too, the first run of the new milland is a very satisfactory showing, indeed. Price for the Slocan Boy. The price which the London and British Columbia Gold Fields will pay for the Slo-can Boy is said, in London, to be £10,000. The sampling of one car of ore from the Vancenter group near Silverton gave an The samping of one car of one from the Vancouver group, near Silverton, gave an average of 360 ounces silver to the ton. This gives the silver contents of the ore an average of $197, with the lead values to be added. Easterners have often read of the Great Parne when in the Slower. It is a great is a beautiful light wine, resembling in apearance a rich golden Easterners have often read of the Great Payne mine in the Slocan. It is a great dividend payer. For nearly two years past the Payne mine has shipped an average of 58 tons of its valuable ore daily. After deducting freight, duty and smelter charges this nets the owners over $80 per ton, or $4640 per day. There are now about 125 men employed at the mine, and it is a liberal average to allow $4 each per day for expenses, or $500 for the entire force. Thus it is seen that the mine is paying a profit of $4140 daily, including fiolidays and Sun-days. As the optput is well known by month in and month out, the above figures are none too high. Taking the daily net in-come as a basis, the mine yields a profit of nearly $125,000 monthly, or $1,250,000 an-nually. Not every wine that is called "Tokay" is of equal quality-for the grapes of California differ very ma-

Statements published at the beginning of this year were to the effect that thus far the Payne has paid $1,800,000 in dividends. If this is correct—and there is no reason to doubt it—with this year's profits already earned, the mine has paid the comfortable sum of over $3,000,000.

At the office of the company it was fearned that the output of the mine for October is likely to be about $27,000. The output for the first half of October was $70 ounces in the clean-up, which is worth about $13 per ounce and about $2000 worth to concentrates. This is a largely increased production, which is due to the fact that 20 stamps instead of 10 are dropping on the ore. for their successful conduct of the fall ex-hibition, which leaves a large balance to the credit of the society. Stock men of the district were con-gratulated on the superior character of the show in horses, shorthorn cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. As a county show it is hard to beat.

Calm and Deliberate: We're helping trade this way with the lever of attractive goods and prices. That means we're doing business on business principles. There's nothing sensational or spasmodic about anything we do, and you're not asked to believe impossible things. We're scrupulous about having the best things to begin with, and the goods themselves do some rather eloquent talking.

The cheapness of these things may make you suspect their qualities. But you know the store! We offer bargains-good bargains. So does the next man and the next. You've found some of them out. If you find these less than good tell us so.

We've won a reputation for being active. We keep trade lively here all the time by turning new goods over to people willing to take them and use them at our prices. And everything we sell is measured by this yard-stick :

Berlin, Oct. 30 .- Herr Bebel, the socialist leader, is announced to speak on Nov. 28 at a meeting of Berlin Anarchists, called to protest against "International hatred of Anarchists and the conspiracy against Freedom." The other speakers include Gustav Landauer and the noted Magdeburg Anarchist, Karl Gorlitz. The Conservative organs warn Herr Bebel that birds of a feather flock together.

ABOUT ALBERT EDWARD'S KNEE.

Seems to Have Recovered From His Recent Accident.

London, Oct. 30 .- The Prince of Wales, who is now at Marlborough House, contemplates going to his Norfolk home, where the Princess, on her return from Copenhagen, will join him. The Prince seems now to have quite recovered from his recent serious accident. Society says: "When the Prince of Wales left the senside he was a changed man. To an old servant, the Prince confided that so much better was his knee that he was able to go deer stalking before he left Balmoral. To those who understand the dangers and difficulties that attend a deer stalker, it must be apparent that His Royal Highness' limb is in a highly satisfactory state."

FOUR DEATH SENTENCES A WEEK Unprecedented State of Affairs in London. Eng.

London Oct 30 -One requires to go a long way back to recall another occasion when in one week London alone has had four murder trials resulting in death sentences. It is almost unprecedented in this city, where juries who hold the lives of unfortunates in their hands usually are nclined to seek some loophole by which the prisoner may at least escape the gal-
