The Member for North Simcoe Succumbs to His Injuries.

A CREAT CANADIAN CONE TO HIS REWARD

Wounds Received On Sunday Night Proved to Be More Than Human Strength Could Endure-Regret Expressed In the House at Ottawa by the Premier, Sir Charles Tupper and Others-Death Came Last Evening In Spite of the Best Medical Skill-Physicians' Statements-Sketch of His Career-His Manifold Position-Tributes to His Sterling Character.

The tidings of the death of Mr. D'Alton McCarthy will be received with universal regret this morning. Alarming as were the earlier statements of his illness, later bulletins were somewhat reassuring. A relapse occurred vesterflay afternoon at the time of the thunderstorm, and the patient never rallied, passing away suddenly at 10 p.m. In Mr. McCarthy's demise, Canada loses a brilliant lawyer, a conscientious statesman, an eloquent advocate and a man of sterling uprightness. Toronto especially will feel the loss of one who was ever forward in all that concerned the city's interests. In many and variried circles Mr. D'Alton McCarthy will be greatly missed. He was an enthusiastic sportsman and evinced much interest in the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the Country and Hunt Club and the meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club.

Of late years Mr. McCarthy derived his principal amusement and exercise from horseback riding, of which he was very fond. Whenever he could be present he attended the meets of the Toronto Hunt Club, of which he was sident. He took the deepest interest in the welfare of the Country and Hunt Club and in its establishment on the Kingston Road, whither he went whenever he could afford the time. None will regret his loss more deeply than the members of the Toronto Hunt Club.

In social circles he was ever welcome, and his geniality and brilliance were here as conspicuous as in the higher professional spheres in which he moved. Full of health and spirits but a few days ago his death comes to many as a bolt out of the blue, and it was fitting that the House of Commons, the scene of many a brilliant oration, should adjourn last night immediately on receipt of the news of his death.

DOCTORS' STATEMENTS

Dr. W. H. Pepler, who is the family physician, said that immediately after the accident on Sunday night, it was sen that Mr. cident on Sunday night, it was sen that Mr. McCarthy had received a severe shaking up. His right side was badly bruised, a severe injury was sustained to the right lung, several ribs having been broken and bent in upon the lung so as to perforate it. There was a gash in the patient's head, but this was thought to be trifling; while the dislocated finger of the right hand was easily attended to. From the first the doctor anticipated serious complications arising from the injury to the chest and lungs. He even hinted that pneumonia might set in. As the days went on, this anticipation was fully realized, for since Monday the affection of the right lung has received the best skill of Drs. Pepler, Grasett, Graham and McCarthy, who have held several consultations daily.

The End Came Suddenly. On Wednesday morning it was thought that the patient was in a fair way to re-covery, but along in the afternoon, about the time of the heavy thunderstorm that the time of the heavy thunderstorm that swept over the city, when the atmosphere became oppressively rarified, Mr. McCarthy took a sudden change for the worse.

A World reporter was at the house at 9 o'clock and it was then thought that the danger threatened in the atternoon had been safely theed over.

At ten minutes past 9, however, as suddenly as a gust of wind snuffs out a candle, the spark of life fied from Mr. McCarthy's frame.

members of the family had not time to reach the bedside of the dying man till he was no more. Dr. Pepler, Dr. McCar-thy (the deceased man's brother) and Mrs. McCarthy were the only ones present when the statesman breathed his last. All afternoon the patient was uncon-scious and could not recognize his distressed came, his spirit took flight unconscious of the sorrow around.

The immediate cause of death was the cessation of respiration, consequent upon the injuries to both lungs. Really the pressure of the cartilage and the vertebrae up-on the lungs produced suffocation. After respiration had ceased, the heart continued to beat for some time.

The Consulting Physicians. Dr. Grasett, seen by The World, corroborated the story of the case as related by Doctor Pepler. Dr. Grasett was not present when Mr. McCarthy died, but had been at the house all day till 9 o'clock in the avening.

BRIEF BIOGRAPHY.

Mr. McCarthy was descended from an anient Irish family. He was the son of the aic D'Alton McCarthy, solicitor, by his vife, Charleszina Hope Manners, and was orn at Oakley Park, Blackrock, near Dubon, Irchand. October 10, 1835. His early miles were conducted in his native county. In 1847 he accompanied his parents Canada, and was placed at the Barricammar School, where he completed his ucation. Called to the bar in 1858, he enved on the practice of his profession in trunership with his father and the late larcy Boulton, Q.C., and speedily attained distinguished and eminent position thereful He was elected a Bencher of the Law Setty in 1871 and was created a Q.C. inhe following year by the Earl of Duffel. At a later period he was named an horary member of the Law Faculty of Touto University and was elected a member of the Exwelty of Touto University and was elected a member of the Exwelty of Touto University and was elected a member of the Exwelty of Touto University and was elected a member of the Exwelty of Touto University and was long the foremost doing business within in Unomindon. Apart from his everyday work Mr. McCarthy was engaged in manyages of peculiar interest and importance, including a large number of appeals to the Privy Council in England. As a jury lawyer he was not known to have any superior in Canada. "His style," says one of his biographers, "is sharp and incisive, als glauce keen and searching, his summing up a model of conciseness and incidity. While not as subtle as Christopher Robinson or as powerful as Edward Blake, he is not far behind either in substantial ability."

Entrance on Political Life. Mr. McCarthy was first returned to Par l'ament Dec. 14, 1876, at a byc-election held in Cardwell, the vacaucy being caused by the death of the sitting member, Hon. J.

MR. DAI/TON McCARTHY.

H. Cameron, Q.C. He had previously unsuccessfully contested the constituency of North Samcoe on three occasions. In the House of Commons he immediately distinguished himself in debate, and before the close of his first session was regarded as the rising star of the Conservative party. "His first speech," says Mr. Davin in has Trishmen in Canada," mrked him as a min for whom all things may be hoped." Sir John Macdonald, the Prime Minister, spoke of him as "the brains of the party," and designated him its future leader. For fifteen years or more no one, with the posteen years or more no one, with the pos-sible exception of Sir Charles Tupper, pos-sessed the aged statesman's confidence to the same extent. Outside of Parliament he undertook the work of organization for his party, and for a considerable period fil-

D'Alton McCarthy's end was hardly tragic, but it was certainly dramatic. A man in the vigor of health leaves his house Sunday night to catch the train for Ottawa; five minutes later, driving his own upsets, Mr. McCarthy goes under and is so badly bruised about the chest that he dies exactly three days thereafter. His law cases, all his parliamentary and political intentions, his social engagements, all come to a sudden termination. He has 70 hours, more or less of suffering, more or less unconsciousness, then the all-embracing sleep. Mr. McCarthy's end, to all intents and purposes, was as sudden as the stopping of a clock.
