Belva Lockwood.

Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, of Washington, the candidate for President of the United States, of the National Equal Rights party, was born at Rowley, New Hampshire, N. H., Oct. 23, 1815.

Her family name was Bonnell. She taught school in her district before she was 15 years old. At 18 years of age she married a young farmer in the neighborhood named Nathan, and one daughter known as Laura W. Ornes, was the issue of this marriage.

One of the men in the "Free Men's" boat was drowned, so that only ten men were left on shore. The natives watched carefully to see that no more landed. The next day, the German steamer, Matilda, came and took off sick soldiers and women from the wrecked transport. She had no room for more, and sailed away, leaving the 206 others to their fate. The sea was rising, and the 3,000 savages were clamoring for more money, and things to eat.

There were no arms aboard except two small cannons (which were fired as signals of distress, continually), the rifles of the 45 marines and the pistols carried by the officers. On the evening of August 22nd, the Lord of the Isles, passing toward the Gulf of Aden, heard the minute guns and ran in to the wreck.

The sea was so high that nothing could be done that day, but on the next boat from the British steamer went off to the wreck and took everyone on board the Lord of the Isles. The survivors were around the English boats and tried to stick their hatchets through the boats' bottom.

The lieutenant was the last to leave the beach. As he placed himself in the water to be hoisted on board, the natives surrounded him and his half way to the ship the savages began to haul on the line by which the sling was drawn ashore. The sailors on the ship held equally hard the other way, so that in the confusion the lieutenant was overturned and hauled aboard feet first.

Before leaving the Averon the captain had her crew. As the last boat left the transport the entire 3,000 natives swarmed on board, and when the Lord of the Isles sailed away they could be seen shouting and fighting on the beach of the burning wreck. There was only 60 pounds of powder on board, just before the Lord of the Isles got out of sight of the burning vessel, the flames reached the masts, and the transport was in flames. The natives went by the board and several hundred savages must have been killed. The rescued Frenchmen were landed at Aden.

AGRICULTURAL.

Sheep Beneficial to the Lamb.—No other farm stock is more beneficial to the land than sheep. Pastures occupied by sheep, produce more and better food. The bushes and briars which so readily spring up in almost every pasture, are eaten off and kept down by sheep, and their place occupied by grass. The weeds and worthless plants will be kept down and exterminated. Sheep eat a much larger number of plants than any other farm animal, eating many that the horse and cattle refuse. Hence a few sheep should always be kept in a pasture with cattle or horses to eat those plants which cattle and horses refuse. In short, sheep are almost indispensable to the best land, so well calculated for rugged hillsides and rough pastures and to prevent the growth of weeds. They never fail to curtail the lands where they are kept. On poor farms they are most emphatically the best factors for increasing fertility. Keep sheep on the farm early in the season of the year, as they are an unusual exposure to severe weather, or a few weeks of winter with snow and frost, will stop the growth of wool and a weak place in the fibre will be the result.

Local Fairs as Entertainments.—Farmers have not cordially devoted themselves to the success of annual fairs and county fairs, and the result is that the annual fair is the farmer's home school, and should be a profitable practical lesson. The fair should be expected to bring together the best evidence of the advancement of agriculture in the district. If the farmer in the district, represented by the annual fair, entered into it as a matter of personal interest, competing whenever an opportunity offered, offering prizes in all those departments most requiring improvement, stimulating lively rivalry, such enthusiasm would produce most unexpected progress and soon give the fair a wide reputation.

Sheep that have been uniformly kept will have fleeces of the greatest strength. A week of starvation, or unusual exposure to severe weather, or a few weeks of winter with snow and frost, will stop the growth of wool and a weak place in the fibre will be the result.

Joker's Corner.

Joker's Corner. Viewing the machinery. They had been sitting on the ground, and she asked for more than an hour, and when she suggested they go down stairs to see the machinery, he agreed, and an old lady who sat near by heard the conversation rise up and said, 'Young man, have you any objection to my going along? I've always been crazy on the subject of machinery.'
