Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills CURED.

Read what Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterside, N.B., says: "I feel it my duty to express the benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working and lie down for a while. Then I got so bad I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors attend me but they did me no good. I could get no relief until urged by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before I had used three quarters of a box I began to feel the benefit and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure nervousness, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, skip beats, and all troubles arising from the heart or nerves. Price 50 cts. box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers, or

A Physical Evil.

A recent number of Medical Talk has an article on the evil physical effects of "whining." Complaints, says the writer, are invariably made in a minor key. This monotony rasps the vocal chords, taxes nasal nerves and muscles that should not be brought into play at all in speaking, and tends to shallow, uneven breathing. The whiner, too, is almost without exception a more or less idle, lazy person. The habit of whining itself tends to sap initiative impulse and inrease phlagmatic tendencies. Habitual crease Phlagmatic tendencies. Habitual whining, not healthy, vigorous fault-finding where built really exists, but the help-iss. fuffic complaining of a narrow making too indolent to make any effort to The causes of complaint, has a defi-nitely deleterious physical effect on the whole constitution. Add to this the fac-that eternal fault-finding is more than likely to wear out the stanchest friend-ship and take the light from the loveliship and take the light from the loveliest countenance, and the full effects of this insidious and prevalent habit will be better appreciated. "Get the whine

The Profit in Eggs.

Cornell University Bulletin No. 211 affords some viluable suggestions on hens and eggs. It mentions one Wille Leghorn flock which averaged for the year 116.9 eggs per hen; another 137.4, and the third 134.8, the average of all being 129.7. It will be seen that the average number of be seen that the average number of eggs produced per hen is much less than that often claimed. Records of 200 eggs and more per hen have been frequently published in the agricultural press and elsewhere. Inasmuch as these flocks represent the better class of poultrymen, the fowl were in all probability much better fed and cared for than average flocks, it would seem that all claimed records of more than 150 eggs per hen per year should be abundantly verified before being accepted.

The average food cest of the eggs produced ranged from 5.9 cents per dozen in April and May to 49.1 cents per dozen in December, and the average per year was 9.2 cents per dozen. The average selling price of the eggs varied from 16.8 cents per dozen in April to 31.25 cents per dozen in January, with an average of 21.4 cents for the whole year. There were 1,200 fowl in the three flocks, and it cost an average of just about a dollar a year per pen for their food. Under the prices at which food and eggs were figured, the food cost 44 per cent. of the value of the eggs produced, leaving 56 per cent. to provide for labor, interest on investment and equipment, deprecia-

The Science of Flowers.

It is to be feared that among the embellishments of life, writes Sir Ed-win Arnold in The London Telegraph, flowers too often afford an example of how people will turn pleasures into toils. I noticed lately a tender little wail which arose from a lady who found herself overburdened with the too frequent task of arranging buds and blossoms for the passages and apartments of her London house. A lover of flowers, as everybody of good taste must be, she confessed to feeling something not unlike what the prisoner experiences when his day's allowance of bakum to be picked has just been served out, to see her butler climb the staircase, holding at arm's length on a vast tray the confused heap of blooms and foliage; behind him at the same time would come the parlormaid, staggering under a load of glasses and vases and what not, destined to hold the costly plunder of the morning. At first a delightful labor and always a graceful and sweet-scented one, it had come, said the fair complainant, to be a heavy and time-consuming task, growing more and more burdensome.

Backache and Kidney Disease of five years standing and he has no hesitation in stating that the cure was effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. Dake says speaking of his cure, "I am perfectly satisfied that the two or three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, as I have not been troubled by my Kidneys and pains in my back for over five years and nothing I used gave me any relief till I took the advice of a friend and tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. I advise all my friends to try them."

a heavy and time-consuming task, growing more and more burdensome. as the fashion of floral display extended, and the country every morning sent up to town such tempting wealth of roses and lilies and the rest. It is not the fault of the flowers, of course, except because, being so fragrant, so delicate, and so beautiful, they make slaves of all who serve them. On the contrary, it would decidedly tend to shock the mind of many a fair arranger of flowers it science went to the unkind pains of explaining to her how entirely free from any wish or intention to give pleasure are those exquisite roses and all those dainty blossoms. If there were, incled, a language of flowers, and the products of the parterre could speak, they would say, "Madam (or Miss), do not flatter yourself that one petal of us has been tinted, one bud expanded, one green leaf spread to the sunshine, or one single calyx among us has opened its wonderful apparatus of stamen and pis-til to nestle in your silken aresses or til to nestle in your silken tresses or to repose in not unequal rivalry above your rosy cheeks or upon your lily-white necks and bosoms. Not for you, however much the poets have lied to you, were we created, and never for you have we grown up to the glory and the grace for which we have become to-day your unwilling victims. We were made so lovely, so delicate and variously tinted, per unmed so divinely, and loaded with little chalices of nectar distilled from earth and steep by such of courtship A telegram to the heart in which distilled from earth and sky by such chemistry as your Royal Society never knew, wholly and solely to please a beetle, to attract a bee, to woo into our

all our families, because the law stands that it is best for plants and trees to wed abroad instead of to wed at

