WOMEN SUFFRAGE COMMITTEE ASKED

Women Appear at Washington With a Special Plea.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Supported in their arguments by several members of the House, delegates to the National Council of Women Voters appeared today before the House Suffrage Committee to urge the creation of a woman suffrage committee in the lower branch of Congress. The women were led by Mrs. Emma Smith Devoe, president of the Council; Representatives Raker of California, Keating of Colorado and Falconer of Washington were on hand to champion their cause.

Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, Dr. Viola M. Coe of Oregon, Dr. Cora Smith-Lynn of Washington, and Mrs. Francis Bjorkman of Colorado were announced to make the principal arguments for the appointment of a suffrage committee. The fact that such a committee had long existed in the Senate, the women believed, was sufficient reason why a similar committee should be available to them in the representative branch of Congress.

In anticipation of a large audience the rules committee abandoned its original intention to hold the hearing in its own room. Instead the women were received by Chairman Hendry and his colleagues in the conference room in the House office building, the largest chamber in the structure. Reports on the recent international suffrage convention at Budapest and papers on conditions in the states of Washington, Colorado and Oregon were on the programme of the afternoon session. A garden party to-night will conclude the second day's conference.

THREE SHOT BY A MAD POLICEMAN.

Eighty Armed Officers Scour Country for Assailant.

After evading capture for four and twenty hours, Bernard McCarney, a Londonderry policeman, who suddenly lost his reason and shot three men gave himself up on Tuesday. McCarney was ill, and two constables had sat up with him at the Lecky-road Police Barracks, Londonderry. While they were in an adjoining room he came in from the bedroom armed with a magazine rifle and fired at both, shattering the arm of one and badly injuring the other. He then rushed out and shot a fisherman named Brandon, the bullet passing along his ribs. He then escaped to the country. He had complained of pain in his head, and suddenly became deranged.

McCarney had his rifle, and twenty rounds of ammunition with him when he fled from the barracks, and attempting his capture was a dangerous task. Eighty policemen with rifles were detailed to search for him, but through various rumors as to his whereabouts came in nothing tangible was known until Tuesday. Then he was located in a wood near Burk, six miles from Londonderry. Impelled by hunger, he sought food three times during the day, and went to the house of a postman for a drink of water. The madman still had his rifle in his hand, but when he attempted to shoot at anyone, but when near an agricultural labourer he fired a shot in the air. Then he proceeded towards a plantation in the vicinity, being followed at a safe distance by several villagers.

A strong party of police was immediately on the scene. Two shots were fired in the air, and when he saw his comrades approach McCarney flung his rifle to the ground and quietly gave himself up. He was worn out.

McCarney was charged with wounding Acting Sergeant Flannery, Constable Hayden and Brandon. A constable who assisted as escort stated that he talked to him quite calmly and rationally about the shooting. Asked why he fired at his comrades, McCarney said he thought they were waiting to harm him. As for Brandon, he said the man mimicked him. ANCASTER, Ont.

Rectory is Ransacked

Earl's Butler Has Alarming Encounter With Fugitives.

How a couple of men who, it is alleged, had made a rich haul at Newton St. Loc Rectory, near Bath, lost spoils and liberty through over-indulgence in the rector's spirits was described at Weston Police Court, London, England.

John Crowley and Joseph Warren were charged with breaking into the rectory and stealing various articles of silver. The rector, the Rev. Paquet Lambert Bayly, had been away with his household on a visit for several days, and according to the evidence, on the previous morning Watson, the gardener noticed that the glass of the French window of the dining room opening on to the lawn had been broken.

He raised an alarm, and Mr. Daniell's butler at Newton Park, Earl Temple's residence, caught one of the fugitives as he was climbing on to a shed. He uttered such terrible threats however, that Daniell released him; whereupon he scaled a wall, but fell heavily on the other side and was captured. His companion was also caught.

On the way to the station they handed to the police numerous solid silver articles, including a bonbon basket, forks, spoons, sugar-tongs and flower vases all from the rectory. The house had been ransacked from top to bottom. Decanters of brandy and whiskey had been nearly emptied. A remand was ordered.

