The History of a Life.

Day dawned; within a curtained room, Filled to faintness with perfume, A lady lay, at point of doom.

Spring rose; the lady's grave was green.

And near it afterward was seen.

A gentle boy with thoughtful mien.

And then—he died! Behold before ye, Humanity's poor sum and story, Life—death—and all there is of glory.

NEWS FROM IRELAND.

DUBLIN.

A revished list of those seats which the Home Rulers intend to contest, or to pure by the expulsion of the trimmers, will soon be published. The black list will contain the names of several Irish members, nominally Home Rulers, but considered objectionable, either personally, or because of the defectiveness of their political principles.

The oney provided that the latter could do nothing for them they shouted that they would not stand hunger much longer.

LIMERICK.

Lord Francis Osborne, brother of the Duke of Leeds, has declared himself to be a Home Ruler, and ready to come forward as a candidate for the workhouse to put their case before the Guardians. When informed that the latter could do nothing for them they shouted that they would not stand hunger much longer.
