PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, July 9.—Mr. Blair's rail-may commission was given another bearing today. The question of railway passenger rates was brought up by Mr. McLean, who declared that the maxi-mum should be fixed for fifty years. Mr. Kemp, in speaking on the clause dealing with penalties and actions, drew attention to the intricacies of freight classification and requested that the bill be held over until business men were consulted, which was refused by the minister.

damages caused by fires started from sparks from locomotives, whether equipped with fire screens or not. Biair refused to accept the amendment, whereupon members on both sides of the house insisted upon it. At the afternoon session the amendment was carried.

The house then took up interior supplementary estimates. Notice was given of a bill to amend the fisheries act, which will legalize the use of purse act, which will legalize the use of purse seines within territorial waters of Canda.

At the conservative caucus today party matters were discussed. A gold headed cane was presented to Hon. A. F. C. Lartiviere, who has completed his 28th year in political life. At the liberal caucus the question of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme was discussed.

WHY DISCRIMINATE?

ntercolonial railway had his leg broon the line. The train went off the track through no fault of his and he on the lins. The train went off the track through no fault of his and he was one of the victims. For months he was unable to work, and during a part of the time was in the hands of the doctors. At length he became callable of returning to duty. But he was docked for lost time. It is rather hard on a man who has low wages to be left so long on heavy expenses with no income, especially when he has been disabled while on duty. Perhaps the accident was not the fault of anyone, but it certainly was not the fault of this particular sufferer. Yet there is no reason to suppose that the brakeman has made complaint on that he considers himself ill-used. He is doubtless glad to get back to work, and knows that other have had the same experience.

But not all others. One of the highest paid men in the railway service was in ill-health about the same time that this brakeman was waiting for his broken bones to grow together. His salary is more than ten times the pay of a brakeman and he earns it on the same railway. When this fellow work, man was ill he got leave of absence but it certainly was not the fault of anyone, this particular sufferer. Tet there is no reason to suppose that the brakeno reason to suppose that the brakenam has made compiliant to that he considers himself ill-used. them later, at the custom house, at which time, the complainant alleged, the chief treated him very discourted twenty years ago, after the death of Mr. Eider. He was a man of ideas and opinions and his views as expressed in the Telegraph did not conform to the creed of the men who then controlled the paper. Afterward Mr. Lugrin had charge of a journal at Seattle, and as he then intended to remain in the United States, he took the first steps toward a change of citizenship. Returning to Canada he assumed the editorial charge of the leading conservative journal in the British Columbia capital. If he should now feel free to take the editorial charge of a government organ it is not likely that he would allow his personal views and opinions to produce strained relations between him and the dominant influence. In any case Mr. Lugrin will be welcomed back to his native province.

If the members of the committee who are circulating a petition recomnant and sulfielding increased pay for city employes are wise they will not suggest the boycotting of merchants who refuse to sign. A petition of that kind can have no possible value except as expressing the views and desires of the persons who sign it. The authorities could not be expected to attach

An amendment was moved by Mr. De-hers to make railways responsible for amages caused by fires started from any weight to petitions obtained by coercion or by any influence except that of fair argument on the merits of the case. Public opinion has been favorable to the payment of good wages cials must respond to the opinions of sible value in statements and re mendations obtained by threats of loss of custom. Such threats made or impecting business men to sign, and throw discredit on signatures that represent the convictions of the men

Probably these suggestions of a boycott were the hasty and unconsidered statements of some one or two impulsive men, and should not be taken too seriously.

The charges of John McKelvey against Chief of Police Clark fall to the ground. In a report submitted to the government at its meeting last night Premier Tweedle, who heard the evidence in St. John, in his capacity as a commissioner, stamps the charges as admittedly born of malice and finds that the evidence did not sustain them. The testimony did prove, however, that Chief Clark is an efficient and assiduous official.

Dr. Lorenz and his gentle way with children has been the subject of many anecdotes. This story is told of his stay in Rochaster, N. Y.

One day, worn out by his professional work, he set out for a walk. In the course of his ramble he came to the faws of the Genese river. There Dr. Lerenz and a friend stood gazing into the depths of the gorge below.

Three little newsboys caught sight of them, and darted over, crying shrilly: "Polper, mister, polper here; all about it."

KILLED ON THE L. C. R. Found Dead Beside the Rails.

Joseph Roe, a stonecutter by trade, was found dead on the I. C. R. track near Petitcodiac early yesterday morning, and his body is still at that place awatting legal proceedings. It was supposed the man had fallen off an east bound train.

I. C. R. Terminal Superintendent L. R. Ross at once began making enquiries of the various building contractors and found that a man answering the description of the deceased had worked for Ald. Robert Maxwell on the south end oil works Job. For some time Roe has been out of work, and has been drinking. It is thought the unfortunate man left for Sydney Wednesday night, and in an intoxicated state tumbled off the train when passing from car to car.

Roe was a widower and has no relatives here so far as is known. Among his effects a letter was found yesterday morning from a brother-in-law, Joseph Longford, 30 Gill avenue, Methune, Mass. From the way in which the letter is worded it would seem that Roe has some money on deposit in some bank in Methune.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 9.—A reception on board the flagship Ariadne, at which several hundred people were guests, formed the chief feature of today's entertainment in connection with the visit of the British squadron. The reception was given by Admiral Douglass and his captains in acknowledgment of the courtesies extended them, and was a notable event. In the morning some fifty of the officers were entertained at breakfast at the Pot and Kettle Club, and in the evening Admiral Sands dined Admiral Douglass and his captains on board the flagship Texas. The English ships will sail Saturday morning for St. John. N. B.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

The strike in the city still continues and the laborers are undaunted in their resolve to obtain their demands and get the increase of pay asked for. They have formed a committee and are circulating a petition to be signed by those merchants who are in sympathy with them, while they assert that they will withdraw their custom from the merchants who do not honor the petition by their signature. Some of the merchants, while not in favor of the strike, are giving their signatures out of consideration for their own welfare.

out of consideration for their own welfare.

A meeting will be held today and the council expects to settle the wages question, the laborers feeling confident that their demands will be acceded to.

A public mass meeting was held last evening in Berryman's hall to discuss the strike situation. Chas. McCrystal, president of the Trades and Labor Council, was elected chairman of the meeting. Peter Sharkey. Mr. Brown, George Blair and Rabbi Rabinowitz spoke briefly, the latter proposing that a benefit fund should be started for the strikers, and opening it himself by a liberal contribution. A neat sum was soon made up and handed to the treasurer. Peter Sharkey reviewed the strike in all its details, finding no fault with the strikers, but blaming the city officials themselves for the existing state of affairs. He scored Alderman Millidge and said that Mr. Cushing was an official incompetent to attend to the duties of this responsible position.

Mr. Brown, who followed Mr. Sharkey, advocated the removal of the present council at the next election. He thought that the aldermen should give their services free.

George Blair wanted to know what became of the vegetables raised on the city, forew with a horse owned by the city and obtained the services of a man employed by the city.