He Pleaded Guilty.

SIFTON NOT A BLUE RUINIST

Premier of Alberta Speaks Hopefully of Conditions in The West.

[Canadian Press Despatch]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 15.—Hon. Arthur L. Sifton, premier of Alberta, is not one of the men from the west who takes much stock in the "blue ruin" cry which tight money conditions have produced. He arrived in Ottawa today and to the Canadian Press said that general business in the West is good with the outlook for better things hopeful. "Among real estate men business may be quiet just now," he said, "but I assure you financially and industrially there is very little to complain about. Alberta will, I think, be able to look after her financial affairs without very much trouble, if any, because of the rapid growth going on everywhere."

Hon. Mr. Sifton said that the harvest promises to be bountiful. He is en route to visit his brother, Hon. Clifford Sifton at Assiniboine Lodge, near Brockville.

Fatally Injured.

Funerals to Be Cheaper

Motor Omnibus to Carry Coffin, Minister, and Mourners.

A company has been formed in Chicago, having for its object the reduction of the cost of funerals in the city which is very high, his company has provided ten motor omnibuses, each large enough to contain a coffin and funeral party of ordinary size. The funeral coaches have a compartment at the right of the chauffeur's seat for the coffin, and above it a place for flowers. Near the driver are places for the minister and the undertaker, while there is accommodation in the bus for twenty-seven mourners. Such a funeral with this number of mourners can be carried out for $30, which is an immense reduction on the present price.

LORD ROSEBERY ON GOOD MANNERS

Advice to Boys to Cultivate Habit of Courtesy—Its Commercial Value.

In the course of an entertaining speech delivered by Lord Rosebery, Guildford Grammar School on Monday on the occasion of the distribution of prizes, his lordship upon the importance of good manners for the boy and the man.

At the outset he said that he first began distributing prizes himself was rather haunted with reflection that he did not get all prizes which possibly greater try might have enabled him to attain. (Laughter) Commenting on the remarkable success of his brother's named Champion de la term he said he could not gether share the regret of the master that there were no more Champions to enter the school, but that he gave the other families a chance. (Laughter)

"In the school statutes framed years ago," he went on, "they that honesty and cleanness of genuinely decent speech, hum courtesy, and good manners as he established in the school. At the point I wish to labour is the courtesy and good manners."

"The men of the seventeenth century were I suspect the art bread of Englishmen that England has ever produced—partly because they possessed good manners, and partly because they recognized enormous importance of courteous good manners in the common actions of life.

"We English people—and I am afraid still more we Scots people have never been famous for manners, I think at one time was a sort of John Bull feeling England that good manners were device of dancing, frog-eating Frenchmen, whom it was our duty to spise and defeat (Laughter)."

"That was a false view. A who respects himself is always mannered to others. We distribute when we visit schools, are very to judge of the character of a boy by the respect the boys pay to masters. If we go to a school the boys do not touch their hats their masters when they meet form, perhaps erroneously, a poor opinion of that school.

Tribute to Ourselves
"When we touch our hats to our master we mean he is the head of the community, and as the head of the community, we pay ourselves tribute by exalting him. When King goes through the streets, are fortunate enough to see him take off our hats to him. That mark of respect to the King in first place, but in the second, it is a mark of respect to our that we wish to show our veneration to the head of the community which we belong.

"I think there has been a decrease in manners in England and Scotland all over the world. It is a good sign. If people have not spirit of reverence themselves, if it be an outward reverence, are not going the right way and possibly going the wrong way. Manners have an enormous commercial value in life.

"In public life, I have seen no appearance and manners get started of much abler fellows that have been able to occupy a much higher than their own ab services would entitle them. Take three boys applying for a position of learning, another boy so good a boy but still abler than third may not have the same ab of either, but if he has good manners and instead of grunting an art like the first boy, or of not answering like the second, he gives a respectful, not gringing, answer to the questions, it is ten to one against the other two."

"I ask every boy if he for everything else I have said to be mind the enormous value of manners without them, and will they start of other boys who do try to be or are well-mannered."
