GAMEY FALSIFIED ENTRY

IN MR. CROSSIN'S CASH BOOK

Disclosures.

GAMEY'S BUSINESS PARTNER MAKES A STATEMENT

Mr. Crossin, who came into prominence in connection with the Gamey investigation last April, is reorganizing his piano company, and has succeeded in buying out the interests of Mr. Gamey and Mr. Smythe, the transaction being closed at noon today. In order to clear up the Gamey matter so far as it affected him, and place himself right with the public, Mr. Crossin has made a statement of facts connected with the mutilation of the company's books relating to the well-known $900 entry.

He says that shortly after Gamey made his charges in the House, he came to the office and looked at the cash-book and alleged that the payment of the $900 was made on the 10th of September. On being assured this was not so, he then asked Mr. Crossin to change the date back to the 20th or 21st of August, which request Mr. Crossin refused to comply with, Mr. Gamey gav as his reason for asking this to be done that it would not hurt the firm, and

After the royal commission opened, Mr. Crossin, on looking over the cashbook, discovered that the entry was blotted and the words "Aug. 21" written over the 11th of September, and the figures "$900" blotted.

fice, and the next Mr. Crossin knew was on the Saturday after Gamey went to Buffalo. He then looked at the book again and found that two leaves, one of which contained the mutilated entry, had been torn out.

The attention of one of the counsel for Mr. Gamey was called to this, and told that he had better see Gamey, as the book when produced in court would be very suspicious. The next morning, early, he says, Gamey was at the of-

In thirty years the Government had spent over $120,000,000, and no one could put a finger upon one dollar that had been dishonestly or corruptly spent. The Premier turned then to a review of the general political situation, dealing at length with the work of the last session, and the charges of corruption. Some of the more striking passages in his remarks were as follows: Notwithstanding that the time of the House was occupied for nearly seven -Wm.
