"A GHOST SEEN IN NOON-

DAY.

THE STORY WHICH IS EXCITING

ENGLAND.

We have received the follow-extraordinary narrative from a correspondent for whose good faith and professional acuteness of observation we can vouch.
He substantiates his story with full details of dates, names and places, which, however, for the sake of the survivors, he does not wish to be published. Without any further preface we lay his letter before our readers:— As my wife and I were sitting at breakfast with a guest whom I will call Mr. A.—then on a visit for the first time to our house and neighborhood—our maid servant passed out of the room on her way to the kitchen. As she closed the door Mr. A. started me by saying: "I saw a spirit of a man following that woman, who, as he passed, said distinctly in my hearing, 'God judgeth not as man judgeth. I was innocent of the murder for which I have been hanged.'" "What is it like?" I asked. He replied by describing a young Irishman whom I recognized at once as the husband of my domestic, who a year or two before had been executed on the charge of murder. Mr. A., a complete stranger to the locality, had only met me for the first time two days before, and he was totally ignorant of the crime in which my servant was so deeply interested. For obvious reasons the subject was never alluded to in our household, where the widow was regarded with feelings of sympathy, which led us to avoid as much as possible all reference to her husband's fate. I had previously good reason to doubt whether the evidence against him justified his execution. He had died protesting his innocence. His wife and friends were firmly convinced that although he had been in the fight, it was not by his hand the fatal blow had been dealt.
In addition to this, I had good reason to believe that the real murderer was still at large. You can easily imagine my astonishment when, thus suddenly ventured upon forbidden ground, and abruptly declared that the spirit of a man who had suffered the capital penalty and whose personal appearance exactly coincided with that of the unfortunate Irishman, was actually following the servant about the house proclaiming his innocence in accents which, although inaudible to me, my guest declared were perfectly audible to him. I had heard that Mr. A. had been a "seer," but I was not a little startled at this striking illustration of his peculiar faculty. I remarked that it was very strange, and informed him that the woman whom he had just seen for the first time when her ghostly companion was really the widow of an executed felon. Some time afterward he exclaimed—"There he is again repeating the same words!" Intensely interested by his sudden and apparently supernatural confirmation of my suspicions, I determined to put

The Star.

the seership of my guest to what I regarded as a crucial test. I told Mr. A. that shortly afterward I was going into the town, and as I should be passing the spot where the murder was committed perhaps his ghostly visitant might indicate the place where the dead man lay. Sometime afterward we started for the town. When we left the house Mr. A. remarked, "There he is following us," alluding to the spirit. When we had proceeded part of the way along the road, which was quite unknown to my friend, I made a detour to make a business call and went along another street. Mr.
A. said, "The spirit is standing at the corner. He says we are not going the right way toward the place where the murder was committed, and which he has promised to point out to me." I replied, "Oh, we shall come out in the main road again by and before we reach the spot." We proceeded on about a quarter of a mile, and having done my business and struck the main road again—which differed, I may remark, from none of the other roads we had traversed—Mr. A. soon after declared, "There is that man just on there, waiting for us." As we continued our walk, I purposely refrained from uttering a word, even from thinking, as far as I could, about the murder, so as to prevent any possibility of my companion obtaining any clue. As we were passing through one of the lowest parts of the town Mr. A. suddenly exclaimed—"He tells me that it was here the murder was committed. It was just there (pointing to the place in the road where the murdered man fell). I see the hubbub and confusion right up before me as a picture, with the people round. He, however, again tells me that he did not strike the fatal blow. He does not excuse himself from being morally guilty as being mixed up with those who accomplished the death of the man, but strongly maintains he was not the murderer." I will only add that in relation to the last incident that Mr. A. described the exact spot where the murder was committed and the circumstances in connection therewith.
How can you account for that?
Mr. A. had never been in town before; he had never lived within a hundred miles of it; he did not know till within a day or two before he arrived that he would ever visit it; he could not by any possibility have known that the poor woman in my employ was the widow of a man who was hanged. He had no conceivable interest in deceiving me, nor was he concerned to prosecute the matter any further. I have in vain attempted to account for his story, nor can I on any of the popular hypotheses explain to my own satisfaction how he saw that ghost at noonday.—Pall Mall Gazette.

HUMOROUS.

The tobacco crop is very short this year, but that will not affect the quality, quantity or price of Connecticut havanas.
Nor will it affect the industrious chewer who begs his tobacco.

A miller in Peru, Indiana, fell asleep in his mill and bent forward till his hair got caught in some machinery and was yanked out, and of course it awakened him, and his first bewildered exclamation was, "Durn it, wife, what's the matter now?"

An Irish servant girl, a year over, was given macaroni by her mistress to prepare for the table.
Noticing her surprise, the lady said, "Didn't you cook macaroni at your last place?" "Cook it? We used them things to light the gas with."

An exchange prints "rules to discover spurious bank notes." But we don't want to discover bank notes of that description.
It is the genuine kind we are looking for, and rules for discovering several thousands of these would be very acceptable.

The landlords of Yorktown celebrated the centennial by charging $10 a day for beds in the hay-mow. If it was the ancestors of these brigands who charged at Yorktown, we don't wonder that Cornwallis surrendered. The only wonder is that he didn't go back to England in his bare feet, with a blanket pinned around his neck.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick or suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of croup? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it, there is no mistake about it.
There is not a mother on earth who has ever used this medicine, who does not feel that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, separating like magic. It is perfectly safe in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest female physicians and nurses in the United States.
