CAN MAKE MEN SOUND AND STRONG.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the disease of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, testicular trouble, blood poisoning, hydrocele, and all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many books on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply:

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room 6, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

Fog Plant's Virtues.

Fog fruit is the old name of a remarkable plant that is being distributed throughout the west through the enthusiastic agency of the Arizona experiment station. This plant may have taken its name from the fact that it can exist with the minimum amount of moisture. In any event this characteristic constitutes its chief value. It is not advocated as a forage plant, as animals do not like it, but its drought resisting qualities and endurance render it of exceptional value in the semi-arid western states as a soil binder. During the summer of last year a growth of fog fruit successfully maintained itself on an Arizona mesa for eight months with less than two inches of rainfall. As a lawn plant, where the usual grasses can only be grown with great difficulty, the fog fruit is a very desirable substitute. It maintains a compact mass of green foliage interspersed with small purple and white flowers, giving it the general appearance of a clover lawn. The fact that it does not require constant applications of the lawn mower to keep it in presentable condition is another valuable characteristic of the plant. Chief of all, however, are its soil binding properties, and for preventing the washing of reservoir and storm water embankments in dry regions it has no equal.

Doan's Kidney Pills

FINALLY MADE A COMPLETE CURE.

Mr. Jacob Jamieson, Jamieson Bros., the well-known Contractors and Builders, Welland, Ont., tells of how he was cured: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with kidney trouble which increased in severity the last five years. My most serious attack was four years ago, when I was completely incapacitated. I had terrible pains across my back, floating specks before my eyes and was in almost constant torment. I could not sit or stand with ease and was a wreck in health, having no appetite and lost greatly in flesh. I had taken medicine from five different doctors and also numerous other preparations to no purpose. I finally began to take Doan's Kidney Pills and before I had taken five boxes the trouble left me and I now feel better than I have for twenty years. Those who know me know how I was afflicted and say it is almost impossible to believe that I have been cured, yet they know it is so. I have passed the meridian of life but I feel that I have taken on the rosy hue of boyhood."

MAN OF SCOTLAND YARD.

Remarkable Reminiscences of a Well-Known Worker in the Happy Hunting Ground of the Detective Story Writer.

Many stirring episodes of the past quarter of a century are bound up in the career of Detective-Inspector Sweeney, says 'The St. James' Gazette. He was summoned for special service to the headquarters of criminal investigation in the early eighties, when the Fenians were asserting themselves; his smart work at Hammersmith, where he was then stationed, signalling him out for recognition by his superiors. He fully justified his selection during that trying period, and his services resulted in his being retained at Scotland Yard.

Inspector Sweeney has the unique record of having arrested four members of Parliament. One of them was the late Dr. Tanner. Some of the circumstances connected with the doctor's apprehension have never been previously related. It was in the boisterous days of the Home Rule movement. The doctor's inflammatory speeches had brought him within the pale of the law. He eluded arrest for many weeks after the warrant had been issued. One of his dodges was to address a meeting from a boat on an Irish lake, and at the close row to the opposite side, leaving the detective who had gone to arrest him helpless on the bank. On the night on which he fell into the hands of Detective Sweeney there was an important Irish division, and Farnell had summoned him to Westminster. His visit was to have been kept a profound secret, but the precautions taken did not leave Scotland Yard in ignorance of the plan, and Mr. Sweeney was at the House when Dr. Tanner drove up.

Doctor Feared Ridicule.

When it looked out among the members of Parliament that the police were on the watch, a hurried meeting was held to discuss how the doctor could be got away. A titled lady who was a sympathiser was in the precincts of the House, and she offered to place her wardrobe and her carriage at Dr. Tanner's disposal. The majority present at the meeting favored this method of escape, and strongly urged its adoption upon the doctor. But the latter listened to the wisdom of the minority, who pointed out that he would be arrested sooner or later. The argument, however, that most appealed to him was that a lasting stigma would attach to a secret departure of the character suggested, and that he would run the risk of being dubbed 'the petticoat politician.' The probability of his arrest had got noised abroad, and when he left the House about one o'clock in the morning he had an escort of all the members of the Irish party and many of the Liberal members. The procession with Conservatives who had assembled out of curiosity, numbered some 250. Mahon, who was one of the party, struck up 'The Men of Harlech,' and the vocal company sang the procession marched to the Westminster Palace Hotel. Mr. Sweeney did not interrupt the proceedings, allowing the doctor and some of his friends to get comfortably seated in the smoking room of the hotel before he disclosed his presence. He assured the doctor, in answer to a question, that he was in no particular hurry, and the conversation was resumed. In the company there were no fewer than five members of Parliament who had gone through the experienced waiting of Dr. Tanner—one of them had been released the previous day—and they primed the novice, as the doctor then was, on prison routine. It is a testimony to the officer's tact and courtesy in an unpleasant position that Dr. Tanner frequently called upon Mr. Sweeney at Scotland Yard when he was in London.

