WEED SEEDS FOUND IN DIFFERENT SOILS

Information Sent Out By Seed Branch at Ottawa.

The presence of weed seeds in soils under different systems of culture and cropping should be suggestive to farmers. An investigation being conducted by the Seed Branch, Ottawa, shows a soil field which had been in hay or pasture for six years to contain 19,183 weed seeds in a surface square yard one inch deep, 8,912 in the same volume of soil at a depth from two to three inches, and 4,309 at a depth five to seven inches. Another field which had been under a good system of cultivation and rotation contained 4,884 weed seeds in the surface soil and 3,020 in each of the other depths. The concentration of seeds in the surface layer of the soil field may be explained by weeds being allowed to reproduce themselves from year to year. Information as to the percentage vitality of weed seeds at the different depths is not yet complete but a large number of the surface seeds in the case of the soil field are vital. This investigation indicates the importance of short rotations, good cultivation and prevention of weeds going to seed. Other important methods of weed control are summer ploughing of sod lands followed by frequent autumn cultivation to destroy growing weeds, thorough cultivation to cereal crops which have not been seeded down.

COSTS OF SECRET SERVICE

Every civilized country is known to have its Secret Service system, upon which large sums of money are spent every year.

The cost to each country varies according to the ramifications of the methods for finding out its neighbor's State secrets.

In the days of the Napoleonic Wars, for example, the British Parliament set apart large sums for the Secret Service.

In 1814 and 1815 the vote was for £175,000, but with the disappearance of Bonaparte the amount at once fell to £50,000. That is the figure at which it virtually stands today, although in recent years it has varied considerably.

An official return presented to Parliament recently shows how we compare in this respect with other countries. Austria-Hungary spends annually on Secret Service £60,000 and France £40,000. The German scale of expenditure is higher, and if we include sums placed annually at the disposal of the General Staffs of Prussia, Saxony and Wurttemberg, the total comes out at over £80,000 a year. Of this amount, £18,225 appeared in the Government return referred to as having been allocated thus: Foreign Office, £20,000; Army (Prussian Contingent), £17,250; Navy, £6,500. Italy devotes annually £150,000 to its Secret Service, and this amount is apportioned by the Ministry of the Interior as follows: For Secret Service £40,000; for police rewards, £24,800; for detective service at home and abroad, £46,000.

As for Russia, it is impossible to state exactly what sum is spent, but the probable amount is £800,000. Even in England the public knows nothing of how the Secret Service money is spent. In the national accounts details are never given of actual payments and disbursements. The fact is that the money is put at the disposal of Ministers to be expended at their discretion in promoting or protecting the interests of the country.

Among the European Powers, the Russian Secret Service is probably the finest, but it embraces many thousands of people who are merely volunteers in the art of discovering official secrets.

In France and Germany the Secret Service is supported by systematic investigation that does not rely in any
