On hillside meadows in the sun, The little children leap and run, Or chase from flower to flower, The frail white-winged butterflies That underneath Spring's sunny skies, Enjoy their little hour.

And over all the meadows green And over all the meadows green,
The yellow cowslip blooms are seen,
And children part in bands;
With eager glee and laughing toll
They rush to grasp the golden spoil,
Meet wealth for children's hands.

Their pearls of silver laughter float Towards me, mingled with the note Of thrushes thrilling song. I listen in my shady nook, I sigh, uplooking from my book

I carried once a heart as light As they who carol in the height Of childhood's matchless gle For me were meadows gold and green, The thrushes' song, and skies serene, And cowslips bloomed for me.

For me, too, loving hands entwined The cowslips in a wreath to bind
My childish, flowing hair;
For me, too, tender words broke forth, And voices silent now on earth. Once whispered I was fair.

Ah, my lost childhood! Never more. Until I gain that farther shore,
Wilt thou come back to me !
But then my mother's voice and hand May welcome me to that fair land.

Nor grudge the children's play I will go forth among the band, And pluck with cheerful heart and hand

And while it is my lot to wait,

Let me not murmer at my fate.

CHAPTER XIII.

AN INIQUITOUS ENGAGEMENT. On the morning after seeing the face of Leon Ashley looking toward her window, Miss Arden awoke from the effects of the narcotic administered to her, in a calmer frame of mind than she had experienced since the night of her marriage. There was a vague feeling of expecta tion that something was about to happen to change the dreary tenor of her life, for which she could not account. A sudden sense of peace seemed to have fallen on her perturbed feelings, and the magnetic

Grace spoke in a rapid and excited manner, and ended by bursting into a flood of hysterical tears. Shocked by her want of reticence, Mrs. Maitland turned homeward, and hurrled the agitated girl to her own apartment. She would stop at the entrance, however, and renew her invitation to Ashley, to visit her every day during his stay at Cape May.

He turned away from her, satisfied that to say, exulting in the certainty that this half-demented woman was his lawful wife, will be when you are gone." and as such he would find means to claim her, and secure the large estates she possessed in her own right. But these ulterior intentions did not prevent him from carrying on a lively flirtation with Augusta Maitland throughout the remainder of the evening, and she retired at a late hour, with the conviction in her mind that the game was in her own hands, and she could easily secure this desirable match if she wished to do so. Just before they separated for the night, Augusta asked:

"Will you accept the invitation to visit her given by that poor, half crazy girl? It is a pity such a magnificent fortune as hers should be wasted on a person so insections that some presence was ap-capable of enjoying it."

Soe Manufacturers of Miller's Patent Shifting Rail. These Shifting Tops have no rival, as a glance at the cut will show for item; 4t is so simple the requires only one person to take it off or put it on, and when off no one would think a Top had been on, as no unsightly ends are sticking out. When the Top is on it is as firm as a rock. It cap be put on any carriage in use. Persons ordering Buggles or Canopy Top Carriages should see that they have this Rail, as it will be greatly to their interest.

These Tops were awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition in October, 1880
