BARLEY AT DETROIT.

A good deal of the depression in barley in this city is traced to the disinclination of brewers and maltsters to have on hand more stock than they can malt previous to May 1, when they anticipate trouble from the eight-hour movement. They propose to be prepared for a strike. This is one of the first guns of what may be a momentous and needs an absorbent. For this purpose campaign. Cows of the same size and age do not require entire uniformity in feeding. Some are always hearty and eat large amounts, while others are delicate. It requires some study of each individual case to understand the peculiar wants of each. But in every case a cow should have all she can be made to eat clean. Stinting is the poorest kind of economy, especially with good cows.

Rye may profitably be pastured by sheep in some of the Southern States, but in the North, where cold withers its leaves, they are not worth enough to offset the poaching of the ground that is sure to occur in midday even in cold weather.