He Knew Anarchists.

No man was more feared by the anarchists than Inspector Sweeney. He not only knew personally every anarchist in this country, but he shared all their secrets, and was able to put his hand upon any of them at an hour's notice. They tried by every means in their power to put him 'off the scent,' but neither the change of the meeting places nor cellar assemblies availed them anything. Owing chiefly to the vigilance and excellent organization of Mr. Melville and Mr. Sweeney the number of anarchists in this country has been steadily decreasing during the past few years. Some of the clubs have been closed, and many of these pests of society, finding the restraint of the cordons thrown round them somewhat embarrassing, have returned to 'the sunny south.'

Panic on Change.

A case in which Mr. Sweeney figured prominently was that of Pelti and Farnara. These anarchists had arranged to throw a bomb into the Stock Exchange at midday, with the object of killing as many as possible of the money kings who generally assemble in large numbers there at that hour. Mr. Sweeney knew of the plot some weeks before it was to be carried out, watched every movement of Pelti, who manufactured the bomb, and rode with him on the bus to the Stock Exchange. The bomb is in the museum at Scotland Yard, and it is still by far the largest that has come into the possession of the police. It is about six inches long, and has an internal diameter of three and a half inches.

It has been Mr. Sweeney's privilege during his distinguished and varied career to come in contact with the highest in the land, as well as his duty to mix with the lowest types of humanity. He has guarded the movements of Kings and Queens and other exalted personages.

It is not generally known that Queen Victoria, in pursuit of her musical inclinations, used to take a deep interest in strolling players. Very often she would ask itinerant musicians whom she saw playing the usual-looking instruments to be brought to her, and Mr. Sweeney sometimes had to search high and low to find a man in this category whom Her Majesty had noticed the previous day.

"It may cost you a few years of the hardest work you ever bucked down to," said Miller, "and some sleepless nights, but I really believe you have fallen on to a better thing than any I ever struck. I could make it while I've already done something that will astonish you. I happen to know slightly Tillman Wilson, the president of the Southern Land and Timber company. Their offices are in Atlanta. I knew he was my man to tackle, so when I got to Atlanta yesterday I ran upon him just as if it were accidental. I invited him to lunch with me at the Capitol City club; you know I'm a nonresident member. You see, I knew if I put myself in the light of a man with something to sell, he'd hurry away from me, but I didn't. As a pretext I told him I had some clients up here who wanted to raise a considerable amount of money and that the security offered was fine timber land. You see that caught him; he was on his own ground. I saw that he was interested, and I boomed the property to the skies.

"The more I talked the more he was interested, till it was bubbling all over him. He's a New Englander, who thinks a country lawyer without a Harvard education belongs to an effete civilization, and I let him think he was pumping me. I even left off my g's and ignored my r's. I let him think he had struck the softest thing of his life. Pretty soon he began to want to know if you cared to sell, but I skirted that indifferently, as if I had no interest whatever in it. I told him your father had bought the property to hold for an advance; that he had spent years of his life picking out the richest timber spots and buying them up. Then he came right out, as I hoped he would, and asked me the amount you wanted to borrow on the property. I had to speak quick, and remembering that you had said the old gentleman had put in about $20,000 first and last, I put the amount at $25,000. I was taking a liberty, but I can easily get you out of it if you decide not to do it."

"Twenty-five thousand? On that land?" Alan cried. "It would tickle my father to death to sell it for that."

"I can arrange the papers so that you are not liable for any security outside of the land, and it would practically amount to a sale if you wished it, but you don't wish it. I finally told him that I had an idea that you would sell out for an even hundred thousand."

"A hundred thousand!" repeated Alan, with a cheery laugh. "Yes, we'd let go at that."

"Well, the figures didn't scare him a bit, for he finally came right out and asked me if it was my opinion that in case his company made the loan you would agree to give him the right of the land at $100,000. I told him I didn't know, that I thought it possible, but that just then I had no interest in the matter beyond borrowing a little money on it. He asked me how long I was going to stay in Atlanta. I told him I was going to a bank and take the night train back. The banks will stick you for a high rate of interest," he said jealously. "They don't do business for fun, while really our concern happens just now to have some idle capital on hand. Do you think you could let me 5 per cent? I admitted that it was low enough, but I got up as if I was suddenly reminded that the bank closed early in the afternoon. 'I think we can make the loan,' he said, 'but I must first see two or three of the directors. Can't you give me two hours? I finally gave in and promised to meet him at the Kimball House at 4. I went to a matinee, saw it half over and went in at the ladies' entrance of the hotel. I saw him looking about for me and dodged him."

