Ayer's Sarsaparilla

For Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Eruptions and Eruptions of the Skin, Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers, in the Bones, Skin and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhoea, arising from internal obstructions, and Uterine disease, Syphilis and Mercurial diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, General Debility, and for Purifying the Blood.

This Sarsaparilla is a combination of vegetable alteratives—Sillington, Mantra, Yellow Root—with the iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure.

Its ingredients are so carefully combined, that the full alternative effect of each is secured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effective as to purge out from the system those impurities and corruption which develop into loathsome disease.

The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it, prove their experience of its usefulness.

Certificates attesting its virtues have accumulated, and are constantly being received, and as many of these cases are publicly known, they furnish convincing evidence of the superiority of this Sarsaparilla over every other alternative medicine. So generally is its superiority to any other medicine known, that we need do more than to assure the public that the best qualities it has ever possessed are strictly maintained.

Shot Dead at his own Door.

The Murder of Dr. Henry C. Moss—Escape of the Assassin.

From the St. Louis Post.

The quiet, rustic town of Venice, Ill., just above East St. Louis, was this morning the scene of a dastardly murder. The victim was Dr. Henry C. Moss, one of the most respectable physicians in Illinois. The house is a small country cottage, containing only two rooms. In front is a small yard, adorned with various flowers, while a trellis work covered with creeping vines stands in front of the door.

About 10 minutes past 1 o'clock this morning Dr. Moss, who was not feeling well, left his bedroom, telling his wife that he intended to take some medicine. He lit a lamp, went into the other room and obtained the physic. He then returned, leaving the lamp burning. At the window he noticed the face of a man peering in. The face appeared to be of a dark complexion, and belonged evidently either to a very dirty white man or a mulatto. The imperfect light in the room did not admit of a close scrutiny.

The Doctor pressing it to be some one who wished his professional services, opened the door after a slight hesitation, as he was only clad in a night dress. He perceived two men standing near the window, whose countenances were rudely and in expression. He looked out. "What are you doing in my yard?" One of the men replied, but his wife, who was listening in bed, was unable to hear the answer. The Doctor then added, "You know better than that. It is not that you want."

As the men still remained and showed no signs of departing, but stood with looks of anger on their faces, he said, "Get out of here or I will shoot you." Without replying or attempting to go, one of the men drew a revolver and fired, hitting Moss two inches above and a little to the right of the left nipple. Dr. Moss turned toward his wife and, placing his hand on the window, exclaimed, "I am shot, I am dead," and fell face downward on the floor, with one hand raised as if to grasp the best support.

Most of the men present help. Seeing that the men had gone, and as no one answered her cries, she ran to the residence of Mr. J. D. Bennett, who lives next door, and told him that her husband was shot. Mr. Bennett ran for Dr. Youree.

The Doctor arrived, and two minutes after the shooting, Moss had expired.

A search for the murderer, under the leadership of T. L. Canner, the Marshal of Venice, began. Tracks of two men were seen in the yard.

Every man in the town, and there were a very large number, took very large, the man who made it probably wearing a number nine shoe, and the other about number six. The smaller track was made with very sharp pointed heels. These tracks were traced to the railway crossing at the telegraph station, and there separated, one man going directly to the river, and the other pursuing his course down the railroad track to ward East St. Louis.

Tracing the tracks of the man who walked on the railroad further, which was very easy to do, as the ground is covered with a layer of coal, it was found that he was joined by the other man who had run toward the river. The pursuing party traced the tracks of the men to the bridge, and were told there that they had just crossed. Five men have been arrested, and are now in the hands of the law.

The party in pursuit of the murderers while walking back to Venice this morning from East St. Louis found the cap of a cartridge on the railroad track, and just beside the tracks of the men. This cap was probably dropped by one of the assassins while cleaning his revolver. It is very small. The murdered man was a Mason in good standing.

No Secret.

The little wavelets leaped to look, When floating in our little boat My Jamie first kissed me.

The regular stars again did wink And twinkle in their glee, While along glided the moon, Yet Jamie he kissed me.

The birds along the river bank Did fly from tree to tree, And woke their sleepy mates to tell That Jamie had kissed me.

O Jamie, Jamie, moor our bark And let us somewhere flee, Where they can neither see nor tell—Then, dearest, I'll kiss thee.

All women play cards alike. Watch a woman as a game of whist and you'll get a pretty good idea of how all women play whist. La, me, Henry, is it my play? Let me see—second hand lay—that's the first time around of that suit, ain't it? Well, I'll play—no, I hardly think I will—now you stop looking at my hand—did you see anything? Of course I'm going to play, but I must have time to think—what's the trump?—spades—I thought 'twas clubs—well I'll—no—yes—well, there!

Then she will clap an ace on her partner's king, and insist on keeping the trick for fear she will be cheated out of it in the final count.—St. Louis Journal.

