Criticism Directed at Lloyd George.

NEAR EAST POLICY ASSAULED. English papers to hand by Thursday's mail show that, during the week-end preceding the resignation of Mr. Lloyd George, there was an exsecount of the quarters from which it came and of its personal character. The Government's Near East policy was assailed, but the censure was directed entirely to one member of the Government-the Prime Minister. I was the more stinging where it con server, with a hitherto warm support of Mr. Lloyd George. Bonar Law's letter to the Times was much discussed. It was said in Unionist quarters that if Parliament had been meeting and Mr. Bonar Law had spoken in the House in the sense in which he wrote in the Times he would certainly have carried the Unionist Party with him and have made impossible the prosecution of individual action by England in the Near East. Mr. Bonar Law's letter was of a character which might almost oblige him in certain circumstances to assume a position of political leadership.

The leading article in the Observer was outspoken even to bluntaess. 'The Prime Minister's position has (it said) become quite untenable with any credit to himself or advantage to the country."

The Observer suggested the formation of a new Government to carry on until the General Election, "held the sooner the better." "The sooner the Premier stands aside, the more easily will the nation be able to extricate itself from its immediate difficulties, and the better it will be for his own credit and future."

Lord Rothermere, in an article in the Sunday Pictorial, was also emphatic upon the need for the Prime Minister relinquishing office. The Spectator contained an article entitled "A Plea for a Reconstructed Ministry," from which we quote the following passages:-"If the negotiations of the peace with Turkey aer to be in the hands of Mr. Lloyd George we shall have no guarantee whatever that we shall emerge either with safety or credit. What is needed, above all things, is a Government which will insist upon safety first' as the rule. We suggest the idea of a remaking of the Government for the very earnest consideration of the nation. We appreciate the risks perfectly well. . . Nevertheless, in our judgment there are sometimes risks which should be accepted. We prefer larger risks." While not suggesting an instant reconstruction of the Government, the writer urges that when a satisfactory start along the road to peace has been made there should be changes which would remove from Mr. Lloyd George's hands the negotiation of the final Peace Treaty. He proceeds:-

"What we suggest is that there should be a reconstruction of the Cabinet; that Mr. Lloyd George should disappear and should be replaced by Mr. Bonar Law or by somebody else-but preferably, we think, by Mr. Bonar Law, Lord Derby or the Duke of Devonshire—and we would suggest other names—might be trusted by the nation as Prime Minister if for some reason Mr. Bonar Law were not available, and either would be eminently what may be described as a 'safety first' man. The tendency, however, to insist nowadays that the Prime Minister should be a member of the House of Commons might be too strong. . . . There need not be many other changes. Mr. Churchill. if he did not temporarily disappear would be safer in some department where he could not, as he can now, say that he is acting with special authority when he beats a war drum for the Dominions to hear. Again, if the Lord Chamberlain remained he would, we fear, be under too great a temptation to carry on the Lloyd George tradition. For that reason, we consider, he ought to go, though, from a legal point of view, he has been as exceptionally good Lord Chancellor." "Could not some of those respon sible politicians who recognize that we have not exaggerated the dangers of Mr. Lloyd George's continuance in ofthat he can best serve the country by resigning? We absolutely refuse to believe that Mr. Lloyd George would place his own political fortunes or even those of his party, above the interests of the nation if a very strongly supported appeal were made to him. France and Turkey are the principal States with which we shall have to deal in arranging the peace. Both Lloyd George. Even if they were entirely wrong, the fact that they have no confidence in Mr. Lloyd George would show that he is the wrong man to make the peace. We simply must proceed on safe lines, and Mr. Lloyd leorge's guidance, if only because he