The Japanese are perhaps the only people on the earth who have under-stood all this, and who do not allow the flowers to embarrass or overwhelm them. Sensitive in every nerve to the glory of line and splendor of color in nature, they economize their admira-tion and confine it to a profound en-joyment of a few. instead of the wholesale collections indulged in by western people. They would no more regard one of our vast bouquets or bowpots as a proper mode of arranging flowers than we should call the motley crowd of spectators in the pit of a theatre an evening party. Their leading idea, entirely opposed to ours, is to get the full delight of shape and outline of natural balance and contrast from one or two floral specimens, and by no means to mass and thereby confuse them, so that even the truest eye and most sub-tle nostrils become bewildered in the tumult of beauty, like the ass of Buri

lanus between his equal bundles of Ruskin has somewhere expressed the Ruskin has somewhere expressed the opinion that flowers ought never to be plucked from their stalk, but left to grow, because their chief charm is their life, which is forieited when the blossom is broken off. But, although a flower is never so charming as where it is seen alive and fulfilling its floral purpose, that would sadly limit popular enjoyment of it. Perhaps this enjoyment is keenest among those who least comprehend the magic and the mystery of their being, and I am half afraid that the country girl who puts a flower in her hair, or the little ones who fill their small fingers with bluebells and May blossoms, have a pleasure in that glory of theirs which our Lord declared to be greater than Solomon's, untasted by mighty Darwin, when counting the seeds in a single capsule of an orchid, and showing how, but for a preventive law, that single the whole globe with orchis maculate.

Benefit of Spraying Apple Orchards. The experimental spraying operations carried on during the spring and summer by the Fruit Division, Ottawa, in the Woodstock and Ingersoll districts have been satisfactory beyond expectations, Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, expectations, Mr. W. A. MaeKinnon, chief of the Fruit Division, says that they furnish the best silustration of the necessity of spraying that he has ever seen. Aside from the vopportunities for comparison between sprayed and unsprayed orchards, chance has provided some remarkable proofs of the value of the operations. In every case where a single tree, or part of a tree, in one of the sprayed orchards was neglected the fruit on such tree or part of tree is to-day hardly worth the trouble of picking, while on all sprayed portions scab is hardly to be found.

clergyman somewhere by the as expressed his displeasure be-use some of the women who me to his church have fallen into a come to his church have fallen into a summer habit of coming without their hats. He has cited St. Paul as his authority for declaring from his pulpit that women ought to keep their heads sovered in church. They certainly look very nice with their heads covered as our church-going sisters are wont to cover them, but it seems reasonably doubtful whether St. Paul, if he had been managing a seaside church in the United States in this year of grace, would have thought it expedient to raise this question of millinery. In the matter of women's headgear the times have changed very much, and in nineteen hundred years both the cost and the distractiveness of women's hats have momentously increased. It was the fashion in Oriental Galilee in St. Paul's time for women tal Gaillee in St. Paul's time for women to keep their heads covered in public places. So is it the fashion here now, but circumstances alter cases. That our women have recently consented to take off their hats in the theaters has been

It is not any word of Scripture, or law, or a promise in the marriage service that makes the husband the senior and ruling partner but nature and the force of circum stances.

ances. Moreover, the fear which some your women have of having to obey a husband is just a bugaboo. As things turn out there is division of responsibility and therefore of authority. The withas her realm and rules in it. The husband takes her orders in matters under control, and she his in some other her control, and she his in some outers matters, and over other matters still they consult and agree upon a course. Of course a bossy husband is objection able, but a bossy husband is apt to be a good deal of an ass, and no young wo man ought to marry a man who is a good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good deal of an ass unless the exigency is good to the course of pressing and she can positively do better.—"Harper's Weekly."

She turned from him with a great sob

For a few moments blank silence reigned.

"Gertrude," he at length said, and as he spoke the look of indecision gradually faded from his brow, while a fuller volume of sound inflated his trembling voice, "do not say all is lost. Has he not you, his only child, left to him? Yes, my precious, my only love! Your duty is clear and unmistakable. Your whole life must be devoted, aye, sacrificed if necessary to the author of your being: the father who in the time of his wealth and power denied you nothing, who surrounded you with every luxury money could purchase and made your life a gem-bespangled dream of flowers. Yes, Gertrude, we must part, and for ever! I give you back your freedom now—at once! Heart-broken, crushed and wrefehed as it leaves me, I yet consent to carry this great grief with me to the grave; for what are my petty claims compared to his lifelong ones? Nay!"—seeing she was about to speak—"do not unman me; do not praise me for my nobility of soul; think of me simply as part of your sacrifice at the holy shrine of filial duty! Farewell!"

And ere her blurred vision grew clear he was out in the street—running rapidly over in his mind the names of other heiresses he knew, and the likelihood of any one of them consenting to heal his seared and broken heart with the golden salve of matrimony.—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

women have recently consented to take off their hats in the theaters has been hailed as a merciful concession, but the theaters are as public as the churches, and no reason suggests itself why what is good form in the one place shouldn't be good form in the other.

Moreover, in summer some of our grown girls are just now disposed to go about bareheaded. One sees them so in automobiles in town, and in the streets of the country villages. Why object, if they like it and think their complexions will stand it? It is in the interest of economy, and some people think it is good for the health, too. It is a passing quip, and bound soon to yield to freekles and tan, and when it does so yield the practice of dropping into church without a hat will go with it. St. Paul himself could well distinguish between essentials and inessentials, for after setting forth his views about covered heads for women and for men, does he not say, "But if any man seem to be contentious we have no such customneither the churches of God." Which was saying in effect that, after all, the question wasn't worth disputing over.

A kindred question has come up—so the papers say—in Vermont, where a young woman who expects soon to be married objects to promising to obey her future husband, and has been looking for a clergyman who will leave "obey" out of the marringe service which is to make her a wife. She has found one, but not in her own church. All the same, it will make little practical difference whether
