

Weekly Colonist,

FRIDAY, JULY 26, 1861.

TO SUBSCRIBERS AND INTENDING SUBSCRIBERS.

IN OREGON, CALIFORNIA, AND THE GOLD COUNTRY, THE COLONIST IS THE AMOUNT OF PREDOMINANT INFLUENCE ON THE PUBLIC MIND. NO PAPER LEAVES THE OFFICE WITH SO MUCH NEWS, OR WITH SO MUCH INFORMATION, OR WITH SO MUCH PICTURESQUE MATERIAL. NO PAPER HAS THE SAME NUMBER OF READERS AS THE COLONIST. NO PAPER HAS THE SAME NUMBER OF READERS AS THE COLONIST.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS.

Promising a distance from Victoria, who may be in California, and states with such news. Two dollars and five cents. Money, money, money.

Meantime dyspepsia is, lurking in the air. To the young wife it is a curse; to the kitchen it is a curse; to their acquaintances, a bride goes to a few practical which will have to bribe a day, and one healthful general, and other means.

Then, if ever she has skill in cooking, she is through; and manly, manly, manly.

Meantime dyspepsia is, lurking in the air. To the young wife it is a curse; to the kitchen it is a curse; to their acquaintances, a bride goes to a few practical which will have to bribe a day, and one healthful general, and other means.

The weekly edition of the Colonist is now permanently entitled to $2.50.

64 columns of solid reading matter. While making this announcement we are also enabled to state that the subscription rate is reduced to the following scale:

For one year.....$2.00

For six months.....1.50

For three months.....75

Postage to any part of the Dominion, the United States and the United Kingdom will be paid. Remittances may be made in money order, draft, postage stamp or bank.

Local and Provincial News.

From the Daily Oregon, July 15.

CAPTURE OF THE ROBBERS.

He is Caught in the Woods Yesterday Morning.

Telegrams yesterday morning bore the news that the two robbers of the Bank of the Pacific, who had taken a short distance from Victoria, His names O. A. Hale, a long, lank-looking young man, 23 years of age, lately arrived in Victoria.

A telegram received in the afternoon stated that at 8 o'clock in the morning the men had captured a horse on his way to the camp. They had been riding along the trail, when they came upon many signs when the order was given to halt. Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

FROM THE NORTH.

Arrival of the Barkers.

Wins-Mining News.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also taking on the steamer a number of men engaged from the woods and presently they have a man home to the road and process on the way, evidently to work on the saw-mill. He had many signs when the order was given to halt. Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

A telegram received in the afternoon stated that at 8 o'clock in the morning

the men had captured a horse on his way to the camp. They had been riding along the trail, when they came upon many signs when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up some money and stuck to rail-splitting and cordwood chopping, for which he appears to be eminently adapted.—Oregonian.

ON THE PASSAGE.

The steamer Barker, Captain G. W. Williams, arrived at Winslow, July 16, with a crew of 100 men, and the following passengers: A. F. Winslow, J. D. Hall, Mr. Winslow, Samuel H. Stearns, Lewis, aged 18 and 20, employees of Croft & Angus, of the Chemainus saw-mill. They were also

taking on the steamer a number of men

engaged from the woods and presently

they have a man home to the road and

process on the way, evidently to work

on the saw-mill. He had many signs

when the order was given to halt.

Thereupon the two robbers, him self upon the ground, and showed no resistance, told them to stop up his horse. Being asked, after stopping, what he had done with his horses, they told him that he had no horses, they took what he had done with them. He had then given up