(Concluded.) TTIE kept her face turned from him, and even tried to conceal it with her arm. He nearer to her; then stopped, attered a cry, and was upon her. Seizing her by the arms and almost lifting her in the excitement of his eagerness, he cried out:

'Ronnie! Yes, it is Ronnie! Why -why have you been hiding from me? Ronnie! Ronnie, my boy! Don! you know me? Don't be frightened? For Cottie's face had grown white, and she was staring at him, tortured by the questions: Will he recognise me? There's nothing so be frighten about. It's me-Geoffrey! And to find you here, all in a moment, so suddenly I've been looking for you for months -vears, it seems, I was here weeks ago, and you didn't know it, and I didn't know you were here until you had gone! And I have come back for you! My-boy, my boy, look at me! Say you are glad to see me; just say you are glad to see brother

Geoff! Why do you look so frightened? I've taken you by surprise--' He had got both his hands on her houlders-was gripping them, indeed, almost roughly in the vehemence of his joy and affection-and he forced Cottie down on the window-seat and with love and half with shame, press-

She sighed—a strange sigh, faintly expressing her conflicting emotions. Which was it he loved, Ronnie or Constance? She was jealous of both. 'Have you been unhappy all the time, Geoff? she asked in a faint whisper.

Yes, all-' His hand was upon her head, smoothing the short curls, and it stopped its caressing movement as his voice stopped. He had remembered Constance!

'It's strange that you should ask that,' he said, with a rush of colour and the shyness of a reticent man. 'No, I've not been unhappy all the time-not for the last few days.

I ve got something to tell you, Ronnie-the strangest thing! And don't you laugh at me, my boy; for it's a serious matter, and I couldn't bear even you to laugh at it. The fact is' - he hesitated and cleared KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Mr. James Clark, Maidstone, Sask., vrites: 'I suffered for four years with rheumatism in my shoulders and could not lift my arms above the head. I tried nearly all the advertised remedies but none of them gave me relief. It cost me at least $100.00 for medicines before I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 'With the use of this medicine, I soon found relief.