"Dodged him?" echoed Alan. "Why?" Miller laughed. "You don't suppose I'd let a big fish like that see me flitting my hook and pole about in open sunlight, do you? I saw by his manner that he was anxious to meet me, and that was enough. Besides, you can't close a deal like that in a minute, and there are many slips. I went back to the club and threw myself on a lounge and began to smoke and read an afternoon paper. Presently he came in a cab. I heard him asking for me in the hall and buried my head in the paper. He came in to me, and I rose and looked stupid. I can do it when I try, if it is something God has failed at, and I began to apologize.

"He didn't seem to care. 'If it had been a deal of your own,' he said, with a laugh, 'you'd have been more prompt,' and I managed to look guilty. Then he sat down.

"Our directors are interested," he said confidentially. "The truth is, there is not another concern in America that can handle property as cheaply as we can. We happen to have a railroad about that length up in east Tennessee. I have played out, and you see we could move it to where it would do some good."

"As soon as he told me that I knew he was our man. Besides, I saw trade in his eyes as big as an arc light. To make a long tale short, he is coming up here tonight, and if your father is willing to accept the loan he can get the money, giving only the land as security—provided we don't slip up. Here's the only thing I'm afraid of. When Wilson gets here, he may get to making inquiries around and drop on to the report that your father is disgusted with his investment, and smell a mouse and pull off. What I want to do is to get at him the first thing after breakfast in the morning, so you'd better bring your father and mother in early. If we once get Wilson's twenty-five thousand into it, we can eventually sell out. The main thing is the loan. Don't you think so?"

"I certainly do," said Alan. "Of course a good many things might interfere. We'd have to get a right of way and a charter before the road could be built, and I reckon they won't buy till they are sure of those things."

"No; it may take a long time and a lot of patience," said Miller, "but your father could afford to wait if he can get his money back by means of the loan. I tell you that's the main thing. If I had offered to sell Wilson the whole thing at $25,000, he never would have come up here, but he is sure now that the property is just what he is looking for. Oh, we are not certain of him by a long jump! It all depends on whether he will insist on going over there or not. If he does, those moss-backs will bust the thing wide open. If he comes straight to my office in the morning, the deal may be closed, but if he lies around the hotel talking, somebody will spoil our plans, and Wilson will hang off to make his own terms later—if he makes any at all. It's ticklish, but we may win."

"Twenty-five thousand! On that land?"

"It is a rather ticklish situation," admitted Alan, "but even if we do get the loan on the property, don't you think Wilson may delay matters and hope to scoop the property in for the debt?"

"He might," Miller smiled, "if he didn't want to move that railroad somewhere else, and besides, your father can keep the money in suitable shape to pay off the note in any emergency and free himself."

"I don't know how to thank you, old man," answered Alan. "If you had been personally interested in this, you could not have done more."

Miller threw himself back in his chair and smiled significantly. "Do I look like a man with nothing in it?" he asked.

"But you haven't anything in it," retorted Alan wonderingly.

To Be Continued.

Miss Rose Hennessy, well known as a poetess and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been so blessedly helped through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it but just to acknowledge it, hoping that it may help some other woman suffering as I did. For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and receptions thinly clad and would be suddenly chilled, but I did not think of the results. I caught a bad cold eighteen months ago while menstruating, and this caused inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well.

"I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was."—Miss Rose Nona Hennessy, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove beyond a question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble and at once, by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a normal and healthy condition.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—About two years ago I consulted a physician about my health which had become so wretched that I was no longer able to be about. I had severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen, was very nervous and irritable, and this trouble grew worse each month. The physician prescribed for me, but I soon discovered that he was unable to help me, and I then decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and soon found that it was doing me good. My appetite was returning, the pains disappearing, and the general benefits were well marked.

"You cannot realize how pleased I was, and after taking the medicine for only three months, I found that I was completely cured of my trouble, and have been well and hearty ever since, and no more fear the monthly period, as it now passes without pain to me. Yours very truly, Miss Pearl Ackers, 327 North Summer St., Nashville, Tenn."

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health more than a million women, you cannot well say without trying it "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, do not hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Her advice is free and helpful. Write to-day. Delay may be fatal.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.
