REGISTRATION CLOSES FOR THE SEASON.

Registration is closed for the season. The ocean liner to leave port was the Star Dominion liner "Canada" which is expected to leave on Friday. It did not get away until the 27th day. The "Canada" had an unusually heavy passenger list for the season of the year. The season of the year for Montreal, as regards the number of passengers and freight steamers entering as well as grain boats coming from the Lachine Canal.

THE SHORTEST TRIAL ON RECORD.

One of the shortest murder trials in the history of local courts, here, accused killing Ronald Fisher, young musician, during a trip in the Dreamland Cafe, on the night of July 22, was found guilty by the jury. The defense called no witnesses and neither the crown or the jury made addresses to the jury. Within three hours of the trial opening, the verdict was read. The jury was out for twenty minutes. Moro will be hanged on Feb. 10.

The condemned man sneered openly at the sentence as was pronounced. Amidst intense silence he bravely shook hands with his counsel and went the courtroom with a smile.

Substantiated a waiter at the hotel, who testified that he had at the point of a revolver, pressed service by the bandit and come to the relief of the men and women in the cafe of their valuables, that he knew Moro well and was the man who had done the shooting, which resulted in the death of Carragher.

Other witnesses corroborated Carragher's evidence. The prisoner was led by Alban Germain. The hotel cafe has been raided by officers of the Quebec. Liquor was seized 115 times, from July 23 to Nov. 26th, and during that period 2 seizures of liquor and 2 arrests were made.

Employing "as a fine art, is practiced resort, situated at the St. Lawrence Boulevard. The liquor supply was kept in a pitcher in the back of the Club. On the night of the raiders the liquor is at hand and the minute the officers came out of the minute the club is replenished, consisting of Collins or Scotch. The "Padlock for Illegal Clubs is badly needed.

STILL UNPAID IN POLICE PROBE.

Judge Ducloux heard the case for the third time for the lawyers, who are fighting for their fees in the recent probe. The Judge ordered Alban Brodeur, Chairman of the City Committee of the City Council, to apologize to Mr. Justice Codrington, known the contents of a letter sent to the Chief of Police, Alderman Brodeur refused to do so and was ordered to stand. When the Judge asked the Chairman of the Executive Committee he had not dismissed Chief Brodeur in his report, the Chairman there was no such recommendation.

Judge Ducloux took the case of the fees on delibere and when he renders his decision it is expected the case will be appealed. At the next Civic elections, to be held in a few months, there'll be a red hot time for those Aldermen who were not favorably disposed to act on the recommendations of Mr. Justice Codrington's report in trying to suppress haunts of evil and dens of iniquity around the city.

THE FAMOUS ITALIAN WAREHOUSE MOVES.

Under the heading of "Another Mile Post," a Montrealer's Diary in the "Daily Star" says: "The shifting of Macklars grocery from 211 St. James Street to the uptown region marks another step in the gradual elimination of retail shops from this financial district. Tobacco, candy, boots, suits and haberdashery can still be bought along this stretch of street between McGill and the Main; but that is about all that is left. A modern restaurant will be set up on the site of the vanished grocery. Macklars were successors to Fraser Vigers, once the most famous grocery shop on the continent, carrying the most complete and varied assortment of goods obtainable anywhere and featuring luxuries to be had there only; daily shipping dutiable goods to the States and supplying millions there and when on holiday here. Then, of course, their local business was high class; society women thinking nothing of paying their weekly visit in this unaccustomed part of the town. Their wine vaults were famous, being part of the old fortifications of the city adjoining Fortification Lane.

DANGEROUS WRECK TO BE REMOVED.

The Canadian Recruit, which is lying at the bottom of the St. Lawrence River, in the Traverse, 25 miles below Quebec will be removed, in compliance with the recommendation of Dominion Wreck Commissioner Captain L. A. Demers, in his finding in the Montrose investigation. The work will begin next May.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT MONTREAL.

Including the suburbs, Montreal has a population of one million people of which eighty per cent are French. It is the largest city in Canada, and the fifth largest on the continent. It contains an area of 117 square miles with 836 miles of streets, 72 public parks and 23 miles of waterfront. The city revenue is approximately $27,000,000 yearly. It is the only "ocean port" situated a thousand miles from the sea, and at the same time is a "summer port" or one open to navigation from April to near the end of November. It is second to New York in foreign trade. It is the port of shipment of one-third of Canada's entire national trade. The harbor has a capacity for one hundred ocean going steamships at one time, and has the largest cold storage warehouse in the world. It contains the largest and most costly hotel in the British Empire, the Mount Royal.

