Canadian Cattle Excluded.

The continued refusal of the British Government to remove the embargo on Canadian live cattle, reaffirmed only a few days ago, is one of the peculiarities of British local politics, that no one to Kipling, but a cigarette is neither can very well understand, unless, by finding explanations other than those different British ports; but about that time they were excluded on the ground that a couple of the animals had

Since then thousands upon thousands of Canadian cattle have been slaughtered at English was made permanent by an act in 1896, and has remained in force ever since. And only a few days ago, in the House of Commons, official notice was given by Mr. Hanbury, who presides over the that the exclusion must continue, otherwise British herds would be exposed to what is called "foot and mouth" ed his decision.

The buyers are, of course, confined to the butchers, in these towns, who can buy almost at their own figures, especially when a large cargo is landed. If the cattle could be shipped alive to the different markets in Britain they would bring from ten to fifteen dollars a head more than they do under the present arrangement. That, at least, is the declared opinion of the leading dealers in England, and is only what might be reasonably expected.

But to talk of it as a sanitary precaution is absurd.

Of course, our people will simply have to submit, and make the best of the situation. We will have to try and develop still further the trade in dressed beef. Animals killed in this country, properly packed and shipped by cold storage, ought to be worth more in the English markets, than cattle killed at the port of entry after the discomforts and injuries of a sea voyage, and with their sale then confined to a limited number of local buyers. We may as well cease urging the British Government to do for us what it has done for South America, and cultivate what opportunities we have. The Canadian Agricultural Department seems to be imfrom Webster were mighty fine." The return of a Liberal for Sault Ste. Marie is, therefore, almost assured. Lennox, East Middlesex and South Oxford are still suspended in the courts, and North Renfrew is vacant; but if the worst happened, the Government would meet the House with a working margin. The probabilities are that its present majority of eight will be increased.

Perhaps Mr. Whitney feels the irony of his position. After shouting himself hoarse against the specter of Liberal corruption and ascribing all sorts of iniquities to the "machine," he finds that irregularities in his own party have put him out of the race for the Premiership. Was ever a leader so stultified by events?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, and removes the effete matter which clogs and corrupts it. It cures pimples, boils, eczema, scrofula, sores, ulcers and other consequences of impure blood.

"I feel greatly thankful for what your medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. Chas. Hood, of Kalkaska, Mich. "I suffered with scrofula of the head for twelve years. Tried every kind of medicine that I heard of but found no cure. Every one that looked at my head said they never saw anything like it. The last doctor I doctored with before applying to you I got worse every day. Was so miserable that I was unable to do any work at all. After taking two or three bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and using the local treatment you prescribed for me. I was cured and my head was entirely free from scrofula."

Before the sec-retary should strike the match he wanted to do justice to the secretary, who, he said, had never shown the white feather. He advised all young men to stand by Mr. Sayer, for that gentleman was a second Mr. Budge. WHERE TWO ROADS MEET.

Secretary Sayer said in part: "It seems to me that we are standing where the two roads meet. It has meant something to finance this institution, and in this building is inwrought the work and energy of men who have given freely. There is not a group of more generous-hearted business men than the men of the City of London. But we can not sit down and take it easy. If, however, I know the board, if I know the membership, and if I know my own heart, that is not what we are going to do. We must go forward, helping men, and doing what the great founder, Sir George Williams, had in mind, extend the kingdom of Jesus Christ."

PROVED A STIMULUS.

Mr. John Penman, of Paris, representing the provincial committee, was called upon and he gave a lengthy address on the work of the committee. "It is an inspiration to me," he said, "and an indication that the association has a hold upon the people of London to see that this handsome building has been paid for. The news that the mortgages could be burned was thankfully received by the provincial committee of Ontario and Quebec, and it has proved a stimulus to bec, and it has proved a stimulus to them.

"This committee," he continued, "is appointed by the local associations, and is not outside, but is an agency of the association. It is composed of 36 professional and business men from Windsor to Quebec. The headquarters are at Toronto." Here the speaker referred to the duties of the committee. He told, too, of the organization in London, England, and what it had grown to and how it was reaching men in every way all over the world. He spoke especially of the opportunities for work in the smaller towns.

Mr. C. M. Copeland, of Toronto, secretary of the provincial committee, next spoke. After some remarks of a humorous nature, he described his views of the constitution of an opportunity. The oportunity in London was in nature, redemptive, protective, constructive, extensive, physical, social, intellectual and spiritual. His address was very much to the point, and was listened to with pleasure.

DR. JOHNSTON'S CONGRATULATIONS.

Mr. Copeland had been speaking of opportunities, and his subject was to be responsibilities. In presenting opportunities, the responsibilities had also been given, for the one brought the other. However, Dr. Johnston would take this opportunity of offering congratulations to the officers and directors on this occasion, making special mention of the opportunity of offering congratulations to the officers and directors on this occasion, making special mention of the general secretary and his able assistants. He loved Mr. Sayer all the more for the uphill fight he had had. Mr. Sayer, too, had had the valued support of a devoted and charming wife at home. While they owed much to many of the ladies of London, they owed most, perhaps, of all to Mrs. Sayer. Dr. Johnston referred to Mr. Holman, Mr. Bishop, and not forgetting "Chris" Butterworth, giving all credit for the work that had been done.

Every past brought its future, he said, and, like the International Limited, after it climbs that hill and sees before it the level stretch of land, so was the Y. M. C. A., which had now passed along up the hill and were ready to go forward on the level stretch, doing the true work of the association. He referred to the past, and did honor to the men who had helped that association up the hill, and said that one of the responsibilities was to follow their example. The second responsibility was to the other man. This was an age of which the spirit seemed to be that of altruism. This giving of money, too, to the Y. M. C. A. should not be considered in any way a matter of charity; it was an investment, A peroration on the re-

Death for Threepence.

London, March 4.-Oliver Rogers, seaman, adopted an extraordinary method of ending his life at Southampton. He put three pennies into a slot gas meter, and then fixed a long piece of india rubber tubing to a burner. Turning on the gas, he placed over his head a pillow slip, into which he put the end of the tube. Then, lynot on the programme. That did not ing on the bed, he allowed himself to be slowly suffocated. He was dead when discovered.

"I, had terrible pains along my spinal cord for two years and suffered dreadfully. I was given different medicines, wore plasters; none of these things helped me. Reading of the cures that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought about, I somehow felt that it was what I needed and bought a bottle to take. How glad I am that I did so; two bottles brought me immense relief, and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. It seemed as though there had been a regular house cleaning through my system, that all the sickness and poison had been taken out and new life given me instead. I have advised dozens of my friends to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Good health is indispensiable to complete happiness, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has secured this to me."
