FOR CRUELTY TO A COW incoln Boyer of Harrietsville Had to Hand Over $31. One of the worst cases of cruelty to animals that has ever come into the notice of the court authorities was tried by Squire Gorwill this morning in the interim sessions. Lincoln Boyer, of Harrietsville, pleaded guilty to beating a cow with an iron bar, and had to hand over $31 as punishment. The complainant in the case was Mrs. Wm. Chalk, of Harrietsville, and Inspector Sanders conducted the case for the Chalk's cow, according to Boyer, was in the habit of trespassing upon the premises of the latter, who is a blacksmith. A couple of days ago, when the cow appeared at the blacksmith's door, Boyer took her inside, shut the door, and hammered her severely with an iron bar. The result is that the animal s now thin and nervous, and her calf Seven witnesses, including a veterin-ary surgeon, were brought in from Harrietsville. They were not needed as the accused pleaded guilty, but they caused the costs of the court to mount up to