Beating even the world record of 3,447,624 bushels of all grains marketed on C.P.R. western lines recently comes the report from A. Hatton, general superintendent transportation, the system that 3,559,000 bushels were marketed in one day. To reach any

Distressed After Meals?

Indigestion, no matter how slight, is a nuisance. It can ruin the good nature of the most genial of us.

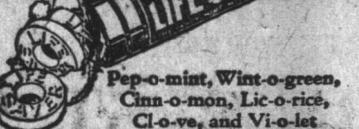

If you are troubled this way, you'll be glad to know a simple way to avoid it.

Just try eating a few pop-o-mint Life Savers after meals.

It's wonderful how these little mint circles relieve that heavy, lumpy feeling after eating. Probably that's why our grandfathers so often had their bulky little bags of peppermints handy in their pockets.

Life Savers are grand-dad's bag of peppermints up to date.

Pop-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Gum-o-mint, Lic-o-rice, Clo-ve, and Vi-let.

The school age was raised from five to seven years. There are differences of opinion amongst the experts whether or not the children make more rapid progress if they are admitted to the schools only when they have attained the age of seven years; and the Quebec School Commission therefore is acting wisely in making further inquiry before coming to a decision on the issue. It will be proper also to inquire what is the school age in other places. In Ontario, for example, children between the ages of eight and fourteen years are compelled to go to school; but the law provides that if children between the ages of five and eight years have entered public school it shall be compulsory for such children to attend the classes regularly throughout the school year. In face of this example we are inclined to think that the suggestion to bar from the school children of five and six years would be a retrograde measure, hurtful to the cause of public instruction in this province.

DON'T BE AFRAID OF DIFFICULTIES.

Dear Readers—Man's work here is not always sunshine. The task sometimes is hard and laborious, but yet, it has to be accomplished. Difficulties present themselves, but they disappear when you tackle the work with vim, earnestness and determination. And many a man fails at his work because he allows the difficulties to "bluff" him. He is overcome by worrying instead of working. Put your shoulder to the wheel, and prove yourself a man in the hour of difficulty, for it's only a coward that shrinks from duty. Remember the words of the French poet:

"Some of your ills you have cured: All of them you have survived; But what torment of pain you've endured For the ills that never arrived."

Here, then, is the secret of the source of your strength. Never be the slave of your fears but remember all the time that you are the servant of the public. Emerson has a fine word in which he speaks of "those small men who worry themselves into nameless graves, while the great man forgets himself into immortality."

"All our good things come by waiting. If we work the while we wait. Joy we long for, work for, wait for. Lose no rest by waiting. Patience is a noble virtue. That is never out of date."

All the bounteous stores of harvest Come from seeds in springtime sown— Won by working and by waiting. Well-earned fruits we call our own. Others, waiting without working, Miss their good and make their moan.

There's a view from yonder mountain, And fair flowers to glad the eye; You will never attain the summit If you sit below and sigh. If you work and climb to reach them You will gain them by and by.

Countess Bribed a Witness

Potsdam Beauty Sent to Prison. "I am innocent. To-morrow I shall not be alive." These words were shouted at the judge by the weeping Countess Ellinor von Bothmer, a prominent figure in the Potsdam society, when at midnight she was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment by the Potsdam Court. The beautiful countess was charged with (1) stealing $600 marks ($250) from a friend at a hotel in Potsdam, a Pomeranian holiday resort; (2) the theft of valuable carpets, silver, books, vases, linen, &c., from the house of Herr Rieck, a retired judge, of Potsdam, while he was on a holiday.

A Tramp's Perjury.

Sensations marked the final days of the trial. A tramp, Otto Stange, came forward and confessed that he was the culprit in the Polzin case. His story, however, roused some suspicions, and he was reminded by the judge of the penalty of perjury—two years hard labour. He thought over that for a few days and was brought into court again.

Stange then admitted his story to be completely false. He declared he was "down and out," that he thought he would get six months' imprisonment for the theft, and that afterwards the countess would find him a job. But she only gave him 50 marks and would promise nothing. "So I have now declared," said Stange, "that I cannot go to hard labour for two years for the paltry sum of 50 marks (about £4)."

The countess protested and wept on hearing the man's recantation. Her counsel pled him with 100 tricky questions, but he was not to be shaken this time.

"Dying Woman's" Letters.

Two Roman Catholic priests told how a woman, heavily veiled and elegantly dressed, had delivered letters to them. They were signed "A dying woman," and stated that her son was responsible for the thefts from Herr Rieck's house. He had emigrated to Poland. The "dying woman," therefore, thought it was right to let this be known, "as an innocent person was being charged with the theft."

A stir was caused in court when the handwriting experts declared that the letters were undoubtedly written by the countess.
