to Sally;
For she's the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

My master said the neighbors all
Make game of me and Sally;
And, but for her, I'd better be
A slave and row a galley.

But when my seven long years are out,
Oh, then I'll marry Sally;
And then, how happily we'll live--
But not--not in our alley.

"Sally in Our Alley" was all the rage among the high and the low, the young and the old, in the days when Alexander Pope and Dean Swift lived and ruled the domain of letters. It was written by Henry Carey, the author and composer of "God Save the King," and he was born about 1692.

Carey was a young man when he wrote the verses and composed the music of the song. For a while the song was neglected in the more exclusive circles, and he was the butt of much ridicule for having written it. But the tide of opinion veered the other way when Addison, the most classic writer of his age, pronounced the song "an excellent performance."

When the whole British nation was singing "Sally in Our Alley" Carey published an edition of it with a preface in which he told of its origin. He had one day seen a shoemaker's apprentice out for a holiday jaunt with his sweetheart; and so artless, innocent and tender were the actions of the young lovers that Carey decided to follow them around in their rambles.

The apprentice took the girl to puppet shows, treated her to a sight of Bedlam (the home of the insane), to a ride in "flying chairs," gave her a collection of buns, cheese, gammon of bacon, stuffed beef and bottled ale. Carey never got near enough to overhear much of the conversation, but he did learn that the girl's name was Sally and that they lived in the same street. Sally struck the poet as being a girl of as much modesty as beauty, and that her beau was deeply and honestly in love with her was apparent in every solicited movement he made, as well as in his glances. She, too, seemed scarcely less taken with him, although she acted with more reserve.

Carey's songs, his humorous plays, address, his verses on the politics of the day--everything he wrote--became the great topic of talk almost everywhere. Why, he even gave the British their national anthem--"God Save the King"--and yet he could not obtain enough money to keep body and soul together comfortably.

Accordingly one night in 1743, while a group of men went past his home singing "Sally in Our Alley" and an audience in a theatre nearby was applauding one of his plays, he was seized with such a fit of melancholia that he determined to put an end to

The Blood Pressure

"WHAT is the meaning of blood pressure?" you may ask, and "What has it to do with the health?" For, as much as we hear of blood pressure these days, it is somewhat of a mystery to most people.

Perhaps the easiest way to explain it is by comparison with water pressure, whereby water is supplied to homes and made available upstairs and down at a mere turn of the tap.

The blood in the human body is under a similar pressure, as you will know if you cut an artery and see the force with which the blood spurts out.

The arteries may be likened to the rubber hose which you attach to the water system in your house. So long as the rubber retains its elasticity you do not have trouble, but as it gets older and harder and begins to crack you dread the water pressure which is everywhere testing the strength of the hose.

And so it is with the arteries. The walls of the arteries harden as age advances, more particularly if the vital organs are not doing their full duty in filtering and purifying the blood and keeping it in rich, helpful condition.

When your physician suspects that your arteries are hardening and losing the elasticity which enables them to withstand the strain put on them he recommends that you have your blood pressure tested. Then he seeks a means of improving the condition of the blood and of restoring the health and vigor of the digestive, filtering and excretory organs.

In the great majority of cases the weak functioning of these organs is due to the low vitality of the nervous system, and the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is resorted to with most satisfactory results.

Comparatively few people realize that the healthful working of each and every organ of the human body is dependent on the amount of nervous energy with which that organ is supplied, and that when nervous energy is consumed in overwork or worry, in sorrow or mental anxiety, these vital organs must fail for want of motive power.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food restores by improving the quality of the blood and increasing the amount of nervous energy in the human system. In other words, it increases vitality, and this is what is lacking in persons whose arteries are hardening and whose blood pressure is consequently rising.