A SINGULAR DISCOVERY has been made on board the "Irvine," a full-rigged vessel, recently in the dry dock at Rotherhithe, London. The body is in a good state of preservation, and is supposed to be that of a victim of an earthquake which occurred many years ago in Peru. Rings are found in the ears.

A tract of 7,000 acres of land on the line of the Richmond and Danville Railroad, about ninety miles west of Richmond, has been purchased by a Roman Catholic emigration society organized in Philadelphia, for the purpose of founding an exclusive Roman Catholic colony. There are thirty-six dwelling houses, two well-appointed mills and some other buildings on the property.

Why the Rev. Mr. Mudge Stopped His Paper.

From the Indianapolis Times.

Some years ago when the writer was a reporter upon an Eastern paper, it devolved on him to write for the same edition an account of the presentation of a gold-headed cane to the Rev. Mr. Mudge, the clergyman of the place, and description of a new hog-killing machine that had just been put in operation at the factory.

Now, what made the Rev. Mr. Mudge mad was this: The inconsiderate buccannier who made up the form got the two locals mixed in a frightful manner, and when we went to press, something like this was the appalling result:

"Some of the Rev. Mudge called on him yesterday, and after a brief consultation the unsuspecting hog was seized by the hind legs and slid along the beam until he reached the hot water tank. His friends explained the object of their visit and presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane, which he grasped in his tail, and swung him around in a circle, and in a moment he was in the water. Thereupon he came forward and said there were times when the feelings overpowered one, and for that reason he would not move any farther to attempt to thank those around him for the manner in which so huge an animal was cut in fragments as was astonishing. The doctor concluded his remarks, the machine seized him, and, in less than it takes to write it, the hog was cut into fragments and worked into delicious sausage. The occasion will be remembered by the doctor's friends as one of the most delightful of their lives. The best pieces can be obtained for fifteen cents per pound, and we are sure those who sat under his ministry will rejoice to hear that he has been so handsomely treated."

Mad! Well, about nine o'clock that morning the office had been abandoned by every man but the advertising clerk, and he ascended to the roof and robbed himself in boiler room, so that he could see the clergyman tearing around down in the street with his congregation, all wearing the panny of war, and carrying butcher knives and things. The next day we apologized, but the next day the doctor stopped his subscription.

RETRIBUTION.—Two Germans fresh from Chicago visited New York, and one, well acquainted with the city, invited his friend to Delmonico's, where a dinner for two and a bottle of wine were ordered. The place and fare were praised until the bill of $11 was presented. They paid, however, and while walking down Broadway the excited German commenced to swear at the supposed extortion. His friend then said: "Do not swear, Jacob. It is wicked to swear. God has punished dot man Delmonico." "How?" "I have mine pocket full of spoons."

NEAL Dow complains very bitterly that his denial has never been able to catch up with a very circumstantial story sent out some years ago declaring the Maine Liquor law to be in operation. He says, however, annually $1,000,000 by the operation of the law (or about $40 a head for men, women and children); the law has been a great success since its establishment; the liquor traffic has been absolutely extinguished in the State. He says, however, that the State, and while it lingers a party in the cities and larger towns it is carried on upon a very small scale and only by the lowest and vilest class of the population, &c., &c.

OF THE 206 members of the Dominion House of Commons 11 are journalists, 15 farmers, 6 manufacturers, 11 doctors, 5 shipbuilders, 3 insurance presidents, 10 lumbermen, 8 millwrights, 4 civil engineers, 2 contractors, 1 brewer, 1 school inspector, 1 banker, 55 lawyers, 56 merchants, and 17 gentlemen of leisure. They are all patriots besides.

This person who takes a paper nearly a year, reads it every week that it is published, and then evades the issue of payment on the flimsy quibble that he "never subscribed for it," might own all the steamboats on the river, and still it wouldn't make a man of him.

If your local paper doesn't exactly suit you don't go to running it down and abusing the editor, but go to work and help him make it better by furnishing your local itemizer or editor-in-chief with such items of interest as happens to come under your observation.—Salem Democrat.

The Bridgeport, Conn., Coasting Club boasts a double-end sailing thirty feet long, with a carrying capacity for twenty-eight persons and 5,000 pounds weight. It is steered by pulleys and has a powerful brake and a fifteen-inch gong to warn other coasters to get out of the way.

WILLIAM SHAW, a convict at Joliet, Ill., has baffled a court. He had been stabbed by a fellow convict, and when the latter was brought to trial refused to testify against him. The Court couldn't commit him for contempt because he was already a prisoner, and so that was the end of the case.

TOLAN, afterward Lord Chief Justice Norbury, was asked to contribute a shilling toward the expense of burying a poor London attorney, who had died. He exclaimed: "Only a shilling to bury an attorney! Here is a guinea; go and bury twenty-one of them."

Capt. Charles Sager, who keeps a superb stock of liver horses in Portland, Me., informed us recently that he uses "Sheridan's Cough Condition Powder" regularly in his stables, and that the expense is more than offset by the diminished amount of grain necessary to keep his horses always in good order.
