AMERICAN ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

We have received the following notice and particulars of the 27th Annual Meeting of the American Academy of Medicine. Any further information can be obtained from the Secretary, Charles McIntire, Easton, Pa.

"The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the American Academy of Medicine will convene at the Kensington, Saratoga, June 7th, at 11.00 a.m., and continue during Monday, June 9, 1902.

A series of interesting and valuable papers is promised, covering a variety of subjects and not confined so closely to a symposium as has been the custom for the past few years. A feature of the meeting will be an address, by invitation of the committee, by Edward T. Devine, of the United Charities of New York, on "Co-operation of the Medical Profession in Charitable and Social Reform." It is expected to have a full discussion of this important subject immediately following the address.

The President's address will be given on Saturday evening and the social session on Monday evening. The price of the tickets for the latter, including supper, is two dollars each.

The completed program will not be ready until about the middle of May when it will be sent to those who will advise the Secretary of the Academy of their wishes to receive copies.
