

Only A Dog

BY BERTON BRADLEY

Somewhere poisoned my dog today,
Though he never did any one ill,
And so he is through with his canine play
And his wagging tail is still.
No more shall I walk in the fields with him
Along at my side to jog,
And—don't care if my eyes are dim—
Somewhere poisoned my dog!

He was homely, I know, as a dog could be,
And only a mongrel, too;
But I loved him and he loved me,
And people and dogs may do.
Nothing on earth could disturb his trust
Or his love and his faith before,
And now he lies here in the dust—
Somewhere poisoned my dog!

He crawled to my feet and he licked my hand,
And then with a gasp he died;
And though some people can't understand—
I patted his head—and cried—
For it isn't funny to lose a friend
From off this "earthly cog,"
And he was loyal unto the end—
Somewhere poisoned my dog!

I wonder how any one could have done
This poor little fellow harm;
But here he lies—his race is run—
Though his body's still soft and warm.
My life is lived on a peaceful plan,
My pace is a quiet jog,
But—I wish I could find the snake of a man
Who poisoned my little dog!

THE EARL OF OSLOW

Taken by Death

Was a Member of the Balfour and Salisbury Ministries.

London, Oct. 23.—The Earl of Onslow died today.

William Hillier Onslow, fourth Earl of Onslow, had been chairman of the Commons committee and chairman of committees in the House of Lords since 1906. He was a Conservative. An ancestor, Sir Richard Onslow, was a parliamentarian, and the very energetic and reactionary leader of the Moderate party on the county council for some years.

There was once a "ghost" at his residence, Clarendon Park, near Guildford, Surrey, and the late Marquis of Bute and the Psychological Society wished to "investigate" it, but Lord Onslow declined their aid. "I am determined," he said, "not to allow a reputation of such nonsense. Adult members of my family sleep with loaded revolvers by their bedsides, and will not hesitate to shoot at any ghosts who seek to play tricks." The ghost presumably took the hint—nothing more was heard of it.

THE McNAMARA TRIAL

Ten Men of Fifth Venire Answer Call Today.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23.—Ten men of the first venire of the McNamara murder trial answered to their names when Judge Bordwell opened court today. Except for nine others in the jury box, all the rest had been excused, either in the preliminary examination made by Judge Bordwell before the trial, or in the subsequent examination by opposing counsel. Of the nine in the box, Robert Bain, Seaborn H. Manning and F. D. Green had been previously excused by both sides, subject to preliminary examination; George W. McKee was held there because Judge Bordwell yesterday refused to allow a challenge for cause offered against him by the defense, and five others were to be examined. They are Walter L. Couard, George E. Anderson, Emil Rameau, Charles E. Ender and F. J. Mullen.

When court opened Clerk George Munro called veniremen to fill the three vacant seats, leaving only seven veniremen outside the hall.

Ordinarily when a venire is reduced to ten men, a new one is called. In this case, however, it is unnecessary at present because parts of two other venires are waiting in the other eleven in the superior court, and the rest of the District Attorney Frederick's may be used in the McNamara case.

James B. McNamara and his brother, John J. McNamara, are expected to appear today. Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who is on the ground, said that the McNamaras were brought here. He said he probably would remain here some time.

ENGLISH LAD ESCAPES DEATH IN TIGER'S JAWS

Wounded Animal Releases Boy to Chase a Nativ.

Calcutta, Oct. 23.—Leo Lyons, an English boy, has had a miraculous escape from death in a tiger's jaws, according to a story from Rangoon, Burmah.

He with two friends was out after deer at a village several miles from Khamrai railway station, where they met a party of twenty Burmese and Shans, armed with spears and dabs. They asked Lyons to assist a tiger that had been entrapped in the jungle close by. He found the tiger and the rest of the party, dropping their dabs and spears, fled to the nearest trees. Lyons fired and hit the animal, which fell, but in doing so sprang up and leaped at him. Although partially disabled with pieces of the chain trap around his neck and his right foreleg broken, the tiger managed to reach the lad, and grasped him by the neck and mouth, crushing it badly, and at the same time tearing his right knee and thigh with one of his paws. Lyons fell upon the ground and the tiger, who was just coming round, sprang to his feet and staggered away.

The tiger's attention was attracted by this and he released his prey. Lyons started after the other man. Falling to catch him, it entered the jungle. The first of the party then returned to Lyons and carried him to Talkky, where his wounds were dressed. Next day he was taken to the General Hospital, Rangoon, where he is recovering. The tiger was found dead the next day in the jungle.
