Reply to "Disgusted."

(Editor of the Guardian.)

Dear Sir:—I noticed an article in last week's "Guardian" signed "Disgusted" as regards our streets being cattle ranches. Yes, we must admit it's a pity our farmers have not got ranches or even pastures to keep their cattle in all the season round, so that they may not disturb the peaceful rest of the weary one. If we had got, as promised by a Sir Politician some years ago, two blades of grass to grow where one was growing, there would be no need of our cattle going out on the commons to graze.

However, this will not be accomplished in this regime either and poor Disgusted will have to move to quieter surroundings to have peaceful slumber. Disgusted has some sympathy for the Tourists and Motorists in navigating our streets through herds of cattle. Methinks, in many instances, they are blessings in disguise for pedestrians for, if some of our careless and furious drivers were not afraid of hitting something harder than themselves, the person who is a little hard of hearing and not very smart would be in danger walking our streets.

On Sunday while on the way to evening service I met a motorcyclist going, I should say, all of 30 miles an hour passing pedestrians young and old from left to right, who were on their way to church, without blowing any horn. Such motorists may not know if there is such as the speed limit for our towns or he may believe in handling his wheel imagining he owns lots of wheels and streets, possibly more of the former than of the latter. Possibly Disgusted may have had a dream or vision, as he read of Henry Ford going to manufacture tin cows, so that we may all have cheap milk. If such was driven here with some such furious drivers as we now have, the longer we continue to hold on to our four-legged cows the better. I have never seen cows going through our streets at 15 miles an hour without blowing their horn!

As regards our pet Doggie which is still with us, Disgusted has much sympathy so that the doggie requires a lengthy column to himself. Fearing I am trespassing already to far on your valuable space, I will ring off for now. Sufficient to say that I have yet to see a pair of mitts or socks made from dog's wool.

Yours truly,
OBSERVER.

He is now on a vacation trip and left St. John's on the 20th of July, and has visited Battle Creek, Mich., Hartford, Conn., Springfield, Fitchburg, Malden, Somerville, and other places. He left Boston on Tuesday's express to connect with the Kyle at Port aux Basques.

On Tuesday, August 25th, the first Labrador fishing schooner, the "Reliance", Capt. Edward Snow, arrived in port, hauling for over 700 qtls. of fish. This is one of the earliest arrivals for some years and with such a load of fish, speaks well for the work of the captain and crew. With the present high price for fish and a prospective rise those getting any large quantity of fish will make good wages.
