DIED.

At La Colle, on the 13th ult., W. Brother Lieut.-Col. Robert Hoyle, of disease of the heart, aged 75 years, deeply and deservedly regretted by all. During his illness he was surrounded by kind and sympathetic friends; and every resource which art, and the heartfelt affection of a truly sympathising family could summon, was brought to his aid. But it was not within the scope of human skill to prolong his existence. At length nature paid her last debt, and he departed this life firm in the faith of a redeeming Saviour. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father; kind and liberal to the poor; to lessen human misery and increase human happiness was the law of his heart, and the language of his lips. The highest tribute that can be paid to man, can in all truthfulness be paid to him. Those who enjoyed his confidence and knew him best, honoured and respected him most.

Though deeply mourned and missed, the excellent qualities of his kind and affectionate heart render consolation to his domestic circle, where his memory will ever be cherished as one deservedly dear. He was ever foremost in the promotion of public welfare, and a liberal subscriber to charitable and other institutions.

Col. Hoyle was one of the first English settlers on the Seignior of La Colle, and the only M.P.P. born in England, when his famous 92 Resolutions were passed. He was firm but liberal in his political principles; frank in the expression of his opinions; and fearless in the advocacy of them; ever unimpeachable in the performance of his public duties, which were many and various, having filled all the public offices in the gift of the country.

And is he gone! and shall we never behold
The noble casket that contained his soul?

At his particular request Bro. Hoyle was interred with masonic honours.
