

by Mr. Gladstone in his recent "Butler's Analogy" with notes, to the effect that "the religion of the Jews in no way rested upon future rewards and punishments," a statement which the Professor proves by far too wide and unguarded, especially in view of the judgment passed upon the actions of Old Testament worthies in the New Testament. As a witness to this he adduces the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, which supplies the motive that the men of olden days had in what they did. What actuated them was faith—like that of Abram, who looked for a city that had foundations eternal in the heavens. The authenticity of the Epistle of St. James is well defended by Rev. J. B. Mayor. The Clergyman's Magazine has an interesting article on "Has Man Fallen or Risen?" by Rev. J. D. W. Worden. He takes the ground that should the present hypothesis that man is a creature gradually evolved from lower types of life, prove true, it would not necessarily clash with the account of his creation as given in the Bible. Much other matter useful for clergymen is found in the magazine.

The Review of Reviews. 13 Astor Place, New York. $2.50 a year.

In the Review of Reviews for May the editor discusses the outbreak of the war between Greece and Turkey, and the failure of the "concert of Europe," which he ascribes to Lord Salisbury's "process of parley." The Cuban Insurrection, and the Sealing Question, together with editorials, special articles, magazine and book reviews, and cartoon and other illustration make up an excellent number.

The Sunday at Home for May is conspicuous for its portraits of fifty-four missionaries. This picture gallery includes such men as William Carey, Robert Moffat, Alexander Duff, David Livingstone, Valpy French, Bishop Crowther, Bishop Horden, John G. Paton, Alexander Mackay, J. Hudson Taylor, etc. From such a number we miss George Augustus Selwyn, the great missionary to New Zealand and Melanesia, Bishop Pattison, and many others, but of course fifty-four names could not include every one. The picture and brief description of the Dead Sea is interesting. The Leisure Hour is up to its usual point of interest. The Midland sketch is Walsall, a typical English manufacturing town, on the green borderland of the Black Country. It is noted as the city of Sister Dora, whose statue adorns it—the only statue that the town can boast of. Sunday Hours for Boys and Girls is an excellent periodical for young people. The May part has a capital description of Eton, with several illustrations.
