WOMEN and THE HOME

Hadassah Chapters Brings Mrs. Siegel From Toronto-Need World Sympathy.

Women hold the key to the solution f the war problems, declared Mrs. H. Siegel of Toronto, who last night addressed a large gathering in the Horton street synagogue under the auspices of the Hadassah chaper of this city.

Mrs. Siegel went on to say that women, with the educational advantges of the present time, must learn the understanding of other nations, must promote sympathy between and must pass this attitude peoples and must pass this attitude on to their children. She stated that already children were beginning to think of other children on the other side of the world as their brothers and sisters, and she believed that this happy situation was largely due to eaching of the mothers.

understanding was International the theme of Mrs. Siegel's address, and she said that each nation should develop the best that it holds—that it must grow in the highest sense tovards an international viewpoint that would ultimately spell world and prevent war. She said that the rophet Isaiah was the first to preach world gospel of unity, world was only beginning to understand his message.

The part women will play in the development of this enlarged understanding must be an important one, and must bring very high results. Mrs. William Leff, president of Hadassah, introduced the speaker in a brief address. SACRIFICES BIG STOCK

Deep down in the heart of every woman the wish to be the proud owner of a fur coat some day. One reason why many women have not been the proud owners of the much wonted fur coat is right. They felt wanted fur coat is price. They felt that they could not afford to pur-chase one because of high prices. Right now that one objection is about to be removed.

The Royal Millinery and Fur Company, located at 246 Dundas street, is going out of the fur business. The only reason for this is lack of room. Their millinery business is increasing so rapidly they have no time nor space to devote to anything else. is with you. No party has ever had the same grounds on which to ask for your support as the Labor party. The record of the Labor Party in stressing for the social legislation that you know is necessary for the protection of yourselves, your husbands, and children, has always been met with bitter opposition by the old parties. Labor stands for such legislation as the control of women and children in industry. It fights for the performance of the minimum wage act because it believes that a low wage for girls subjects them to temptation that causes mothers broken hearts. It contends for minimum wage act for men, and unemployment insurance, because you mothers have the strain of meeting the family budget. Wherever there is a need for legislation to protect home, health, or life, there you will fine Labor in the forefront of the fray demanding action. Therefore, I as for your support as a Labor man, pledged to support those social reforms for which only the Labor Party platform stands.

The battle of our party is fought in the kitchens and parlors of t workers by you women who govern the internal economy of our hom Where Labor has attained governmental power, it has taken problems of the workers' homes into the arena of legislative hou and fought for them. I know your problems and what is needed lighten your loads, to make your homes safer for you and your family, and to remove the fears of unemployment and sickness from your shoulders. If I have your support on October 29th, I have no fear of the result, so I have no hesitation in asking you for this support on the strength of my just claims to it as a Labor man with Labor ideals and Labor aspirations for better conditions for all workers and their families. Your vote has the same weight as your husband's; use it on October 29th for John Colbert.
